Residents to be questioned on road's future

STOVER

Hills, a Detroit area developer, showed interest in buying the right-of-way.

The council rejected the developer's offer, but soon began to worry that future councils may not make the same decision.

Weisner gave the council three practical options for retaining the road: do nothing, which would allow future city councils the option to abandon the road and sell the city's portion; abandon the road and not sell the city's share, which would still allow future councils to sell the road; or abandon the road and dedicate the city's portion to the cemetery, which would then require a public vote to sell the property.

Campbell said he wants to retain the piece of land because, if it is sold, he fears the city may have to buy it back in the future for a higher price.

Chamberlain said there is no way, even if the road were sold to a private business, that it would ever be reconnected to the highway.

The road, which is a dead-end street off Marion Center Road on the south end of Charlevoix, used to be open at the state highway M-66, but was deemed a dangerous access point and closed off about three years ago.

"MDOT would probably never allow us to go back on to M-66. There's too many access points and a greater possibility for accidents. The likelihood of that ever becoming a road again is not very possible," he said.

Campbell would like to see the city's 33 foot portion of the road dedicated to the cemetery on the south side of the street.

He said the cemetery will run out of room soon and expanding it by way of the Stover Road property may be an option to solving that problem.

"We can only go about 40 years on that cemetery. There's nowhere to expand," Campbell said.

However Chamberlain said if the road were dedicated as cemetery property, it is unlikely the cemetery could actually expand there because several utility lines, fiber optic cables and a sewer system run underneath.

"You can't bury anybody there because there's too many utility lines. You would have to call Miss Dig every time you wanted to bury someone," Chamberlain said.

The road is currently split down the center line with the city owning the south portion and the north as private property.

By abandoning the road, private property owners would see a setback increase in their favor.

"If we were to vacate the road we would receive a title to the area (south) of the center line of the road and then property to the north would become the private property owners'," Chamberlain said.

The current setback requires owners to be 33 feet from the road right-of-way, but if the city chooses to vacate, property owners along the street would be able to move the building setback line to 25 feet. Chamberlain said they would gain a bigger area to build.

Junior Golf registration coming up

Official registration for this summer's Junior Golf instructional program is Monday, June 16 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

Area youngsters must be at least 8 years of age and no older than 17. Registration requires a parent or guardian be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn of the family commitment necessary for youngsters to successfully benefit from the program.

Youngsters 8-11 years of age are to register at 2 p.m. and those 12-17 are signing up at 3 p.m.

There is a per-lesson fee of $5 or a $45 season plan option that pays for all scheduled lessons.

This is the eighth year that the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's program has offered the program to area youth. Last year 201 area youngsters registered for the seven week program.

Three years ago the program drew acclaim from the National Junior Golf Association when they selected the local program as one of the top 15 such programs in the country and the program continues to grow and flourish.

Pros from local courses who will make up the teaching staff include: Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere Club; Joan Waha from Dunmaglas; Steve Good, Chet Wheeler and Jerry Roman from the Charlevoix Country Club and Scott Blechel from the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

The emphasis will again be on learning golf rules and procedures, proper fundamentals and techniques and course etiquette.

There will be two sessions each week with a couple of tournaments spaced in during the summer program. Lessons rotate and will be held at the Belvedere Golf Course, Charlevoix Country Club, Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, Antrim Dells Golf Course and Dunmaglas Golf Course. In addition, there will be a Sunday evening "fun" league for selected advanced players, with a variety of events, scheduled for the Belvedere Golf Course.

Director Dean Davenport added, "We will again have scholarships available based on need for families where the fee may be a hardship with details available at registration. We also will again have loaner clubs available. We want every youngster to have this golfing and educational opportunity."

Additional adult volunteers are needed to work in the mentoring program, so whenever youngsters play a few holes, to conclude each lesson they have an adult monitoring them.

Those interested should call 547-6433 or the Charlevoix City Recreation Department at 547-3253.

Shearer qualifies for MAG tournament

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While next week marks the thirty-ninth time the men's Michigan Amateur Golf Championship has been played at the Belvedere Club, it is also the first time since the 1980s that a Charlevoix resident has qualified for the event.

Recent Charlevoix High School graduate and four year member of the Charlevoix High School varsity golf team David Shearer qualified for the prestigious championship tournament at a May 28 match at the Moor in Boyne Highlands. He is the only Charlevoix resident to qualify this year.

"I can't wait. I have been talking about this for three years. Last year I tied for the last spot and lost in a playoff," Shearer said.

In the match, the top 12 golfers of 85 were selected to play in the championship at the Belvedere Golf Club. Shearer took second place with a score of 71, one under the course par of 72.

SHEARER

Shearer to play in the championship, this year's tournament is extra-special because it is at the Belvedere Golf Course. Shearer has not only been an employee of the course for about four years, but it was also his home course when he was on the high school golf team.

"I really wanted to play it here. It is going to be a lot of fun," Shearer said. "This is my best chance as of now to win it, with the home course advantage. It doesn't get any better than that."

Steve Braun, Belvedere Golf Course head professional, added, "I think it is pretty exciting not only for local people, but for members. (Shearer) has worked on staff for three to four years and all of the members are excited for him."

Shearer's high school coach Jim Glynn said, "I think it is wonderful. It will be fun for a young high school kid to play at his home course. That is something special."

But, the competition Shearer will face will be fierce. Shearer will join 156 of the best golfers in the state for a chance to win the championship during the week of June 15 - 21.

"I know a lot of them," he said. "They are all real good players. They know the course too. This is a big challenge and these are the best players in the state."

On Tuesday, June 17, and Wednesday, June 18, all 156 golfers will play 18 holes. Their total scores from those two days will be added together and the lowest 64 players will go on to Thursday, June 19, for hole-against-hole, head-to-head play.

Braun said eventually the field will be cut down to 16, who will go on to play Friday, June 20. The final eight will play in the semi-finals and finals on Saturday, June 21.

Shearer said he has been practicing every day for the championship at the Belvedere Golf Course.

He said his putting has always been a little "weak," but he usually does pretty good on this course. His strong point is chipping.

Next year, Shearer will be a student at Northern Kentucky University, with a major in sports management and marketing. He has received a golf scholarship.

It has been 14 years since this championship has been hosted by the Belvedere Golf Course.

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? Anglers to try their luck at trout tournament

BY STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Families and fishermen alike are encouraged to participate in this year's Trout Tournament on Lake Charlevoix, June 13-15.

Fishing takes place anywhere on the lake while awards, weigh-ins and activities will take place at East Park.

Organizer Dave Juilleret said, "The original goals of the tournament were to encourage business and fishery in Charlevoix at a slow time of the year."

While most of the funds go into the tournament, he said, "Whatever money we make we look to put back into the community."

The tournament offers a $500 scholarship to any high school student in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls schools wishing to pursue an environmental science degree. This is the first year the scholarship will include the Boyne Falls school district.

Twenty-five prizes, determined by weight of fish, will be awarded in each division. This year the first place cash award is up to $1,100. The first place winner in the lake trout division will be awarded the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy. The winning fish in each division will be mounted.

There will be port prizes for the largest fish entered each day. A special trophy will be awarded to the largest fish of the tournament caught on a Michigan Stinger Spoon.

The award ceremony will take place at 1 p.m., Sunday, June 15.

Last year's winner in the brown trout division was Pat Patten, with his catch weighing in at 16.44 pounds. Mike Clark won the steelhead division at 13.20 pounds. Barry Aspenleiter won the Lake Trout division at 11.70 pounds.

Other prizes including a 50-50 drawing, canoe and shotgun raffle will take place during the ceremony. Those interested in the grand prize drawing must be present to win.

Parents are encouraged to bring the little ones to the kids' fish pond from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on Saturday, June 14, in East Park, donated in memory of Joe Maltese "Sloppy Joe." Kids of all ages are welcome.

Fish are $1.50 each and proceeds will go to Big Brothers-Big Sisters.

All participants must fil out a registration form. Registration for ages 15-adult is $25, ages 6-14 is $10. Children under 5 are free, but still must register.

Pre-registration is at tournament headquarters from 12 p.m.-6 p.m. on June 10 and from 12 p.m.-8 p.m., June 11-12 in East Park at the bandshell. Forms can be mailed to Charlevoix Tournament, Inc., P.O. Box 616, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

After May 24, registrations must be picked up in East Park during tournament hours. Registration will continue to take place during the tournament.

Registrants will automatically become members of the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Association, established to promote and preserve area fishery.

Food booths will be provided in the park from local restaurants. This year Kiwanis will have a booth featuring its kielhasa.

Those interested in docking for the tournament must contact the dock master at (231) 547-3272. Weigh-ins for the trout take place at number 24 and 25 weigh-in docks only.

For more information, please visit the tournament web site at www.charlevoix.org/trout or call (231) 547-6725 or 547-9054, evening hours only.

Appeals rules against circuit court decision

LAWSUIT

blast originated. The mortars and trailer failed to contain or divert the explosion.

"Plaintiff(s) argues that it demonstrated a question of fact whether Second Chance employees acted within the scope of their employment with Second Chance when they renovated the trailer because Second Chance used the fireworks display to promote its police-equipment business. We agree that a question of fact exists."

The justices also pointed out Second Chance appeared on a press release that promoted the schedule of Fireworks North, Inc., a fireworks display company.

Richard Davis, of Antrim County, is the president and major shareholder of Second Chance and is also the owner of Fireworks North, Inc.

The case is being sent back to the circuit court for further action. A trial in the case had been postponed by Pajtas until after the appeals court decision.

Pajtas said he has not seen the order from the appeals court as of Monday.

He said he is not sure when that trial will start, because if the defendants in the case file an appeal with the Michigan State Supreme Court, it could be held up further.

Several other defendants in the lawsuit have been dismissed. They included: United Pyrotechnics Inc., Hunan Provincial Fireworks and Firecrackers Import/Export Corp., Temple of Heaven and Marvin McKay, PyroShows Inc., city of Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, former city clerk Jo Anne Patrick, the city of Charlevoix and city manager Mike Weisner, city fire chief Doug Carver, 1997 Venetian Festival Chairman John Taylor and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Defendants remaining are Davis, Fireworks North, Wolverine Fireworks Display Incorporated, Glen Crawford, Lawrence Grise and Michael Jaye.

Kilkenny, Trubilowicz elected to board

ELECTION

last time we asked, it was voted down," Telgenhof said.

The sinking fund passed by 98 votes with 627 voting in favor and 529 opposing. The fund, which will add an extra $85,000 in the district's facilities and maintenance funds, was last renewed six years ago.

Telgenhof said the close vote totals on both ballot issues were expected.

"I think that it was a close vote and that's kind of what we anticipated — that there would be opposition. There always is with tax issues," Telgenhof said.

He said with the passage of Proposal A in 1994 local control was taken away. Charlevoix tax dollars were sent to Lansing, where legislators then decided where they should go.

"These two votes are chances for the voters to exercise some local control over the level that our schools are funded," Telgenhof said.

He was happy with the approximately 1,200 citizens that showed up to vote for the ballot issues and candidates.

The winning candidates are Trubilowicz, who ran unopposed, and Kilkenny, who ran against Dennis Kusina and won by a 184 vote margin.

Kilkenny has never served on the school board, but has been actively involved in the past when her three children were in school. She is happy to begin serving on the board which she thinks has an excellent track record.

"I'm really pleased with what the school board has done. I'm hoping that I can contribute to the tradition of excellence in the Charlevoix schools," Kilkenny said.

She said she was also pleased both the ballot issues passed.

"I was so happy. All three of us (Kilkenny, Trubilowicz and Kusina) were in favor of passing the millages. It shows a tremendous community support," Kilkenny said.

Trubilowicz said the money will allow for more flexibility within the school budget.

"It's kind of uncertain right now. You try to keep your options open and make sure you have the ability to move as the situation changes. This money allows us to do that," he said. "We don't ever want to be in a position where we have to start sacrificing programs."

Trubilowicz was appointed to the board last November and decided to run for the open four year position.

"The fact that I ran unopposed, I took that as a vote of confidence from the people that I must have started off on the right foot. I'll just try to be sure I fulfill their expectations of me," he said.

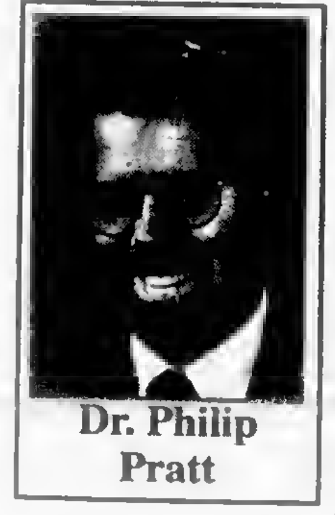
He said he plans to approach his four year term the same way he did his one year term, by looking at the issues, attacking them and doing the best he can for Charlevoix students.

Trubilowicz said he is happy to be working with newly elected Kilkenny, but felt the candidates were equally qualified to fill his vacant position.

"It's wonderful that Diane won. The way I saw that race is both of those people are great people. Either one would have been an asset to the school board," he said.

Organist to be in church concert

The Sundays at Four Concert Series will present Dr. Philip Pratt, organist, at 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 15 at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix at Park and State streets.



Dr. Philip Pratt

Pratt, a member of the faculty of Grand Valley State University for over 23 years, continues to serve as chapel organist of the Grand Rapids Heartside Ministry, which is an outreach ministry to the poor and homeless population of Grand Rapids. He is in demand as an organ dedication recitalist as well as being a frequent performer in the Cyril E. Barker Memorial Music Festival in Grand Rapids — Cyril Barker was one of his organ teachers.

Pratt received a Ph.D. in mathematics from Michigan State University in 1970 and in addition to his artistry as an organist, he has taught both mathematics and computer science at Grand Valley State University, where he served eight years as department chair. He has published over 40 computer science textbooks.

There is no charge for the concert, but a suggested donation of $5 would be appreciated. A reception honoring Pratt will follow the concert.

Society studying lighthouse issue

LIGHT

if there even is one — maintenance costs are still not known. To find out what these are, the historical society is working on a feasibility study, which should be finished by August.

The society has received a $10,000 grant to pay for the study, but must raise an additional $5,300.

The feasibility study will tell the historical society what types and how much in grants it needs to apply for to maintain the lighthouse.

While it will not be finished until August, Adams said she expects a preliminary report by July.

Once the feasibility study is done, the city will examine it to decide whether or not to pursue ownership of the lighthouse.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner said he does not have enough information on the matter to make a comment at this time.

"I know there is interest to maintain it. It is Charlevoix, just look at how many pictures it is in," he said.

Charlevoix mayor Gabe Campbell said he was unaware of the plan, but thinks it is a good idea.

"I think it is a plus for everybody," he said.

The society is planning on applying for grants this fall for needed maintenance and painting on the structure.

Adams said she is unsure what types of repairs are needed on the current structure.

"When you look at the lighthouse, you see some pocks in it. It may need some sandblasting and painting," she said. "It looks like it is in pretty good shape.

Adams added she has not been inside the lighthouse yet.

As for painting on the lighthouse, Adams said the society will leave the color up to the public.

If the decision to take ownership of the lighthouse is agreed to by the city and the federal government, while the city owns the structure and the society maintains it, the pier the lighthouse sits upon will still be owned by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Variety of events at Venetian

VENETIAN

Barron, in his fifth year as festival president, said he realizes it is impossible to please everyone's music tastes, but they try to find a good caliber and mix.

Also new to this year's festival is Heritage Day, which promises to be a "living and breathing historical exposition of Charlevoix," Barron said. The event, hosted by the Charlevoix Historical Society, will have exhibits and artifacts.

A first-time bike tour, planned in conjunction with the trails council, will follow a trail from Shanahan Field to Bay Harbor. It is a 26 mile round trip.

Aside from the new events, there still promises to be plenty of standard events that make one of Michigan's oldest festivals what it is, such as the Grand Electric Boat Parade.

The origin of the Venetian Festival can be traced back to a boat parade in Round Lake. Years ago after members from the Chicago Club and Belvedere Club had a regatta, they wanted to celebrate when the race was complete. Barron said they decorated their boats with Chinese lanterns and cruised the harbor — thus began the Venetian Festival.

Today Barron said boaters forego the Chinese lanterns and will hire light and sound production companies for the circular cruise.

The Grand Electric Boat Parade will take place July 26, Saturday, in Round Lake with harbor fireworks. The boat parade will consist of anywhere from 16 to 24 boats.

Fireworks will also light the night sky on July 25, Friday, over Lake Charlevoix again this year.

Barron said with the fireworks going off overhead and the boats on the harbor below, "it's an unbelievable visual spectacular Saturday night."

The Venetian Festival will also include an eight day schedule of games and events for the whole family ranging from a 3 on 3 basketball tournament to bingo in East Park.

Barron said they expect to have over 2,000 participants in the games.

While the Venetian Festival draws visitors from all over, the non-profit organization is also garnering money from different areas.

Barron said this year they have more support coming from regional and national corporations to help fund part of the $250,000 budget needed to run the festival.

Although the organization may look to outside corporations, money is also raised locally. Charlevoix City Council gave its support at the last council meeting, June 2, to the Venetian Festival when it decided to allot the $15,000 set aside in its budget to the non-profit organization.

"It's a lot of money to be raised and spent with a short time frame," Barron said.

Local support is not only monetary. The festival has a volunteer base of 400 people, which is about 10 percent of Charlevoix's population.

With the festival a little over a month away, Barron said preparations are running along and on track at this point.

"I think things are online. We're as ready as we generally are at this point," he said.

SCRAPBOOK

The day the Boss family tried horse thievery

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

Today, my friends, you are going to hear the true story about the Boss family's best kept secret — the day they turned into horse thieves!

Twenty years ago, our future daughter-in-law, Linda (Jim's wife), had two Arabian show horses. She leased the horses to a prominent doctor and his wife who formerly lived in Petoskey. Linda's horse trailer was also included in this lease.

The horses, Kartezak, (Zak) a gelding, ranked fourth in the state of Ohio's International Arabian Horse Association Futurity. The second horse was named AAA Garteza, (Tez) a purebred mare, granddaughter of Ibn Witez. Tez' great grandfather Witez II, was saved by General George Patton, from the Nazi's in World War II, who were going to put him to death. (Yes, these were very special horses!)

After Linda's father sold their ranch north of town, the horses needed a place to stay. She leased them to the doctor's wife in exchange for free board, with the provision that they could ride or show both horses.

When Linda's parents moved out of state, she moved in with us. The doctor's wife called our house, telling Linda that she had to sign over the ownership to them immediately. This was basically taking advantage of the situation and stealing the horses. Linda said she wouldn't agree to do that. She would just come and get the horses. The doctor's wife then said she would not permit Linda to do this. They were going to charge her for past feed and board (which was not the agreement).

Dale said, "Let's take the ownership/registration papers and go to a good attorney in Petoskey and see what he has to say about this." So, five of us jumped in the old red convertible and went to the attorney. He advised us to steal the horses back at "high noon," because "possession is 99 percent of the law."

We went out to the doctor's farm where the horses were kept, planning to pick them up with Linda's trailer. The old red Cadillac was the only car we had that was big and powerful enough with a hitch, to pull two horses in a big horse trailer.

When we got to the farm, the trailer was not there, as they had loaned it to a friend who lived down the road.

What do we do? Who has a trailer? Who do we know who even has a horse? Dale got the bright idea to get Albert Sharrow, the best horse handler in the whole area and a personal friend. We called Albert's wife, Alice, who told us he was working on a construction job with Dick Way.

I bailed out because I couldn't stand the tension of all the commotion!

Dale, Bo, Jim and Linda, still in the Cadillac, found Albert. Dale explained the story of what was happening — laughing his head off as is usual for him. Albert got so excited, he laughed also, and threw down his work belt.

He promptly told Dick he had to go steal a couple of horses for these people at high noon! Albert took his big pickup and his horse trailer and followed Dale back to the doctor's farm. They arrived about 12:20 p.m. Albert backed the trailer up to the corral to load the two horses.

Just as Linda loaded the second horse, the doctor and his wife skidded into the driveway, blocking their exit. They jumped out of the car, yelling at them, "What do you think you're doing?!!"

Dale said, "We're taking Linda's horses back and we have the ownership papers to prove it!"

In the meantime, the doctor's friend, a volunteer fireman pulled up, further blocking any possible exit. He acted as if he was the law, and said, "You guys aren't going anywhere!"

Bo said, "Well, who are you?" He replied that he was so-and-so with the volunteer fire department.

Jim scoffed, "Well, you have no authority over this matter."

The doctor and his wife took Linda aside and verbally harassed her, saying they could not believe that she was doing this to them. She was crying hard and said, "I am so sorry, but you forced us to do this."

At this point, Bo stepped in and got between Linda and the doctor, forcefully saying, "Does it make you feel good to make this girl cry?"

Dale said, "Enough of this! We're getting out of here....NOW!"

The horses were loaded. Albert got in his truck. The Bosses got into the Cadillac. Dale put the transmission in low and floorboarded it, taking the Cadillac through the ditch. Albert started the truck forward toward the fireman's pickup. The fireman, seeing that Albert wasn't going to stop, jumped in his truck and backed out of the way, giving them free passage. As Dale pulled away, he hollered out, "We'll be back shortly for the horse trailer and it had better be here!"

Albert took the horses to his place and put them in with his horses for safe-keeping until Linda could find suitable board for them. They went back to get the trailer after the horses were settled. When they arrived at the farm, the trailer was there and the doctor and his wife weren't.

That was our first and last experience with a horse-and our only adventure in thievery!

Offer accepted on school

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

An agreement was reached June 10 between the Charlevoix school board and city on a final offer for the old middle school property.

The school board voted unanimously to approve the city's most recent offer of $635,000 for 13 lots following the building and grounds committee's recommendation.

"We wanted the fair market value," Allen Telgenhof, committee member and outgoing board president, said. "You're getting the appraised market value here, you're getting to work with other government bodies and you're getting to keep a historical building."

Library board member Mary Anne Chew said the decision came very easily to board members.

"It didn't take them very long to review what the proposals were. They were very pleased to work with the city, DDA and library," she said.

Dennis Halverson, building and grounds committee member, said the committee had clear direction

District feels budget crunch

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix School Board approved an estimated $12 million budget for the 2003-2004 academic year at their last meeting of the school year; June 10.

The budget was reduced by roughly $2 million from last year's budget to help offset the budget crunch felt by the state of Michigan.

Judy Boss, business coordinator for the Charlevoix Public Schools, presented the spending plan to the board and they voted unanimously to pass it. The budget had to be passed before the official start of the next school year which will be the July meeting.

Some of the biggest changes came as a result of the current budget deficit the state of Michigan as a whole is facing.

"The state's economy is hurting so that hurts us with our revenues," Boss said.

She said each year the district receives a foundation allowance from the state of Michigan based on the number of students in the district. Last year they received a $200 increase per student and $300 per student the previous year.

This year Charlevoix received in total $275,000 less from the state's foundation allowance.

In an effort to deter Michigan's budget deficit from becoming a district problem, Boss said they have reduced all expenditures from the previous year. Boss looked at athletics, travel, subs, overtime and yard maintenance and reduced each one.

All teaching supplies, such as text books and library books, were reduced by 70 percent and some areas were cut more drastically.

Boss said equipment, known as capital outlay expenditures, was reduced by 100 percent.

"There will be no capital outlay expenditures. We knew we were going to be in a deficit spending and we knew we could get by for a year without any capital outlay expenditures," Boss said.

Staff was trimmed as well. Boss said they cut back the teaching staff by three people and support staff by one person. The positions were vacated by retiring staff and to save money the district has decided not to fill those positions.

According to the adopted resolution by the school

Corrections

Due to a reporting error, a June 11 article titled "School ballot issues pass," on page 1, should have said that renewing the sinking fund would add $500,000 to the facilities and maintenance fund.

Due to a reporting error, a June 11 article titled "Council considering options for Stover Road" on page 11, should have stated that City Manager Mike Weisner will invite property owners on Stover Road to the next city council meeting.

And due to an editing error, a June 11 cutline on page 26 should have listed Mike Weisner as the city manager.

Student cleans up preserve for scouting

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Alex Weller is on his way to joining the elite one percent of Boy Scouts in the country who earn the highest rank within the organization of Eagle Scout.

Since Weller joined Boy Scout Troop 11 five years ago and under the direction of Scout Master Tim May he has proven to have the drive it takes to obtain the honor.

May has known Weller since he was 11 years old and has seen him step up and mature into a young leader during that time.

"Actually just in the last two years, he's really taken off. He's a very good leader," he said.

The Eagle Scout distinction has several benefits, including an automatic pay raise in the military, and looks impressive on a resume, May said.

"It's the only rank you carry with you if you continue on in scouting. Once an Eagle Scout, always an Eagle Scout ," he said.

Weller needs a few more merit badges before he can earn the rank and must complete them before he turns 18.

"You can't work on badges or advancement past 18," Weller said.

He has earned a total of 19 merit badges, but needs 8 more before he can make Eagle Scout. However none of the badges left are required so his hardest work is already behind him.

Weller's Eagle Scout project, which is a step toward achieving the rank, took place May 10. The project is designed to strengthen the scouts leadership abilities because they must organize and observe the entire project themselves.

Weller and a group of 20 volunteers worked for three hours cleaning up the Jordan River Sedge Marsh preserve in East Jordan. In thanks for their participation, Weller provided a Subway lunch for the volunteers.

The area was a dumping ground for many years and by the end of the project a 40 yard dumpster was filled with garbage.

Once the area was clear, Weller and the other scouts chipped trails and created a nature viewing area, which will be used by the Friends of the Jordan and the Charlevoix Land Conservancy for studying eagle and osprey and teaching watershed education.

He is also redoing an old shed they tore apart and turning it into a bird watching station. He completed putting the roof on the shed Saturday, June 14, but said there are still other smaller tasks left to finish on the entire project.

In demonstrating his leadership abilities, Weller had to con-

Stay safe on the water this year

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix, like many cities on the Great Lakes, is visited every summer by many boaters.

Our maritime tradition in this community started with industry based around fishing and logging and has grown to include hundreds of boats each season. Our marina has seen boats that are four stories tall and are valued at several millions of dollars, as well as small metal rowboats that serve as transportation to the good fishing spots that surround us.

Thousands of people in the community take part in boating, either as a recreational activity or as part of their business. And with so many people on the water, safety issues arise often.

To help you and your family stay safe on the water this summer, here are some tips from the United States Coast Guard:

- Never drink and boat. This is pretty much self explanatory. Accidents have happened around Charlevoix due to drinking and boating.
- Always wear a lifejacket. Even if you are a good swimmer, a situation could arise where a lifejacket can save your life.
- Have a portable waterproof marine band radio. If an emergency comes up, you can contact the Coast Guard on channel 16.
- Check the weather. Michigan residents know, the weather in this state can go from great to horrifying in a matter of minutes.
- File a float plan. The Coast Guard suggests that you tell someone where you are going, your boat description, how many people are going with you, when you are expected to return and how you can be contacted. Do not file a float plan with the Coast Guard.

These tips should help keep you safe on the water and keep boating an enjoyable activity for all of us in Charlevoix.

Head of state libraries tours Charlevoix area

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

"Building a personal relationship face to face and not just picking up the phone or sending an e-mail is the way to go," said author and historian, Dr. William Anderson, director of the Michigan Department of History, Arts and Libraries during his recent one day tour of Charlevoix.

He was the guest of the Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees and he not only visited our library, but the Harsha House, the Earl Young houses, the Depot Museum and its new Heritage Garden, Castle Farms and Raven Hill.

"Our goal is to bring five state agencies together and create a cohesive department with a shared vision. The five agencies are the Michigan Libraries, Historical Centers, Films Office, Mackinac Island State Park and Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs," he said.

"Our department has already developed a web site for working parents for after school programs for their children, called Michigan Creative After School Experiences, www.micase.org. I find people love their local libraries and are generous in supporting them."

Speaking of local libraries, there are still people who think that a person walks into the library, checks out a book, goes home, reads it, returns it and that is all there is to it. That isn't so! The truth, according to Library Director Valerie Meyerson is far different.

Here are some real library stories:

1) A woman checked out a library book on dog obedience and when she returned it, she profusely apologized and showed us the book that had been chewed up by her dog!

2) Three teenage boys came into the library and explained that they had a dilemma. They live in Wolverine and they have no gas in their car. Could they have a job around the library and earn some gas money? Yes, they could. The library had 6,000 boxed newsletters that needed to be brought up from the basement and put in a car, so they had a job and were able to get home.

3) A woman came in to find information on pollinating irises. The reference librarian thought, "This is a tough one." At the same time a gentleman came in requesting a few books to be borrowed from outside our system on pollinating flowers. The librarian knew the gentleman happened to be a botanist and asked him if he would help the lady regarding the irises. He could and did.

No wonder the library is such a busy place! In addition to helping with computers, hosting a Children's Art Show on June 21, a book sale on June 27 and 28, a reception for local artist Jim Annis on Aug. 19, sponsoring a Summer Reading Club for children as well as a Story Hour and a Teens Summer Club and offering a meeting room to the public, all this information and more may be found at www.charlevoix.lib.mi.us.

In addition, the library board is now facing the prospect of working on the design phase to renovate the old middle school into the new library.

Before Dr. Anderson left, he said how much he enjoyed his visit to Charlevoix and how surprised he was to learn that there is so much going on in our community and especially how well all these ambitious projects are being run by competent volunteers.

That's good to hear!

Keep the flags up

Editor:

Me thinks John Alberts (Letters to the editor, June 11) doth protest too much. He cites lots of "proof" but ignores the fundamental fact that most of us enjoy seeing our Stars and Stripes, whether as a complete flag, as a lapel pin or with the "proud to be an American" endorsement.

The Constitution granted us the right to the pursuit of this small bit of happiness. We love and respect these symbols of our nation exactly as they are now being displayed, being neither "misused" nor "abused."

While John has the right to express his opinion; nothing gives him any right to tell any of us to "Take those flags down." I respectfully request that all of us keep them flying proudly throughout Charlevoix.

Sorry, Sergeant John, you're outnumbered and outranked!

Parade information

Editor:

The following is public information about parades in Charlevoix. Memorial Day, Independence Day, and Veterans Day parades and services are military oriented and as such are sponsored by American Legion Post 226 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153.

In earlier days each post had a Captain of the Color Guard and Rifle Squad who was responsible for organizing and coordinating activities. After the death of the American Legion Captain, the current VFW Captain was appointed as American Legion Captain also.

The captain is responsible for the combined American Legion-VFW Color Guard and Rifle Squad in all of its activities, as well as organizing the parade's contents, services and obtaining permits.

Memorial and Independence Day parades begin at 10 a.m. at the American Legion Post on East Garfield Street. Veterans Day parades begin at 11 a.m. on West Antrim Street.

If you have questions about any of these parades, call Charlie Butcher, Captain of the combined Color Guard and Rifle Squads, at (231) 547-4724.

Stop dumping trash

Editor:

Did you know that Michigan has a right to say that Toronto cannot dump tons of trash into our state? I think we, as a state, should stand up to that right! Michigan, does not have enough space in one big city like Detroit, even though it's big, to hold 1.2 million tons of trash. Even yet, Michigan is receiving 23,750 tons of trash a week! That's a lot of trash! Plus, Toronto is sending enough trash to last 20 years!

Last fall Toronto, Canada dumped 1.6 million cubic yards of trash into our landfills! We cannot hold this much garbage in one landfill; we're going to need at least 5 landfills! Toronto should have someplace to put their garbage, besides Michigan.

If Toronto stops, they will be saving a lot of money! Did you know that Toronto is spending $40 million just to ship tons of trash to Michigan? If Toronto stops, the environment in Detroit will become nicer too. If Toronto stops they will have no place to put their 1.2 million tons of trash. So, instead of putting trash in Michigan they could try to reduce the amount of trash they are disposing.

In conclusion, I really think we should put an end to this dilemma.

Raise drop out age

Editor:

My name is Trisha Wood. I am a sixth grade student and I strongly believe that Governor Granholm should raise the age from 16 to 18 to be able to drop out of high school. I have a few reasons listed below why she should.

My first reason is you can't do a lot of things until you are 18 anyway. Like you can't vote, you can't smoke and you can't go to the casino.

Another reason is they might spend their day getting into trouble. How could they get in trouble? By doing something that they are not supposed to be doing. Like they could be smoking, drinking, and partying around. Who knows? They won't be around good role models because their teachers are their role models when they are at school. Their friends are their role models too. Then, when they're not at school they could get caught up in drugs.

One more reason is that if you don't finish school you won't get as good as a job as they could of. Therefore, you won't be able to have extra spending money. Some people may not hire you because you don't know as much as you could. Also, some people won't hire you without a high school diploma.

This is why I strongly believe that Governor Granholm should raise the age from 16 to 18. If you read this you should be able to understand why I think this.

Stoplights needed

Editor:

Wouldn't it be better for Charlevoix to be safer? Traffic is so backed up and we only have two stoplights in town.

First we need traffic to run smoother. In the summer, the traffic is backed way up, and it takes too much time to get across town. It would also allow pedestrians to cross the street.

Another thing is to make left turns easier on Bridge Street. It is hard to make a left turn because of the traffic. Between 5 and 6 p.m. the traffic is really busy because it is rush hour.

Most important we want to help prevent more accidents. My dad has gotten in an accident by Pizza Hut because he couldn't see. My sister has also gotten into an accident on the intersection of Bridge Street and East Garfield. There has been more than one accident on one day because the people driving couldn't see.

Stoplights are needed and would help make Charlevoix a safer place. I hope the city officials will look into this.

Don't raise drop out age

Editor:

Did you know that the state is trying to change the drop out of school age to 18? I think it should stay 16.

If they change the age then students won't be doing drugs in school. For example, I know of a high school that is having trouble with students doing drugs in the bathroom. At 18 you are legally allowed to smoke.

The students can still do drugs after school. By changing the drop out age to 18 it won't help out with drugs.

If a 16-year-old wants to throw their life away, it's their choice. They should be able to make their own decisions. They will have to make big decisions their whole life. They have to choose to go to college, what job they want and so forth. If they were really desperate Glen's will hire people without a high school diploma.

If it's 18 they won't care about school and they will fail. Our state is already in debt. The state will waste money on students and it won't get better. The state pays about $7,000 to put one student through school for one year.

Also, if it's 18 we would've wasted money on 62 students that dropped out at Timberlane High School last year.

People have rights and students are people. Citizens have equality. They have protection of law and equal opportunity of jobs. They also have individual rights.

Furthermore, citizens can show their rights. We have to help the money problems not encourage the problems. The citizens need to make decisions. Now, it's all up to the citizens of our state.

Please go vote.

Students get lesson in quilts

A group of quiltmakers from Charlevoix in conjunction with children from the elementary school worked together during the school year on a quilt project for the elementary library.

A new children's hook titled "The Quiltmaker's Gift" spurred the idea. The quiltmaker in the story makes beautiful quilts that she gives to people in need.

In Septemher, the quiltmakers challenged the classes at the elementary school to come up with a project that they could do as a class to help others.

As the classes completed their projects, teachers let the quilters know and a block was created for the quilt in honor of that class.

Some of the projects completed were: participation in the can drive for the community food pantry, donation of new books to the Charlevoix Public Library, donations to the Humane Society, special valentines created and mailed to the Veterans Hospital and a child's quilt made to be donated to the hospital.

The quilt ended up having over 20 blocks sewn and was given to the children Monday, June 9. It will be on display in the elementary library where the children can check out the book to read and admire their part in the quilt.

New youth pastors at Assembly of God

The Charlevoix Assembly of God Church is excited to welcome their new Youth Pastor, Dominic Moes, and his wife Amanda.

They will officially became a part of the church June 8.

Dom and Mandy were raised in northern Michigan. Dom's maternal grandfather, Rev. John Spohn, was a minister in Boyne City for over 25 years.

His parents are Nick and Deneille Moes of Boyne City.

Mandy parents are Dale and Sandy Rhea of Petoskey. The Rhea's are a part of the gospel musical group Chandler Ridge.

Dom and Mandy bring with them over four years of experience ministering to youth and look forward to helping the teens in the Charlevoix area find strength, hope, purpose and a sense of belonging through a mentoring model of Christian leadership.

Dom and Mandy have found that a healthy mentoring relationship helps young people in all areas of life.

They desire to be a bridge that will serve to strengthen families, to "turn and reconcile the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers." (Malachi 4:6) They find it extremely important for teens to have a safe place to turn to, someone to listen to them and a place that offers teaching life skills relative to their age or stage in life.

Their long term ministry vision is to equip young people to be connected and serve in their community, to provide after school programs, to get involved in local and foreign mission, and to find ways to work together with other youth groups in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Assembly of God Youth Group meets 7 p.m., Wednesdays and is designed for sixth to twelfth grade students.

Other activities and outreaches will be scheduled monthly. For more information call the church office at (231) 547-6430.

Northwest Advanced Band honored again

Just when parents thought the schools were getting ready for a three month summer break, the Northwest Academy Advanced Band has received a prestigious invitation to perform at the winter MSBOA Conference for music educators in Ann Arbor.

This is an honor that is reserved for only the finest bands in Michigan. The band will be performing in Hill Auditorium on Thursday, Jan. 22, 2004 or Friday, Jan. 23, 2004. This will mean that all members of the advanced band will begin preparing this summer with private lessons or group lessons to help them hone their skills and be in top performance shape when they return to school in the fall.

"This is a credit to all the hard work the band has done up to this point to receive this invitation" Gary Stutzman, the director of bands at the school, said. "The really sad thing is that the six students that graduated this year were really instrumental in helping us get this invitation and they will be off in college when we perform."

Stutzman is hoping to have some of the graduates join the band for part of the performance next January. The band is very small in number, but their performance results over the past four years have been great.

Over the last four years the band has received "I's" for three out of the four years. The advanced band is now being recognized as one of the finest small bands in the state with only 20 members.

Northwest Academy is a public school academy that was chartered in 1996 and Gary Stutzman was hired to offer instrumental music as an option for the students whot enrolled. The first year of the program featured a beginning band made up of the entire sixth grade class and an advanced band made up of students that had enrolled with some background in playing in band.

The band program's first attempt at performing in the high school division of the MSBOA festival was 1999 and they received a first division rating and qualified for the state "B&O" festival.

That April, two days before the band was to perform at the state festival in Gaylord, Stutzman's father passed away unexpectedly. It is very difficult to change times and dates of the performance, so the decision was made for the show to go on.

Dwight Smith, a retired band director, came in to direct the band while Stutzman attended to his family crisis and on Friday the funeral was given in the morning and the band performed that afternoon.

The band missed receiving a first division rating by half a grade in the concert and a first division rating in sight reading for a final II division rating. The band at that time was made up of several eighth grade students who are now senior members of the band this year.

You can hear many of the members from this group at 8 p.m., Thursday when the Northwest Academy Jazz Ensemble opens the Thursday night concerts in the park at the Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

Ragamuffin troupe to perform Annie, Jr.

"The sun will come out, tomorrow," and if not out your window then surely on the weekend of June 27 and 28 on the stage at the new Charlevoix High School auditorium, as the Ragamuffin Children's Theater and Choir perform their rendition of the Broadway musical, Annie, Jr.

Forty-five enthusiastic Ragamuffins from Charlevoix, Petoskey, and Harbor Springs, will be joined by a cast of local high school students and adults, to present a professional choreographed show, sure to delight all ages.

The production of Annie, Jr. will follow a week long Fine Arts Day Camp, which is open to all area community youth, ages 8-18, who are interested in being trained in the performing arts.

Participants in the Performing Arts Day Camp will then be given the privilege of taking part in the presentation of Annie, Jr. at the end of the week, along with the members of Ragamuffin Theater.

The Fine Arts Day Camp will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., beginning Monday, June 23, and continue through Saturday, culminating with the final performance of the musical at 7 p.m., June 28 on Saturday.

Registration for the Day Camp has already begun, and will be limited to a small number. For those interested, please call 237-9686 to secure your child's involvement.

The cost is $80 for non-members and includes items needed for the show.

Ragamuffin Children's Theatre is a local non-profit organization dedicated to training up aspiring young artists by providing both weekly teaching sessions and a variety of performance opportunities.

Director Kathleen Whittaker believes in the potential of every willing child and devotes herself to the enrichment of their lives through the development of their talents and gifts.

"We are expanding by the minute," said Whittaker, who began the Theater Troupe just under three years ago. "I have girls carpooling from both the Petoskey and Harbor Springs area, and in the fall will offer classes in Petoskey for the many others who are interested in joining. It's been so much fun watching the girls experience the joy that comes from discovering the gifts God gave them, while leaning the skills needed to perfect their craft."

Whittaker added, "We have been blessed by the folks at First Baptist Church in Charlevoix who allow us to use their facility for training and want to thank all those who generously sponsor us in our efforts to perform Annie, Jr. at the new High School Auditorium. Without your sponsorship, the cost would be too high and the students I work with would be denied the opportunity to perform on such a wonderful stage."

For those interested in learning more about Ragamuffin Theater, you can go to its web site at: www.RagamuffinTheatre.com or call 237-9686.

Admission for Annie, Jr. will be free, with donations accepted.

Basketball Minds program adds familiar faces

By JEREMY MCBAIN

Charlevoix resident Mike Dennis has made some expansions to his seasonal basketball program this year by including some familiar local faces.

This year students in Dennis' Basketball Minds Summer Camp will not only get one-on-one training from him, but they will also get training from Scott Parrish and Jim Shepherd, two well-known former Charlevoix High School players.

"First, these two are known throughout northern Michigan," Dennis said. "Secondly, they both continue to play in college. To say you have college players running your camps is great."

Parrish is a student and basketball player at Lake Superior State University and Shepherd is a student and basketball players at Wesleyan University in Connecticut.

Airport parking lot to get renovations

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "They've actually given us a really workable construction plan, so I think it will go quite quickly."
> Karyn Brooks, Airport manager

People parking their cars at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport this winter will not have to worry about digging out of its earthy lot next spring.

Airport construction to build a 428 space parking lot on the property will begin and end before the year is up.

"We are anticipating construction to being by late August or early September," said Airport Manager Karyn Brooks.

Currently design plans of the parking lot are being finalized and, as soon as construction begins, the airport was given an estimated 70 day construction time frame for the entire project.

"They've actually given us a really workable construction fazing plan, so I think it will go quite quickly," she said.

Although it is not included in the current design plan, phase two of the project will include a gravel overflow lot. The lot will be used during the paving of the main parking lot in the fall.

Brooks said while the main lot is being paved, cars can either be taken to the owners homes or moved to the overflow lot, which will be fenced in and covered with gravel by then. She said this will keep the cars out of the construction area and away from damage.

The true test of the parking lot's use will come next spring when the weather begins to warm.

With the current parking turf, Brooks said when the frost melted in the spring many of the cars that had been parked at the airport all winter got stuck in the thawing ground.

But before the test of the new surface can begin, MDOT still has to determine who will win the bid to do the project.

"We don't have an assigned contractor as of yet," Brooks said.

She said MDOT will inform the airport of the winning bidding by the week of July 7.

Brooks said the project did not happen until now because of the availability of funding. A year ago last October, the airport was granted primary airport status. Prior to that under a lesser status, the airport could only qualify for $150,000 in block grants.

The project is estimated to cost anywhere from $900,000 to $1 million and was funded through a combination of local and state money. The local portion will come from airport revenues.

In order to receive government funding, the airport had to donate some of the funds in its budget not being used.

At a Charlevoix City Council meeting June 2, members approved the airport's request to transfer $100,000 of its own money over to the Cherry Capital airport of Traverse City and the Delta County Airport of Escanaba, who will then use the money to fund their own airport upgrades.

As part of the arrangement with the Michigan Department of Transportation, Bureau of Aeronautics division, the Charlevoix airport had to agree to trade an equal amount of money it will receive from the government from its Federal Airport Improvement funds.

"It was an excess of funds we had from our total available funds from last year," Brooks said.

By assigning the money to the airport of their choosing, Brooks said they had the opportunity to make the funds go toward local airport improvement projects, otherwise the money could have gone anywhere.

"We had option to reserve those or assign them to airports of our choosing," Brooks said.

Funding for new library may go to vote

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "We're trying to get funding from as many possible sources and support as we can."
> Valerie Meyerson, Library director

Discussion about funding the new library took center stage at the June 5 library meeting, once a purchase agreement for the old middle school property was reached.

Library Director Valerie Meyerson said in order to raise the money needed to buy the property and renovate the old structure, the library is trying to touch the community as broadly as possible.

"We're trying to get funding from as many possible sources and support as we can," she said.

At the meeting, the library board of trustees split up into three subcommittees and will each focus on different funding areas including millage and bonding, capital campaigns and communication.

Meyerson said she could not give cost estimates for the new library at this time because the design plans have not been set.

"Once we get the design part done, then they cost that out and we'll know the price. There's been figures flying out all over the place, and I'd hate to put another one out there," she said.

Meyerson hopes the design partnership of Engberg Anderson will have the designs laid out and groundwork completed by the end of the summer.

"We're looking at being cost effective and giving the community a great place for a reasonable amount of money," she said.

Meyerson said capital campaigns are the first phase of the project and will consist of raising state or federal grants, public grants, private foundation grants and private donations.

The library was considering using an outside organization, called the Breton Group, to generate revenue toward the project. It is a professional fund-raising organization specializing in library fund-raisers, but the trustees decided that they would look closer to home first.

"I think there are resources in the community that can help us without going to that. We need someone who knows the community and is willing to help out," she said.

Once collecting from capital campaigning, the library will look to its district for support by way of a millage.

Bonds will also generate funds for the project. Meyerson said they hope to fund the majority of the project by selling library bonds on the market.

However, both the millage and bonding issues will have to be put to a district wide vote which includes the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, parts of Eveline Township and parts of Hayes Township.

"We hope we can show them we are being responsible and will build them a really good resource," she said.

Meyerson said by the time the millage and bonds are taken to a vote, they will know how much they need to ask for from the community.

"At that point we'll know how much we've raised in our capital campaign and we'll have a good estimate on how much our design will be," she said.

Voting is projected to be a year and a half away, but their time frame may be altered due to a bill being proposed in the Michigan legislature. Legislators are talking about limiting the number of elections in a year to no more than four, meaning holding a special election to vote on the millage and bonds could be disallowed.

"It could happen fairly soon. That may change our timing a bit because we can't hold an election when we want," she said.

Deputy needed for Beaver Island

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is looking for another deputy for Beaver Island due to the departure of Deputy Mike Russell.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said Russell left the island on June 6 after over eight years of service to the county and people of Beaver Island. Lasater said he was informed of Russell's intentions about two months ago.

"He indicated when he was assigned over there he wanted to stay until his children left high school. He fulfilled his goal and did a fine job while he was there," Lasater said.

Russell's youngest daughter, Kristen Russell, graduated from high school this year.

Joe Moore, chairperson of Beaver Island Emergency Medical Services said the Russell family will be missed.

"I think he was an absolutely fabulous deputy and an even better paramedic. So was Bev (his wife)," Moore said.

In the meantime, Lasater is in the process of interviewing applicants for the position. Last week he took a candidate over to the island for a tour.

While this search continues, Charlevoix Sheriff Deputy Bill Church is "holding down the fort," Lasater said.

Church was a seasonal officer on the island last year before accepting a full time position with the sheriff's office this year on the mainland.

Moore said the Russells have relocated to the Battle Creek area.

Carano informs public on epilepsy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "People still need an update...they don't know what to do."
> Nancy Carano,
> Charlevoix resident

Charlevoix resident Nancy Carano wants to teach you the facts about epilepsy and help those who have it in the process.

"People still need an update, even with fire departments. They don't know what to do," she said. "I've even tried to go to the schools to give information, but they don't seem to be interested. But, I will keep working on it. I am a pest."

One of the big problems with getting this information out is trying to get people to understand epilepsy is more than a big seizure that sends a person to the ground with convulsions — called Grand Mal. People can have epileptic seizure that look almost like they are just "zoning out" for a moment — called a Petit Mal seizure.

"Sometimes people can become combative and they are mistakenly put in jail," Carano said.

Other types of epileptic seizures according to information supplied by Carano are:

- Simple Partial — Jerking that begins in the fingers, toes or other parts of the body that can't be stopped. The person is awake and aware for it and may "see or "hear" things that aren't there
- Complex Partial — It often starts with a blank stare, followed by chewing and repeated movements that seem out of place and mechanical. The person is unaware of surroundings and may seem dazed and mumble. They may also pick at their clothing, pick up and put down objects or try to take their clothing off. It lasts only for a minute or two.
- Atonic — This is a sudden loss of muscle tone that makes the person collapse and fall. After a few minutes they recover, regain consciousness and can walk and stand again.
- Myoclonic — This is sudden or brief muscle jerks. They may be mild and affect only part of the body or massive enough to throw the person to the floor.
- Infantile Spasms — These are quick, sudden jerking movements that start between 3 months and 3 years of a person's life.

According to the information, epilepsy is a disease where the nerves in the brain stop firing electrical impulses correctly.

Carano has an interest in these because she, along with millions of others in the world, suffers from epilepsy.

When she was about 20 years old, Carano said she had a mild seizure and blanked out. She never knew what it was for nine years, until the day came when she had a Grand Mal seizure.

"I was glad I found out what was going on, but I was ticked to be put on medicine and given tests. The medicine can make you extremely tired, forget words and be a weight gainer. You are like a zombie," she said. "But, you adjust."

When one medicine doesn't work or the side-effects are too much, she said you switch to a different type of medicine and try to get used to the new one.

Resident starts stroll for epilepsy

"That is your routine," she said.

In addition to medicine, another treatment for epilepsy includes a Vagus Nerve Stimulator. This is an operation where a device is placed near the collar bone with a wire to the brain. It is similar to a defibrillator and helps short circuit seizures.

Another option is brain surgery. Carano was given this option, but she has opted to stick with the medications.

In the 20 years she has been having seizures, Carano said she has only had a Grand Mal five times.

"I consider myself lucky because it has always been in public so I get help," she said.

While there are many different kinds of epilepsy, Carano added in 60 percent of cases, there is no known cause for them. In a majority of the cases where there is a known cause, it was due to a head injury.

In Carano's case, this was when she fell from a bannister at the age of 4 and fractured her skull.

In her efforts to educate the public on epilepsy, Carano also wants to help others with it.

Before she came to Charlevoix, Carano used to take part in a stroll for epilepsy in Royal Oak at the Detroit Zoo. This gave people with epilepsy a chance to meet others like themselves and find out more about the disorder.

But, Charlevoix and northern Michigan did not have an event like this, not until Carano decided to create one.

"I had no idea of the work involved, but I said I would do it," Carano said.

So Carano scoured the area for donations and set up the first Summer Stroll for Epilepsy at Bay Harbor last year. And the event was such a success, she decided to do it again this year.

The Summer Stroll for Epilepsy will be June 28 at Bay Harbor Resort. Registration starts at 9 a.m. and the stroll kicks off at 10 a.m.

A minimum donation of $40 is required to participate in the stroll and the average stroller raises $140.

Carano said the money raised helps pay for many programs and serves for people with epilepsy. These include: public education and awareness, camps and family activity days, a public policy advocate, education and consultation and mobility programs.

People from throughout Michigan take part in this summer event, Carano said.

If you would like more information about the Summer Stroll for Epilepsy, call (800) 377-6226.

735 East Michigan Avenue
Lansing, Michigan 48912
Phone: (517) 241-7207
TTY: (800) 382-4568

On or about July 8, 2003 the Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release Federal funds under Title II of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990, as amended, and the Risk-Sharing Program pursuant to Section 542(c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 for the following development:

May St. Apartments, Charlevoix / Charlevoix County
24 Family Units of New Construction

$356,160 MSHDA HOME Funds
$1,101,000 MSHDA Mortgage

MSHDA intends to award to Mercer Avenue Limited Dividend Housing Association Limited Partnership up to $356,160 of HOME funds. The funds will be used to construct a 24-unit family community, located along the west side of May Street at the intersection of May Street and Hampton Road; in the southern section of the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County. The proposed development will have 12 two-bedroom, two-bath and 12 one-bedroom, one-bath apartments, in 2 two-story buildings for a total of 24 family apartment units. Unit and development amenities will include mini-blinds, dishwashers, washers and dryers, cable hookups, balconies and patios, a tot lot, maintenance building, 30% brick exterior, and lawn irrigation.

Notice of FONSI

MSHDA also gives notice that it has been determined that the release of funds for the above development will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly MSHDA has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA, 42 USC 4321). The reasons for the decision not to prepare such a Statement are as follows:

No significant environmental adverse impacts or hazards were identified in the course of the environmental review.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the proposed development has been made by MSHDA, which documents the environmental review of the proposed development and more fully sets forth the reasons why such e Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at MSHDA, 735 E. Michigan Avenue, Lansing, Michigan 48912. The records are available for public examination and copying upon request between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Please contact John Hundt of MSHDA at (517) 241-7207 or TTY (800) 382-4568 for further information.

No further environmental review of such development is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration. Such written comments should be received at MSHDA's address listed above on or before July 7, 2003. All such comments so received will be considered and MSHDA will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the proposed project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

Release of Funds

Mercer Avenue Limited Dividend Housing Association Limited Partnership will undertake the development described above with HOME Program funds allocated to the State of Michigan (MSHDA) under Title II of the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990, and the Risk-Sharing Program pursuant to Section 542(c) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992. MSHDA is certifying to HUD that MSHDA and Marjorie Green, Director of the Office of Multifamily Development & Construction, and James L. Logue III, in his official capacity as Executive Director of MSHDA, are consenting to accept the jurisdiction of Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval Mercer Avenue Limited Dividend Housing Association Limited Partnership may use the HOME and Risk-Sharing funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objections To State and HUD Release of Funds

HUD will accept an objection to its approval only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or (b) that applicant's environmental review record for the development indicated omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the development in the environmental review process; or (c) other specific grounds in HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58.75. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to: Les Berman, HUD Detroit Area Office, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.

Weller on his way to Eagle Scout honor

WELLER

tact Top Rank Disposal and Town and Country Builders Inc. to donate the dumpster and wood.

Weller decided to do the land conservancy project after Jo Anne Beemon suggested the area, which looks out over the Jordan River Valley, was in need of help.

"I went out there and looked at it and said this really has to be done," he said.

This was Weller's second attempt at the project. He tried the same project last June, but ran into one major problem — rain.

"He had (it planned for) this one weekend and it just downpoured," May said.

Weller didn't want to do it later in the summer because of grass growth and heat, so he postponed it until this year.

Weller has already proved his leadership skills in the past. He helped lead other scouts when he was a Den Chief at Camp Greilick, a scout camp outside Traverse City, and he worked with fourth and fifth grade cub scouts for two summers there.

"It's just like a summer job, but you have to go through a certain acceptance process," May said.

Weller has dedicated a lot of time to being a Boy Scout. May said scouting takes up a couple hours a week and a few weekends every now and then.

"There's a lot to learn and a lot of things you carry with you," May said.

Aside from the physical activities scouts learn, they take away valuable community minded lessons such as citizenship, respect for people and being helpful.

Once Weller does earn Eagle Scout, he plans to further his involvement. Eagle Scouts can earn as many as three add-ons called palms.

"I'm hoping to get at least two," he said.

> "It's the only rank you carry with you if you continue on in scouting. Once an Eagle Scout, always an Eagle Scout."

Intense training the focus for Dennis

BASKETBALL

nis also brings some impressive basketball credentials to the court and his students. He is a former member of the Charlevoix High School basketball team, is currently an assistant basketball coach at Kalamazoo Community College and helps run the Rayder Basketball Camp in the summer at the high school.

Dennis is also a student at Western Michigan University, where he spends his falls and winters studying for a degree in business education.

Dennis utilizes two other part time trainers for instruction: Betsy Dennis and Phil Steen.

He said his Basketball Minds Summer Camp differs from other basketball summer camps not only with the caliber of coaches he has training the students, but also with intense private instruction.

"Students can plan on working for an hour on fundamental skills. Basically these are private workouts," Dennis said.

Students also learn the proper attitude for the game and life.

"We teach life is more than a game by teaching positive attitudes and how decisions affect your life," he said.

One of his successes is current Charlevoix High School varsity basketball player Bryce Daly.

All training sessions at Basketball Minds are by appointment and are given at the First Baptist Church on M-66. For more information about the program or to sign up, contact Dennis at (231) 437-0052 or e-mail basketballminds@mailcity.com.

School district cuts spending

board, the district expects to bring in $11,479,250 in total revenue next year, but accumulate $12,314,260 in total expenditures. This will leave the district with an $835,010 deficit.

"Usually we have a balanced budget where we take in what we spend," she said.

Boss said the district will cover the monetary difference with their fund balance, a surplus of money carried over from year to year. The fund balance is expected to have over $2 million in it as of July 1.

"Across the state, school districts are feeling the financial pinch. We've been fortunate in Charlevoix," she said.

Boss said Charlevoix's fortunes are the product of good financial planning.

She said every year they overestimate costs in an effort to have money carry over from one year to the next. A 15 percent fund balance is usually accounted into the budget, but given the current budget crunch, this year it was reduced to 10 percent.

"We would like to be able to maintain a 15 percent fund balance," Boss said.

The fund balance will most likely change after the district is audited. Michigan law states that a certified public accountant must audit the school district each year.

After that audit, Boss is expecting to be able to add money to the fund balance carried over from last year.

"I don't spend 100 percent of my budget every year," she said.

Board agrees to city's offer

SCHOOL

from the start.

"It's been the board's intentions from the beginning that if any other public entity wanted it, we would make that happen and I think we did," he said.

There is still more work that needs to be done before both parties will sign the final purchase agreement. Legal issues dealing with environmental problems and property titles still need to be cleared up.

"There are some small housekeeping things that have to be taken care of in keeping with the purchase agreement," Halverson said.

A nearly 100-year-old piece of land which the school does not own sits in the middle of the proposed property. Lot 15's title goes back to 1906 and the parcel's owners are unknown.

Before the school can turn over the property, its lawyers must attempt to contact the previous land owners, even though Halverson said it is unlikely they still live in the area.

"Before you sell a piece of property, the prudent thing to do is make sure you have titles to all the property," he said. "This is not uncommon for cities that have older parcels. It still requires some legal proceeding to occur to get that title squared away."

Work on gaining the title began June 11.

Discussion over the old middle school's future in Charlevoix has been happening for quite some time.

"Informally it is an issue that goes back to the original millage with the new high school. At some levels this discussion has been going on for several years," Halverson said.

Within the last year the middle school's future has been given direction by the proposed bids from the city and developer Bill Sherman. While Sherman's $800,000 offer was considered, the city's offer seemed more conducive with the school board's plans and the city of Charlevoix's future.

"The nice part of (the city's) offer is it gives us flexibility and fits nicely with our plans. It also keeps a historic building in our community," Telgenhof said.

City Mayor Gabe Campbell said he was glad to see the city entities come together for the project.

"It shows that there's cooperation between all the four groups in the city and that's what you have to have to get ahead," he said. "I think it's good deal all around."

Simons awarded Purple Heart

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Locals

Joe Simons still enjoys being by the water despite being on two different sinking ships during World War II.

"I guess it's very obvious from here I've always liked water," Simons said while standing on the back porch of his home which sits on Lake Charlevoix.

Simons, who likes to fish, is an ex-Navy man with his fare share of war stories on the high sea, one which finally came full circle two weeks ago when he recieved a Purple Heart award.

The story began when he was aboard the USS Lansdale off the coast of Algiers on April 20, 1944 during a campaign in World War II when his ship was attacked by German aerial torpedo bombers.

The ship sank and as Simons was trying to get off, a projectile rolled down the deck crushing his left ankle. He and three other men waded in the water for four hours until they were finally picked up by a Coast Guard ship.

Out of the crew of 200 aboard the ship, Simons was part of the lucky half that made it off alive.

"Most of the guys that were killed were below deck. I thank the Lord I wasn't below deck," he said.

This was not the first time Simons had seen this sight. He was on the USS Murphy in the Atlantic about six months earlier when it was attacked and sank. After 30 days of being on leave, he was put on the Lansdale, not knowing it too would meet the same fate.

All the crew members of the Lansdale were awarded Purple Hearts, even those that died in the bombing, but Simons refused the medal. He was injured during the incident.

"Too many of my buddies were killed. The only thing they would receive was a Purple Heart posthumously. Being young and foolish, I basically told them to stick it," he said.

As an injury from this sinking became worse over the years, Simons changed his mind about the medal and realized he could receive compensation for his injury.

Nearly two months ago, he wrote a letter to the government asking for his Purple Heart and

Residents helping Trimper family

A benefit for the Trimper family and Metachromatic Leukodystrophy (MLD) research will be June 29 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. (Courtesy photo)

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Jeff and Jane Trimper have become advocates for a deadly genetic disease that less than a year ago they knew nothing about.

That is, until last fall when they found out their three children have it.

The Trimpers first learned about Metachromatic Leukodystrophy (MLD) when doctors found an abnormality in their 8-year-old son Max's brain.

"We were very naive to the medical world," Jane said.

MLD is the result of an enzyme deficiency that allows for destruction of the myelin sheath around nerve fibers and leads to mental and physical deterioration and eventually death.

Jane said at Max's juvenile stage, his time is limited.

"If you make it to age 12 you're doing pretty well," she said.

But matters got worse for the family as the genetic disease, which effects only one in 100,000 people, has struck the Trimper family three times.

Two weeks after Max was diagnosed on Oct. 25, 2003, the Trimper's took their other two children, Maddie, 5, and Sam, 4, for testing and the results came back positive. Although Jane and Jeff did not know it, they both had carrier genes for MLD.

Charlevoix resident Sam Supernaw Jr. said when he heard all three children had MLD, he knew he had to do more than offer support. Supernaw attended Charlevoix High School with Jeff Trimper, who now lives in Stanton.

"When we all heard about the first child, we were of course devastated. We wanted to do anything we could to help the family. Then a short time later, when they found out their other two children had the disease, it wasn't enough to say we were going to be there," he said.

Supernaw rallied some of Jeff's other high school friends and formed the Charlevoix Coalition Against MLD. In January, they began planning a fund-raising event that will take place from 2 to 6 p.m., June 29 at Castle Farms on M-66. Jane and Jeff will both be in attendance.

"We felt like a group of us could do more together than we could do individually," he said.

The $25 tickets include food, entertainment and soft drinks. There will be a cash bar as well serviced with beer and wine.

Supernaw said they printed 700 tickets for the event and are hoping to sell them all which would raise $17,500 for the Trimpers. All proceeds from the benefit will either go to the Trimper's directly or MLD research.

"We will leave it up to the Trimper's, but we want a good portion to go to the family and the kids to improve the children's quality of life," he said. "If we had our choice, we would give 70 to 80 percent to the family."

A silent auction will take place throughout the day where attendees can bid on various items such as weekend trips, golf packages and a leather chair and ottoman. The items were donated from businesses, people and artists in the Charlevoix community.

A live auction also will take place from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

From 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., an orchestra composed of young adults will play. They are recording the concert that day and will later sell it with the proceeds going to the Trimpers.

While Supernaw would like to see a good portion of the day's proceeds go to the family, he believes the Trimpers will want part of it to go toward MLD research and a greater understanding of the disease, which they believe is relatively unknown.

"They are working very diligently to try to change that and get (MLD) nationally recognized. I don't think Jeff and Jane are going to give up until that happens," he said.

This is not the first benefit Charlevoix residents have organized for the Trimper children. Charlevoix State Bank began a

Some still believe in playground behavior

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

I tried to keep quiet, hoping the trend would pass like all other annoying trends do.

But, I cannot contain myself any longer. I must speak out before I burst out in laughter the next time I see it in public.

It shouldn't surprise me that this trend happened. It is common for my fellow Americans to be a little reactionary at times.

The trend I am speaking of is this desire to bash anyone that disagreed with our country's decision to go to war against Iraq. It is a trend that whose time has come to disappear.

Now, I am not going to talk about whether the war in Iraq was just or unjust. That is a different column for a different day.

What I am concerned with is how we seemed to be unable to let bygones be bygones when it came to that war, especially in regards to France. We just can't seem to let it go that the French did not participate in that war and opposed our actions in Iraq.

I have seen and heard French jokes on television, in the newspapers, magazines and on the street. I have even seen some of our so-called lawmakers using up valuable public time trying to change the names of popular foods in their cafeteria, like French fries.

Some businesses around the country have got into the act by banning French products, such as wine and even mustard. And some restaurants — including some in northern Michigan — have changed the names of some French-type foods such as French fries to "Freedom Fries."

It was at this point things got a little surreal for me.

What the heck is going on in our country, I found myself thinking. Don't people realize that it was not only France that opposed the war. Polls show a majority of the world opposed our actions in Iraq, regardless of all the talk about a "Coalition of the Willing."

Furthermore, don't people realize that without our friends, the French, we would still be saying "God Save the Queen" instead of "God Bless America?" And we would not have our cherished symbol of freedom, the Statue of Liberty, without our friends in France. Besides, so they didn't support our war. Who cares? They are a separate country and can do and say what they please.

"Have we all become the equivalent of grade schoolers at recess?" I thought.

But, I believed it would pass when the war was over. I hoped it would pass. For the sake of our national sanity, I hoped. I never spoke these things publicly, because I figured we would stop when the war was over.

So here we are, the war is officially over — even though our troops keep getting killed in Iraq — and the bashing has not stopped. It is like we can't help it. It is like we are gloating.

I just don't understand it.

I grew up being taught that it is not proper to be a poor sport. That you should always hold your head high, no matter what the outcome, and always respect your opponent.

This teaching also included those you disagreed with. I was always taught by my mother that it is not polite to call people names, no matter what you thought of them or what the argument was. I was taught, if you had to argue by calling someone names, then your argument is flawed.

And this is how I acted or at least tried to act, when I was a wee lad of 7 years old and into my adult years. Sure there were those moments on the playground when I would join in the teasing of someone or calling someone a naughty name. But, I was just a child after all.

Now we have grown adults acting like those children on the playground.

"I don't like you because you didn't help me beat up that other boy. You're a big poo-poo head. Now give me my ball, because you can't play with me anymore," is basically the argument I am hearing about France.

Usually, this argument is followed with the person making an ugly contorted face and saying, "This is you!"

But, to be fair, maybe some of these adults didn't have a mother that taught them to be good sports. Or maybe they still haven't grown out of that playground mentality.

In that case, while you guys fight over the sandbox and throw mud balls at everyone you think is icky, I'll be out playing kick-ball with the other kids in school. That is if they will have me; those mud-throwing kids have given my class a bad image in the school.

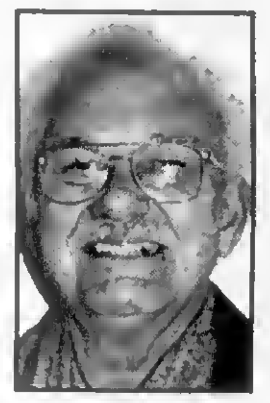
Enjoy the Chestnut trees around the Charlevoix area



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

There are all kinds of chestnuts.

An old stale joke can be a chestnut; so can a horse of the right color "grayish brown slightly redder than coconut and darker than new cocoa" according to Webster. Even the callouses on the inside of horses legs are called Chestnuts, as is the tropical breadfruit in Puerto Rico. Then there are the Chestnuts I like; the dozen or so kinds of trees around the world bearing large nuts that are about the color of that horse mentioned above.

The Chestnut trees fall neatly into two categories, which have almost nothing in common except the name. Both kinds are to be found in northern Michigan and each is of some interest.

What is commonly called the American Chestnut (there are European and Japanese relatives) was one of the most important trees in the Eastern forests of the United States. In the years after 1905 most of the American Chestnuts began to die of a disease introduced from Europe and Asia.

Chestnut Blight, as the disease was called, arrived in Michigan about 1930. American Chestnut trees survive nicely in a number of places in the northern lower peninsula and it is even possible to buy the nuts on occasion. The disease will never eliminate the American Chestnut, but it has drastically reduced the numbers. Up until the 20th century, the nuts were so numerous they were used for animal feed and so important they produced songs about "chestnuts roasting on an open fire" and "chestnuts popping on the hearth." Most of the chestnuts we now enjoy at Christmas are imported from Europe.

The more fascinating if not the more famous of the chestnuts we can find locally is the so-called Horse Chestnut (so-called because it was once used to treat respiratory conditions in horses). All that the two kinds of trees have in common is a nut of about the same color and shape. Nothing else about them is even similar. The leaves are different, the bark is different and the nuts of the Horse Chestnut (also called a buckeye because the nut looks like a deer's eye) are poisonous enough to be troublesome, even if not usually fatal. This time of year the branches of the Horse Chestnut are almost covered with clusters of hundreds of white flowers. The flowers are more intriguing than the nuts.

Most roasted Chestnuts from Europe

KNUTSON

At first glance the flowers are mostly white with a few streaks of color, but it is more complicated than that. A closer look shows some flowers with red centers and streaks and some with yellow. If you were to watch one yellow flower over a few days the most remarkable thing happens. The center of the flower changes to red. Only the new flowers still emerging from the buds have any yellow on them. The older ones are always red. Looking even closer you would see that bees visit the yellow flowers, never the red ones.

When each flower first emerges from the bud it produces large amounts of nectar as a reward for the visiting bees. The nectar is gone after a few days. The flower turns red and the bees no longer visit. Bees cannot see the color red, but they can see yellow. Once the bees have been trained to come to the yellow flowers they will return to the same tree daily. Pollination of the flowers is necessary if nuts are to be produced, but hardly any early-blooming flowers make nuts. The flowers opening later are certain to be visited and pollinated by bees who remember well where there is a source of food. Only those later flowers have the capacity to make the nuts that represent the next generation of Horse Chestnuts.

Unlikely as the above sounds, it is all true. You can see it yourself on any Horse Chestnut in June. They grow all over Charlevoix. Take a look.

Letters to the editor

Thank you

Editor:

Charlevoix is fortunate to enjoy the return of the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament. This event brings even greater prestige to our city, as well as tourism dollars.

While there are many athletic heroes on the links during tournament, we think the true unsung heroes of the day are Steve Braun, head golf professional at Belvedere Golf Club, and Rick Grunch, chief greens keeper, along with their talented, dedicated teams. Their commitment and enthusiasm have resulted in a first class tournament that brings added renown to our wonderful city. All of Charlevoix owes Steve and Rick a big thanks for their efforts.

Editor:

I think Charlevoix should have a skate park for all ages. It would be a great addition to Charlevoix The Beautiful.

One reason for having a skate park would be to keep kids safe. One reason is that skaters, rollerbladers and bikers would not be in danger of cars. Another example is if you fell while at the skate park, you would have people there to help you. Another good reason for having a skate park is if you do not play team sports you could have a place to go. One way to get good, healthy exercise would be to skate, bike and rollerblade. Also, it could be a time to spend quality time with your family. Finally, having a skate park in Charlevoix could be a great way to make friends. Let's say you just moved to town. You could make new friends there. Let's say your friends were busy. You could go to the skate park and possibly make a friend!

If the city of Charlevoix would consider building a skate park, I truly believe that it would make the youth of Charlevoix much happier!

Health Agency expands hours to give HIV tests

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is expanding its hours to accommodate persons who want to get tested for HIV infection in observance of National HIV Testing Day, June 27.

To schedule an appointment for confidential and anonymous HIV testing call (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours. Appointments are available in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Obtaining a sample for testing is quick and painless.

"We don't use needles any more to obtain a testing sample — just a mouth swab," said Bert Notestine, who coordinates the HIV Testing and Counseling Program at the health department.

Notestine said it is important for everyone to know their HIV status, especially if people have engaged in risky behaviors like unprotected sex or sharing needles.

In the 20 years since the epidemic began, the medical community has made a lot of progress in diagnosing and treating HIV Disease.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that between 850,000 and 900,000 Americans are infected with HIV. An estimated quarter of a million people do not know they are infected and may continue to engage in behavior that could jeopardize their health and the health of others.

Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra to open season at Castle Farms

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra opens its Castle Farms Summer Series at 7 p.m., on Thursday, July 3 with a concert of Baroque Masterworks.

The concert will feature three soloists: Flutist Bonnietta Benn performing Bach's Orchestral Suite number two and violists Margaret Beck and Laura Staubes performing Bach's Brandenburg concerto number 6.

The orchestra will also perform Handel's Concerto Grosso Opus six and seven and Bach's "Air" from Suite number three. Popularly known as the "Air on the G String," the work is one of Bach's most beloved melodies by both musicians and audience members.

The orchestra has completed two successful seasons performing throughout northern Michigan. Consisting of musicians from Alanson, Bellaire, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, East Jordan, Gaylord, Interlochen, Petoskey and Traverse City, the orchestra has developed a solid base of community support in the area. Cofounders Margaret Beck, artistic director, and Robert Pattengale, executive director, provided the organizational impetus and the performing members have responded with time, energy and talent.

The orchestra has engaged Matthew Hazelwood, Interlochen Arts Academy orchestra director, to serve as the music advisor for the coming season. Hazelwood will conduct the November and May concerts next season and assist in providing continuity of programing and artistic development.

Tickets for the Castle Farms Summer Series are available in Petoskey at Horizon Books and the Crooked Tree Arts Center, in Charlevoix at the Bridge Street Book Shop and at the chamber of commerce offices in both Boyne City and East Jordan.

Tickets cost $12 for adults and $8 for students.

Simons survived two ship sinkings in war

SIMONS

was denied because the government could not find any records of the battle. Simons wrote back and told them to look harder.

He received a second letter saying they still were not going to give him his Purple Heart, but then received the medal in the mail a few days later. With it was a letter containing the sentence in small type on the bottom of the page "Sorry for the error in denying the Purple Heart in our previous replies."

Almost 60 years after Simons was awarded the Purple Heart for his service in World War II, he had received the medal.

"I am very thankful for what the government was able to do for me afterwards," he said.

Simons said he did not have a choice to enter the war. At that time the government was drafting kids to fight before they even graduated high school. Simons, living in Syracuse at the time, chose to enter the Navy for a few reasons.

"As soon as I graduated, I went in to the Navy because if you didn't they would draft you, and I didn't want to go into the army," he said.

His father served on the USS Pueblo in World War I, so Simons knew at least with the Navy, he knew he would always have a clean bed to sleep in.

After World War II, he enrolled in the University of Detroit with some of his Navy buddies. It was there that he met his wife, Norma.

After receiving a Bachelor of Business Administration, Joe and Norma settled into life in the Detroit area with Joe working at Firestone Tires then Ford Motor Company for several years. Eventually he left the corporate life and opened his own car and truck rental and leasing dealership, which he ran for 18 years.

Wanting to be close to Michigan's waters, he and his wife went on several camping trips in and around Charlevoix.

"We used to camp at all the campgrounds up here and, like everybody else, looked for property," he said.

They bought land on Lake Charlevoix and eventually built a house overlooking the lake. In 1981, they moved up to Charlevoix and became full time residents.

Simons is still staying active as much as possible. He works out of his home as a loan originator with Great Lake Mortgage Company.

Even though the day is years away and thousands of miles from his Charlevoix home, Simons can still remember the images of the sinking ship very clearly.

"There's nothing but confusion. There's screaming and hollering, no light. All you do is think about getting off that monkey," he said.

While he was wading in the water the second time, he vividly remembers the two screws of the ship slowly sinking into the deep.

"You don't ever forget that," he said.

Also during this second sinking, he got some encouragement from a buddy, Zip Hallman, from Iron Mountain, who had survived the first sinking with Simons.

"All he kept saying is 'Hang in there Joe. If we make it we'll get another 30 days off.'"

Simons said although the experience of being on two sinking ships was horrible, it did not compare to the battles with the Japanese.

Thirty days after the second sinking, he was put on a destroyer to Iwo Jima. His ship was on picket duty, which meant it had to pace back and forth along the Japanese coast and radio when the planes left and in what direction they were headed.

"You never had any sleep," he said.

He was able to find some peace though on Japanese waters.

"The best part of the off time was at dusk. I would sit and watch the sunset from the (back of the ship). They call it the land of the rising sun, but the sunsets are even better," he said.

In three years service in the Navy, Simons fought in three campaigns and earned five medals for his service. The Purple Heart is the latest addition to his collection which his wife said she would frame for him.

Besides compensation for his injuries, receiving the Purple Heart has proven one more benefit.

"Well now my kids believe me," he said.

Resident suggests traffic fix to council

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "This intersection at Park Street and Bridge is no sweetheart. The whole section is uncontrolled."
> George Schultz, Charlevoix resident

A voluntary traffic proposal lessening the congestion on Bridge Street was presented to the Charlevoix City Council at the June 16 meeting.

George Schultz made several recommendations that would improve the traffic flow on the congested thoroughfare by adding a traffic light at the Bridge Street and Park Avenue intersection just south of the bridge.

"This intersection at Park Street and Bridge is no sweetheart. The whole section is uncontrolled," said Schultz.

Schultz suggested adding the light there to take the emphasis off the Clinton Street intersection, which has fewer lanes and more pedestrian traffic.

In a written statement he presented to council, Schultz said, "(The Park Avenue) intersection has four traffic lanes which makes the control and flow of traffic more efficient compared to the two lane Bridge Street and Clinton Street intersection."

The plan, which maintains the current number of parking spaces near the intersection, also includes removing the crosswalk just south of the bridge and calls for the addition of a controlled left turn lane from Bridge Street to Park Avenue.

This is not a new idea.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner said previously there has been talk in general with the highway department about relocating the light at the Clinton Street intersection.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the intersection does pose certain problems given that is it is a bookend intersection and has a higher than average number of accidents.

"That intersection has the same issues that Belvedere Avenue and Bridge Street does. They are both merge locations, which we tend to see a little more than the average number of minor accidents because of the two lanes to one lane situation," he said.

However he said this intersection is not the exception.

"Each intersection downtown kind of has its own unique issues," Halverson said.

He said he is unsure if the proposed plan would be beneficial. Looking at the plan Halverson saw a few issues, but Schultz said Bridge Street will most likely never produce a perfectly workable traffic plan.

"You're not going to solve the problem. You're only going to improve it," he said.

The average daily travel on Bridge Street throughout the year is 12,000 cars a day. However during peak tourist season, that number reaches approximately 20,000 cars a day.

Schultz listed several benefits in his proposal to the suggested plan.

He said when the bridge is open, the congestion by City Hall and the county buildings could be decreased because the waiting area for vehicles backed up on Park Avenue and State Street is increased by one block.

Large trucks which pass through downtown Charlevoix via Bridge Street could also see benefits. The acceleration distance from the new traffic light to the Bridge Street south hill would be increased by one block.

However those traveling north would see a decrease in acceleration time if stopped by the proposed light.

During emergencies involving fire trucks and ambulances, Schultz said the bridge tender or a policeman could remotely switch off the red light and turn on the green for the northbound Bridge Street traffic to clear the street.

First Ward Council member Bill Haggard said traffic studies are brought to the council every four or five years, but nothing really comes of them.

"It seems like if it was brought before us we should do something about it," Haggard said.

City council cannot approve the plan itself. Even if it does decide this proposal is an improvement, plans still have to be sent to the Michigan Department of Transportation for approval.

"We have little control over what happens there," Halverson said.

Weisner would not comment on the plan and said reviewing it would be best left up to professionals.

"We're going to have the highway department review it. They're really the experts in this area," he said. "Hopefully there's something here that can help."

New deputy hired for Beaver Island duty

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has hired James Andrew Campbell as the new full-time deputy sheriff on Beaver Island, replacing former Deputy Mike Russell who left in early June.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said Campbell brings an extensive background in law enforcement to the island.

"Deputy Campbell is not only an asset to this office, but also the citizens of Beaver Island," Lasater said.

Campbell started his law enforcement career in Salamanca, N.Y. in 1974, where he served for four years. He then relocated to Michigan and has been employed with the Rockwood Police Department for 25 years.

Campbell said he and his wife, Pam, have been vacationing on the island for the last few summers and feel very fortunate to be able to live there.

"We really love it. We have friends here from the past and will fit in well," Campbell said.

Campbell has seven children, two of which are still in school.

He said his youngest daughter, 8, had a friend move to the island a little while ago and is happy to see her again. As for his youngest son, who is 10, Campbell said he was worried the most about living on an island, but has been enjoying himself so far and staying very busy.

Campbell added, "We are looking forward to meeting everyone. It takes time to get to know everybody."

Lasater added Campbell will have some help this summer on the island.

Deputy Sheriff Justin Goff has been appointed as the season officer for the island. Goff is a recent graduate of West Shore Community College, near Ludington.

Lasater said he grew up in an agricultural family, but is pursuing a career in law enforcement.

District will not use four day school week now

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Permanent three day weekends could be an option for Michigan students if Governor Jennifer Granholm signs a piece of legislation that won final passage June 12.

Michigan lawmakers passed legislation on a 27 to 11 senate vote that would give school districts the option of having a four day school week in an effort to save costs and counteract the current Michigan budget deficit.

But, Charlevoix Schools Superintendent Dr. John Sturock said that is currently not an option the Charlevoix school district needs to consider.

"Some districts might look at that because of saving money, but it's not even something that we're thinking about," he said. "We've positioned ourselves pretty good financially."

The legislation was partially created with northern Michigan school districts in mind who have longer bus routes than some of their southern counterparts.

"Where you would have high transportation cost that's where you would save the most amount of dollars," Sturock said.

Benefits to the bill are flexibility with school calendars and savings on bussing, utility bills and maintenance costs. However, Sturock is unaware of any districts who would consider shortening their school weeks in response to budget deficits.

"Some talk about that change came early on in the spring, but I don't know of any districts entertaining the idea of doing that now," he said.

One major problem the legislation creates is the mismatching of a standard work week and school week, creating a child care issue on the fifth day. Several parents who work would be forced to find some sort of day care service on Monday's or Friday's.

"Not to say that our schools are a day care system," Sturock said.

The bill would drop the required 180 days of school and set the standard at 1,089 hours instead, meaning the days would be fewer, but hours spent in the classroom each day would extend.

Sturock said the middle and high school both operate from 8 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. and the elementary school operates from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Opponents of the bill argue that increasing the school day would prove difficult for younger students who would find it hard pressed to stay focused. Sturock believes that argument is flawed because other countries, such as Japan, have longer school days and are still in comparison and competition with United States students.

"There are a lot of places in the world where kids go to school for a longer day than we do. They seem to be functioning very well. It works there, why can't it work here?" he said.

Sturock said while there is not currently talk of changing the number of school days in a week, it is always a possibility if the Michigan budget deficit continues.

"Never say never," he said.

According to the legislation, any school district that chooses to exercise the four-day week option, must have two public meetings beforehand.

Hospice to have grief support

Hospice of Northwest Michigan wants to help you deal with grief.

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than we can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing your job, moving, dealing with a chronic illness, or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6 - 7:30 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from July 8 through Aug. 12 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan (formerly the Charlevoix County Hospice), Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Agency. The program is designed to help those grow through grief, and learn the five tasks of grief work.

Dr. Andrew Sahara will facilitate the sessions.

Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

Pre-register by calling the hospice office at 536-2842. There is no charge for this program.

Library to have book sale

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will sponsor its Fourth Annual Used Book Sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., on Friday and Saturday, June 26 and 27, at 109 Clinton Street.

Proceeds from previous sales have purchased over fifteen hundred new books for the Charlevoix Public Library.

With most paperbacks priced at 25 cents and most hardcovers at $1, the community can support library programs and stock up on summer reading for very little cost. Higher priced books will also be available and new canvas book bags with the library logo will be on sale for $8.

Annual Home Tour tickets to be on sale

The community is invited to the 2003 Annual Charlevoix Home Tour hosted by the Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

This year six Charlevoix homes will be showcased. Among them are a log home on Lake Charlevoix, a contemporary home overlooking Round Lake, a Chicago Club family cottage and a northern Michigan resort style home in the Charlevoix Country Club.

For many years the Charlevoix Home Tour has been on the first Wednesday after July 4 weekend. However this year that all changes at the tour will be hosted on Saturday, July 19.

"So far we have been pleased with the positive feedback and cooperation we have received regarding the date change to Saturday. Our goal in making this change was to encourage greater participation in all aspects of the tour. It is our hope that by increasing the number of people on the Tour, we will be able to donate that much more to the wonderful worthwhile causes we've chosen this year," said Tricia Petrosky, 2003 Home Tour chairperson.

Proceeds from this year's Home Tour will benefit the Jeff Trimper family and the Charlevoix Area Hospital OB Department.

Another new feature to this year's tour includes the raffle of a framed original acrylic painting (featured on this year's ticket book cover) donated by local artist, Linda Boss. One hundred percent of the raffle proceeds will go directly to the Trimper Family. Tickets will be $2 each or six for $10 and will be available for purchase at each of the homes the day of the tour only.

Tour tickets are $20 and can be purchased after June 27 at the following locations: The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls and the Clothing Company in Charlevoix; Boyne Country Books in Boyne City and the Quiet Moose and Petoskey Chamber of Commerce in Petoskey.

Tickets may also be purchased the day of the tour at any of the homes.

Directions to the homes are provided in the ticket book and at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. Additional information and illustrations of the homes can be found at www.llhgraphics.com/hometour.

FDA APPROVES DENTAL DEVICE
TO REDUCE MIGRAINE ATTACKS

Migraine prevention breakthrough

As seen on ABC's GOOD MORNING AMERICA.

The first clinically proven, nondrug method for the prevention of migraine. The NTI-tss is a small, virtually invisible mouthpiece that covers only your upper front teeth while you sleep.

The NTI-tss must be custom-fitted by a dentist - which usually takes only one 30-minute visit.

In a clinical trial, 82% of migraine sufferers who used the NTI-tss for 8 weeks had a 77% average reduction in migraine attacks. The NTI-tss device reduced not only migraine attacks but also the need for medication usually taken to treat migraine pain.

Head Start in need of better playground

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The children of Charlevoix's Head Start program walk to Shanahan Park almost every day along Martin Road holding onto a rope for safety.

While making the journey, they sing songs like "Going on a Bear Hunt" to pass the time.

Teachers of the Head Start program have to walk the children more than half-a-mile trip both there and back because their current playground is in desperate need of improvements.

"Our equipment doesn't need to be replaced, we'd just like to make it bigger," teacher Brittney Dipert said.

The small asphalt playground is surrounded by a chain link fence and located in front of the building. The view from the playground is of the dirt parking lot and, just beyond, construction vehicles and traffic moving along the stretch of US-31 North that runs in front of the center.

The asphalt playground poses several problems.

Assistant teacher Paula Thomas said the surface is not ideal for summer because it heats up quickly.

She said on a 70 degree day, the asphalt easily feels like 80 degrees.

"By coming to a park where there's grass, they can run around and if they fall it's not as painful as the asphalt," Thomas said.

The Charlevoix Head Start is one of three all day, year-round programs in northern Michigan.

"Some (children) get dropped off at 7:30 a.m. and are not picked up until 5:30 or 6 p.m.," Paula said.

She said other Head Starts operate with the school systems and only offer half day preschool services for the 3 to 5-year-old students.

The center has been open for two years. Since then, Dipert said she has heard comments from community members that the playground isn't very pleasing to the eye.

At a parents' meeting June 18, one of the main topics of discussion was the condition of the playground. Dipert said several parents are looking into different ways to fund improvements to the playground. They may soon go to the community to ask for help in funding the project.

Ideally she said they would like to rip up the concrete and put in grass, but the center realizes it is not very realistic. Some realistic improvements they are looking into are covering the fence with stable wooden slats, putting in tubs for planting and purchasing a shade tarp to keep the asphalt surface cooler on hot summer days.

They also would like to expand the playground onto the west side of the building for added space.

Currently, Shanahan Field offers more benefits for children. Dipert said it is a necessity for the 15 children in the program to be able to run and play throughout the day day while at Head Start.

"It's extremely important for them to develop their gross motor skills. That coordination they are developing now is imperative later in life," she said.

She said while teaching them things like why tadpoles turn into frogs is important, she would rather have them learn hand eye coordination and skills that will help them to walk and play sports later on.

"It's more important for them to run and jump and hop," she said.

The children enjoy their activity time.

Levi McFarland, 5, said he likes coming to the park. When asked his favorite thing to do there, he said, "Everything"

Dipert said playing is important to their health as well, not to mention keeping them active for an approximate two hour portion of the day. It uses up some of the children's energy and makes the afternoons much calmer.

Martinchek's sell development rights

In effort to save some valuable farmland in the area, a local family has agreed to sell the development rights of their farmland to the Little Traverse Land Conservancy.

The plight of today's farmer is all too familiar for many around the country, and northern Michigan is no exception. The current market value of land contrasts starkly with the economic realities of farming for a living, or even for a part-time venture.

The Martinchek family was facing this dilemma head-on. As lifelong farmers and owners of farmland that is located adjacent to lands associated with the new Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road, the family found itself in the middle of a community controversy that was rooted in a proposed sewer extension leading from the new high school into the nearby countryside. With such an extension, sprawling development would have been inevitable and the Martinchek's 225 acres of land were first in line.

But the Martinchek family wanted to stay where they were and they wanted to continue farming.

"Farming is in my blood," Joe Martinchek said. "I like the outdoors and love to watch things grow."

Two years ago, the family began working with the conservancy to look for alternatives to selling their family farmlands.

"We were interested in keeping our farmland protected from urban sprawl," said Joe.

After exploring the various land protection tools that might work, the Martinchek's decided to sell the development rights on their farm to the conservancy, permanently restricting the land and allowing it to remain as open space in perpetuity. This agreement also allows for continued farming on the land.

"The scope of this project is larger than just one family," said Ty Ratliff, a conservancy land protection specialists. "By protecting their land, the Martinchek family has helped slow unplanned sprawl in their community. In addition, they have permanently protected significant farmland and open space in scenic northern Michigan."

Ratliff added that this project helps demonstrate to other area residents that subdivision and development are not the only options for their land.

The conservancy is currently fund-raising for the purchase of the Martinchek's development rights. Already, a neighbor has pledged to donate funds toward the project and to donate a conservation easement on his own significant farmland property located nearby.

"For us, this was the right thing to do," Betty Martinchek said.

"This is such a beautiful part of God's world, we want to keep it that way."

The Little Traverse Conservancy was established in 1972 as a non-profit land conservation organization working in five counties: Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Chippewa, and Mackinac. Its mission is to protect the natural diversity and beauty of northern Michigan by preserving significant land and scenic areas, and fostering appreciation and understanding of the environment.

With the support of more than 4,100 members, the conservancy has worked with landowners to protect more than 18,200 acres of land with nearly 60 miles of shoreline along northern Michigan's streams, rivers and lakes.

Purdy teaches proper manners to dogs

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With the help of Charlevoix resident Anora Purdy, your dog can become the most well-behaved canine on the block.

Purdy, who owns and operates Sirius Dog Training Center on Burnette Road, uses "positive reinforcement training methods that highly motivate the dog and its owner."

She said this allows them to work together, while having fun, turning the dog into a well behaved creature that is welcome in the community.

"I love working with animals and have found working with dogs is rewarding," Purdy said of her job.

Purdy is a certified animal trainer through the Animal Behavior College in California, which she completed through correspondence courses. She finished up her training with hands-on animal work while she was a student at Northern Michigan University — she just graduated from the university this year with an associates degree in general business.

She added, "I will be attending a Sandra Ladwig Seminar in early August and look forward to continuing my training education yearly. By this fall, I will be a Canine Good Citizen Evaluator and will be working on becoming an evaluator for Delta Society."

Classes at Sirius Dog Training Center are one hour per week for six consecutive weeks. Purdy uses treats and toys as motivators, which are slowly turned into regards coupled with verbal praise.

Purdy said over time verbal praise is enough of a reward for the animals and the dogs will be given the Basic Canine Good Citizen Test. In this test, dogs are judged on how they sit and greet, without jumping, and heel on a loose lease, among other factors.

At the 60 acre center, dogs will be trained on a variety of landscapes, including trees, fields and a training ring. Purdy also has a dog walk area that takes you through the woods and fields at the center.

Eventually, Purdy said she will be expanding her business through the construction of a building that will allow her to have classes inside during the winter.

Currently, classes are seasonal.

Classes are given in the evening. For more information on Sirius Dog Training Center, contact Purdy at (231) 347-6112 or e-mail apurdy@alumni.nmu.edu.

Art festival to be July 1, 2

On Tuesday and Wednesday July 1 and 2, the fourth annual Downtown Charlevoix Art Festival will welcome over 200 artists from across the country.

This two-day event will showcase a variety of artwork such as pottery, paintings, ceramics, sculptures, photography, jewelry and more.

Also included in this year's festival will be live musical entertainment from nationally recognized musicians and festival foods. Show times are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and admission is free.

Malcolm Watson, the barefooted violinist will entertain each day. Watson lays out a blanket and performs by dancing and playing his violin to the delight of his viewers.

Also featured are sitarist Stephen Mikes, steel drummer Doug Walker and keyboardist and vocalist Kayte Wolf. Each musician will play continuously throughout the weekend.

The show is located in the middle of downtown East Park, overlooking Round Lake and along the shops on Bridge Street.

For more information, call the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101. Log onto www.ARTFESTIVAL.com to preview the festival, browse a show directory and get directions.

Temporary toilet trailer being installed

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is hoping to flush out long lines and waiting this summer for available bathrooms in the downtown area.

A semi-trailer equipped with six toilets, three urinals, three sinks and a baby changing station will be installed this week in East Park and in working order by next week.

Excavation of the site, located behind the East Park performance pavilion, began Monday and the Chamber Board of Directors Chairman John Campbell said the unit will be brought in Thursday. The site was the former location of the Wharfside building, which was torn down last year to provide more park space.

The bathrooms will be hooked to a main sewer line and should be working by July 1.

DDA Chairman Hugh Mason said the trailer is only temporary. He is hoping the DDA can sell the trailer or relocate it when future renovations downtown are finished.

"We know we've got a problem downtown. It may be a couple of summers before the marina is finished. This is a temporary fix," he said.

Third Ward Charlevoix City Council member Shirley Gibson said she was concerned with the original plans for the bathrooms because they were not aesthetically pleasing. But after much renovation, it looks less like a semi-trailer, she said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Trailer will meet bathroom need in summer

BATHROOM

"They did a lot of work with the DDA and city to make it look nice," Gibson said. "It looks better than those porta potties stuck here and there around town."

Mason said with the new trailer they are hoping they can eliminate most of the porta potties in town, but they may be brought out again during the Venetian Festival or other busy times.

The trailer will be the third public bathroom facility adding to the ones already at the chamber and Beaver Island Boat Company. A fourth public facility will be added this winter with the completion of the City Hall renovation.

The $40,000 project was proposed by the chamber and funded by allocated money from the DDA. Charlevoix City Council unanimously approved the property usage about two months ago.

Campbell's proposed plan, at the DDA's March 24, meeting was for a 48 foot semi-trailer with three women's toilets and sinks, four individual showers and three men's urinal, sink and toilet units.

Members of the city questioned the need for the shower units due to renovations this year to the bathroom facilities that serve the public and boaters.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said at the meeting, after speaking with harbormaster Hal Evans, the city's position was that the updated shower facility would be adequate.

The DDA agreed to look at a trailer plan without the shower stalls and with additional bathroom units and asked Campbell to price a 40 foot long trailer with bathroom units only.

His estimate for the originally proposed 48 foot trailer was $70,000. The final plan they agreed on was $30,000 less.

"They were all over the board on that. They came with a number and said they could do it for $40,000, and we said OK," Mason said.

Wagbo center gets grant

The Wagbo Peace Center has been awarded a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for a new initiative to provide fresh, nutritious food to low-income families in the Charlevoix-Antrim County area.

The funding will enable Wagbo to offer five "shares" in the non-profit farm's Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program to local families in need. CSA is a subscription food model where shareholders receive a weekly basket of freshly harvested produce from the farm for the entire growing season, approximately sixteen weeks.

An educational component will be an important part of the funded project. In addition to providing weekly food baskets, Wagbo will be conducting classes in cooperation with MSU Extension Services covering home vegetable gardening, family nutrition, the health and environmental benefits of organic food production and fresh food preparation and preservation. This program addresses the need for a healthy addition to the boxed and canned food traditionally available through food pantries.

Ryan Romeyn, farm manager at the Wagbo Peace Center, is excited for this opportunity from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to realize a personal and professional goal of serving the community in this way.

"We are working to reduce financial stress, improve family nutrition and teach valuable skills to the families who qualify for this special program," he said.

The center has the potential to broaden the focus of its farm program to all members of our community, including local residents suffering financial hardship who may not otherwise be able to participate.

The funding from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation provides that important first step in this initiative.

The farm is located at 5745 North M-66, three miles south of East Jordan. Please call 536-0333 or drop by for a visit to find out more about this program.

A look at the team sports during Venetian Games

This is the first of our series closely examines the various events that will be part of the 2003 Venetian Games.

Today, the focus is on team sports, and there are plenty for both players and spectators. Team captains will need to register their official rosters and secure team rules, schedules and appropriate material from the City Recreation Department Office located at Mt. McSauba. The telephone number is 547-3253.

• Three-on-three Basketball — Team events begin with a three-on-three basketball tournament scheduled for July 20. This tournament was moved to a new location last year, Lake Michigan Beach, and drew raves from competitors and spectators alike. The new paved parking lots accommodated all the courts needed and the additional benefit of having the lake to cool off and the beach provides more fun for the family.

• Soccer — July 21, there will be three-on-three soccer at Shanahan Field. Last year the tournament had to be extended to two days because of the large number of team entries. Boys and girls under 8 years of age will kick off the tournament with brackets designed for all ages through adult. Rosters should have no more than four players.

• Co-ed Volleyball — A tournament for co-ed beach volleyball teams will be in the evening on July 23 at the Ferry Avenue Beach sand courts. Teams must play three female and three male players. Official registration forms are available at The City Recreation Department office located at Mt. McSauba.

• Co-ed softball — This will feature a unique format this year. The event will be a tournament July 25. Each team must field 10 players with five being female and five male. For more information contact event manager, Ike Boss, at the Charlevoix City Recreation Department.

• Team croquet — This is a two person event that has been very popular both for spectators and participants. It is scheduled for 2 p.m., July 21 at Bridge Park. There are several flights, the first of which is a celebrity match between well-known media, invited to town to cover the festival. Then the service club flight matches local groups against each other. One of the hottest competitions finds the fire departments — City of Charlevoix vs. Charlevoix Township — squaring off with the winner having the right to have their trucks first in the popular street parade. Then there is the open flight which has both adults and youth playing for the Venetian crown. The Charlevoix version of "cottage croquette" has a few rule wrinkles that make the game fun for participant and spectator alike.

• Venetian Cup Sailing Regatta — This is indeed a team sport. Each of the nearly 50 sailboats making up this popular event train a team of deckhands that provide a spectacular sight on the evening of July 23 on Lake Charlevoix . Fleets featuring several different sizes and makes of boats are handicapped so that all racers have an equal chance to become the Venetian Cup winner. Entry forms and more information may be obtained at the City Recreation Department.

Whether you appear as a games participant or as a spectator fan, there is a variety of events and a week jammed with exciting sporting events.

Next week will be a review of the many individual sports that make up the Venetian Games.

fund to assist the Trimpers and, this spring, students from Charlevoix High School English teacher Karen Peterson's class had a fund-raiser as a community outreach project.

"We really have been so lucky. People have been so good to us. Any cynicism I had is gone," Jane said.

Supernaw hopes the community will show its support with this benefit as well.

"The only thing I would like tell people is please come to the benefit. It would be a great opportunity not only to help out a family in need, but to get a look at the castle and come and enjoy the day," he said.

Department of Environmental Quality to have public meeting

The Department of Environmental Quality will have a public meeting on June 25 in Gaylord.

Director Steven E. Chester and several of his key staff will be visiting communities throughout the state of Michigan to introduce themselves and solicit comments on environmental issues facing their community.

The Gaylord public meeting will be at the University Center, Rooms M103-M105, 80 Livingston Blvd., Gaylord. The event is from 6 to 7:30 p.m. and will begin with a short presentation by Chester and an introduction of staff present.

The program will then be opened for an informal question and answer session.

"Conducting these outreach sessions around Michigan provides citizens with the opportunity to meet the decision-makers of environmental decisions in their community. It also allows them the ability to engage in one-on-one discussions regarding environmental issues directly affecting them and their community and get immediate feedback," Chester said.

Many parades for fourth

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff Writer

The communities of Charlevoix, Beaver Island and Horton Bay will be having parades in honor of Independence Day on July 4.

The Charlevoix parade begins at 10 a.m. at the American Legion post on East Garfield Street. Those interested in entering the parade may contact organizer Charlie Butcher at (231) 547-4724.

Butcher is captain of the Color Guard and Rifle Squad, representing both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. His squad will be leading the parade.

The parade follows Bridge Street from the post, turns right on Clinton Street and ends in East Park, followed with a speech by Butler.

"I don't believe in boring people," Butcher said. "I like to keep it brief."

The sound system at the park is expected to be improved from last year. Butcher describes the parade in Charlevoix as a low-key, but fun community event.

The Beaver Island fourth of July parade begins at 2:10 p.m. on Main Street at the King's Highway intersection in front of the Emerald Isle Hotel.

Parade lineup begins at 1:30 at the start of the parade route. The theme is "America's Freedom is Forever Precious."

During the parade line-up, spectators will be entertained with a patriotic performance by the Beaver Island Community Choir.

House bill could affect kiln dust at Cemex plant

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

A current Michigan House bill could loosen the disposal regulations at the cement plant Cemex if it passes, but the company contends it would not change its operating procedures.

The bill, House Bill 4849, is in its introductory stages and would add to the current definition of inert materials cement kiln dust (CKD), a byproduct of all cement factories, which has been found to cause soil, groundwater and air contamination.

The current definition of an inert material is "a substance that will not decompose, dissolve, or in any other way form a contaminated leachate upon contact with water, or other liquids determined by the department as likely to be found at the disposal area, percolating through the substance."

The passage of the bill would add the sentence "inert material includes, but is not limited to, Portland cement clinker produced by a cement kiln, including cement kiln dust that is generated as a byproduct in the process," meaning CKD would no longer be noted as dangerous to the environment and cement plants could dispose of it however they choose.

"They can do anything they want with it. There would be no requirements or restrictions on the use, placements or processing of the materials," said Duane Roskoskey, environmental quality specialist with the Department of Environmental Quality waste and hazardous materials divisions.

But, Cemex Environmental Manager Michele Buckler, who had not heard of the bill, said even if

Rainbow Shoppe celebrates 20 years

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Rainbow Thrift Shoppe has grown both physically and financially the past 20 years to produce over $1 million for charitable northern Michigan organizations.

As one of the founding members, Rita Orlowski has been at the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe from the very first day and has seen it prosper.

"I stand in awe sometimes when I think of what have we accomplished," she said. "When we can take a million dollars though 20 years and give it to nonprofit organizations and needy people, I think that is quite an accomplishment."

The Rainbow Thrift Shoppe celebrated its twentieth year in business last week by having special theme days and sales all week long.

The shop began in 1983 with $150 donations from each of the 10 churches that compose the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. With that money, it opened for business at 115 Antrim Street.

It moved to the current building located on 1 Van Pelt two years after opening because the store outgrew the Antrim location. The new building is a vast improvement, which Orlowski said is over 10,000 square feet bigger and has three floors.

However almost 20 years later, they are beginning to have the same problem.

"It's kind of busting out at the seems. We could stand a bigger place," Orlowski said.

The shop currently has 185 volunteers and eight employees, all of which store manager Robin Maurer said make the shop's success possible.

"Our success can be attributed to our volunteers who many have been here from day one," she said. "We can't even open the doors if we don't have a volunteer to take the money. They're our best customer and our best advertiser."

Word of the shop has expanded farther than the boundaries of Charlevoix. In the summer, some of its business is from drama and vintage shops downstate that come to browse its selection as well as people who take day trips from Traverse City.

Besides the physical growth of the store, Orlowski said community support for the shop has expanded as well.

"We're getting better donations. When we first started, people didn't realize they were to give us clean clothes, so (the clothes) went in one door and out the other," she said.

However, the shop was not always as well received by the community as it is now.

Orlowski said their first year in business many of the merchants did not want the shop participating in Charlevoix's sidewalk sale, however Bill Supernaw gave the store a spot on Bridge Street to sell their merchandise.

Now she said many of the merchants will donate what they have left over at the sidewalk sales to the shop.

The Rainbow Thrift Shoppe has been a very active part of the community serving people in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties. Orlowski said they sell clothes to high schools students for theater productions at a discounted price, donate to the Salvation Army, give money toward the senior all night party at Charlevoix High School and have been in the Venetian parade in years past.

The shop was in the parade their first year in business. Orlowski said they had a 1968 gold Mustang and she and another employee walked the parade route dressed as clowns.

"We hope to be in the Venetian parade this year. They're asking me to do it again, but 20 years makes a difference. I don't know if I could walk that far," she said.

Orlowski hopes the shore will continue on its successful path long after her time of service at the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe is over.

"That's my hopes and prayers that we'll still be in business 20 years from now. Some of us probably won't be around for the next 20 years, but we'll be looking down smiling on them," she said.

The shop accepts donations during store hours from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday in reasonable sized boxes and bags. Maurer said they take clean reusable clothing or household goods, but the store will sell and accept just about anything.

If dropping off large items, call the shop ahead of time at 547-2815. Maurer said their pick up service is more than happy to help.

EDITORIAL

For the past 20 years, a rainbow has brightened the Charlevoix area.

Last week, the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe in Charlevoix celebrated its twentieth birthday with activities and sales all week. While it is a great achievement for any business to be around for 20 years, what makes the Rainbow Shoppe unique is that those 20 years have brought 20 years of generosity to the community of Charlevoix.

The Rainbow Thrift Shoppe is a non-profit business that sells second-hand clothing and other items to raise money for charities and other non-profit organizations. And in the past 20 years, it has raised over $1 million for local groups.

As Rita Orlowski, one of the founding members said, "When we can take a million dollars through 20 years and give it to non-profit organizations and needy people, I think that is quite an accomplishment."

You bet that is an accomplishment. That's an amazing amount of giving, considering the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe started in 1983 with only $150 in donations from 10 different area churches.

Over the years, this store has outgrown one location and is starting to outgrow another. It brings in clothing and many other second-hand items that it sells to everyone from private individuals to high school theater departments and downstate vintage shops.

Contributing to its success is 185 volunteers and eight employees.

It is a pleasure to see such a giving organization as the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe succeeding. It speaks to the giving nature of Charlevoix residents and the quality of people we have around the area.

Here's hoping this rainbow of Charlevoix is around helping the community for another 20 years. The people of the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe have certainly given the needy folks and organizations of this community a pot of gold.

McCarthys' tiles add to the unique beauty of Charlevoix

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

The next time you drive down Bridge Street and the light turns red at the corner of Clinton Street, please take a good look above the entrance of the North Seas Gallery.

You will be delighted to see a genuine Dutch tile tableau recently affixed to the red brick building. The scene consists of 143 hand painted tiles that depicts a farmer sowing grain.

It is done in Art Nouveau style of the French artist Millet, and has a decorative border of grapes, flowers and doves.

Rex and Ineke McCarthy opened the North Seas Gallery 13 years ago and they specialize in Dutch paintings. They discovered this tableau on their annual visit to Holland, where Ineke was born. Her family formerly owned an art gallery there and she met Rex while he was in service and stationed in Maastricht.

Rex tells me that there were originally 5 tableaus commissioned around 1900 by the former Dutch grocers "De Gruijter" and each panel represented a different food, such as milk, meat, fish and vegetables.

As I said, the one that the McCarthys acquired represents grain. Three of the five panels are now located in museums in the Netherlands. The beautiful tiles were attributed to a porcelain factory in Utrecht, called "Fayenceen Tegelfabriek Holland."

While the McCarthys were in Holland three years ago and before they had even settled in their present location, they called their friendly carpenter, Doug Martincheck in Charlevoix, and asked him to measure the square opening.

To their delight the tiles were only slightly bigger than the space allowed! The tiles, which had been glued to a wooden board that weighed 600 pounds, were then shipped home in a container, along with their other purchases of paintings, furniture and art objects.

Once here, they turned to John Campbell of Site Planning, for help. He graciously volunteered the expertise of an outstanding tile man, Richard Grosberg, to dismantle the tiles, clean them and then mortar the tiles to be carefully fitted above the front door of the North Seas Gallery.

"I know it seems like a far cry to switch from my field of electronics to art, but I am an army brat and when my father was stationed in France, I went to High School in Paris. He dragged us every Sunday to the Louvre," Rex recalls laughing.

"Charlevoix has been good to us. We've been here 13 years and we wouldn't survive without our repeat customers."

The McCarthys' son, Tim, is now in charge of the North Seas Gallery in Bay Harbor, and their daughter, Wendy, a graduate student at the University of Texas, is planning a September wedding in Charlevoix.

People often talk about the Charlevoix mystique. Believe me it's not the tour busses that are responsible for the mystique! It's people like the McCarthys and others before them, who had respect for the delightful view of Round Lake, the vision of a lovely marina and presence of East Park.

Now we have another beauty spot to point out to our visitors when we tool down Bridge Street.

Hospice Auction a success

Editor:

On June 6, the Hospice of Northwest Michigan (formerly Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc.) sponsored another successful benefit auction, this year's theme being "It's A Beautiful Day In This Neighborhood."

A very deep appreciation to all the artists, crafters and businesses in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties who donated to the auction. A Thank You to the Jim White who handled the verbal auction and kept the bids moving along.

The music was provided by Margaret Thomson — who gave much joy to the evening. Thank you to Carol and Hank Ross — Carol for all the artwork and Hank for the wonderful publicity. I want to thank all the volunteers who helped collect the items and also those who helped set up and worked the night of the auction.

A special thank you to our cashiers — Tracy Conti, Suzanne and Jeff Rogers, Sharon White and Sherri Vigneau. A personal thank you to Margaret Lasater for taking the "Mistress of Ceremonies" role. Due to the generosity of those who attended and made generous bids, hospice can continue to provide the high level of services that are needed for those making their final health care decisions.

We also can continue to provide grief and bereavement services for all in need. We are very grateful to all of the people who supported us on that evening.

Movable Feast thanks all

Editor:

On behalf of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, we would like to thank everyone who attended our annual Movable Feast Brunch.

Once again the fund-raiser was a great success, raising over $1,600 toward the planting of the petunia baskets.

A special thanks goes to the staff at the Grey Gables for providing us with a variety of delicious, beautifully displayed buffet items. As always, we are grateful for the wonderful support we receive from the community for our projects.

Boss commended

Editor:

During the last week, I've gotten up in what I consider the middle of the night, approximately 4:30 and 5 a.m. for my nightly break and felt good that I had at least another hour or so to sleep. But in looking outside, I see the Petunia truck even though it's still dark, with the lights flashing, watering the Petunias.

It's easy to take something like that for granted and unfortunately, I think many of us do. I certainly don't want to discount the hundreds of volunteers that the community has, but I feel a special thank you goes out to Dale Boss for the tremendous effort he puts into the Petunia project every year. It is hard to believe how the project would continue without Dale's involvement. I want to thank Dale for his enormous effort to make Charlevoix the wonderful place that it is.

Charlevoix church to visit Detroit church for service

It was in the spring of 1996 and the front page of the Detroit Free Press had a story about New Hope Missionary Baptist Church, an African American church in the Detroit area.

The story recounted how the church, which was in a predominantly white neighborhood, had been vandalized, with cans of spray paint, racial slurs and symbols, past hurts and taunts thrust into their faces, publicly, for all to see.

The congregation was 99.9 percent black and were hurt, stunned, and trying to sort out how to respond with Christ's love, yet proudly honor their black heritage.

The attack on them was public and their response was appropriately public, through the media. When the young men were apprehended, one of them even had the opportunity to do community service at the church, a surprise relationship.

Because of the media response, Charlevoix's Community Reformed Church became aware of the situation and responded. A bouquet of flowers was sent for the Baptists church's altar on the coming Sunday.

A call was placed to its pastor and that simple exchange of words and flowers has blossomed into a living and growing relationship of love between two quite diverse congregations and individuals.

One is black, the other white. One is city, the other small town.

A group from Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix traveled down to visit them that summer and the congregations have been exchanging visits each year since that time. At the yearly reunions hugs are exchanged, pastors preach to one another's congregations and people are housed and fed at each other's homes.

It's grown beyond just congregational visits. Church members now make their own private visits back and forth and have become acquainted with each other. They are now family.

This year Community Reformed Church will visit them on Saturday, July 12, and Sunday, July 13. Saturday, is the Baptist Church's "all church picnic." Sunday both churches will attend a service at New Hope's new church.

The Pastor Larry Grooters of Community Reformed Church will give the message.

Hot lunch provides food and friendship

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

It is not everyday that a person is served a free lunch — it's only Tuesday through Thursday at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

The Charlevoix United Methodist church along with the Community Reformed Church, St. Mary's Catholic Church and the First Congregational United Church of Charlevoix have combined efforts for the last 12 years to serve a free hot lunch to those in need.

The Rev. Todd Thompson of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church said the hot lunch program began because board members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association realized there was a need in the community they could fulfill by serving food.

"There are people that have come to me that are homeless and we've helped them get lodging for a night or two. It's been great to say we have lunch today so they can come and eat too," he said.

Lunch is served from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The service was originally provided Monday to Friday, but as time went on they realized not many people were taking advantage of the free lunch, so they scaled back to a three day schedule.

Thompson said even though there was a shortage of people attending lunch, there isn't a shortage of volunteers.

"(The volunteers) do it because they want to help people and give them Christ and this is one way to really meet a physical need. It's an opportunity to put their faith in action and help somebody," he said.

> "It's a gathering place for people to talk with each other. There's some camaraderie that happens ."
> The Rev. Todd Thompson, of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church

Thompson said people from the different churches and members of the community sign up and serve what ever they decide to prepare that day.

"(We serve) whatever those that have that particular day decide to bring. The menu changes and I never know what it will be," he said.

Thompson, who is also treasurer of the Charlevoix ministerial association, said sometimes whole Sunday school classes will volunteer to cook and other days a single person will make and serve the food.

LUNCH

dish with salads, watermelon, cornbread, ice cream and carrot cake. Boss has been making and serving the hot lunch for over three years with her group at the Community Reformed Church.

Boss is retired from the Charlevoix school district and said she likes serving meals because it keeps her around people.

"It's kind of a social thing. I'm used to being around people," she said.

Boss prepares food for about a dozen people, never really knowing how many will show up. But one man she can almost always count on being there is Dave Moby.

Moby, a resident of Charlevoix, said he has been attending the free lunch every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for months. He said they serve "nothing but the best" and enjoys the hot beef lunch most.

The reason people like Moby keep coming back Thompson said is because the hot lunch has become more than just a warm meal, it's a relationship builder.

Several of the diners are greeted by name when they enter the church. They sit down at one long table to a family style meal and converse about their lives, swapping stories about the past and present in Charlevoix.

Boss said sometimes they will even break into song mid-meal.

"It's a gathering place for people to talk with each other. There's some camaraderie that happens. You get to know each other," Thompson said. "People come and they know they are with loving people that care. No labels are present, you can come and enjoy."

Builders Club finishes successful year

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The 19 students of the Builder's Club had a chance this past year to make a difference in the community while learning leadership skills.

The Builders Club is an international voluntary group sponsored by the local Kiwanis chapter composed of fifth and sixth graders from Charlevoix middle school.

"It's a special group and they feel good about being in it," Karrie Gaffney, Builders Club co-advisor, said.

The group gave up its lunch recess every Monday to plan different activities which it would pick and organize. Some of the projects the students did were beginning a recycling program at the middle school, making decorations for Boulder Park residents and collecting 130 items for the Humane Society.

The Builders Club also helped to calm the fears of the newest incoming class to the Charlevoix Middle School.

Gaffney said the biggest concern of the fourth-graders was having to use lockers at the middle school. To alleviate those fears, the Builders Club students spent a half hour with each fourth-grade class and taught them how to work locker combinations.

One thing that impressed Gaffney about the young students was their dedication to the group.

"Being only that they met once a week, I was really surprised at how well they remembered everything for the next week," she said.

Youthful business

BUILDERS

At the weekly meetings, members recited the pledge of allegiance and sang a song. Gaffney, who is also a counselor at the middle school, said it made the meetings feel more formal and adult-like.

Larry Roth, a co-advisor, served as the Kiwanis advisor and came to the meetings. Other Kiwanis members were in attendance at some of the middle school activities to try and bridge the gap between the different generations.

At the end of the school year, members of the Builders Club who regularly attended the meetings and paid their dues were awarded. At a charter pinning ceremony, it became recognized internationally by the Kiwanis organization.

Gaffney said she was proud of the accomplishments of the inaugural Builders Club.

"They really did think big, always helping, never wanting things for themselves," she said.

Gaffney said based on the interest in the club at the end of this past school year, she anticipates the group will begin with high numbers next year.

While the club was only open to fifth and sixth grade students this past year because of differing lunch schedules, Gaffney said she would like to see it expand to include the seventh and eighth grade classes next year.

Builders Club members are keeping in the right frame of mind for next year. Just because school has let out for the summer does not mean the students are taking off from their duties as well.

"At the last meeting they brainstormed ideas and everybody has agreed to do one volunteer experience in the summer," Gaffney said.

4-year-old killed in accident June 27

A 4-year-old girl from Wilson Township was killed June 27 when she was accidentally run over by a vehicle that was parked in the family driveway.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, the accident occurred on East Jordan/Boyne City Road in Wilson Township, around 12:30 p.m., June 27.

The father of the little girl was also injured when he attempted to stop the vehicle as it was rolling backwards; he sustained injuries to his leg.

The girl was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by Boyne City E.M.S. where she died. Boyne City Ambulance was assisted by East Jordan E.M.S. Life Support Ambulance.

The sheriff is not releasing the name of the victim or family at this time.

The accident remains under investigation by the sheriff's office.

Country club to host second Summerfest

The second annual Summerfest hosted by the Charlevoix Country Club will again be focused on raising funds for the Venetian Festival.

The event, being planned by the Charlevoix Country Club's Social Committee, will serve to emphasize all the fun possibilities available at the Club and at the same time raise funds to contribute to the Charlevoix Venetian Festival Fireworks Fund.

On Sunday, July 6, there will be an array of activities built around a pig roast for all members and their guests.

"There will be fun planned for all ages," said event co-chairman Cynthia Kautz. "Plans include a fishing derby, tennis activities, a biking demonstration and activities on the paved bike/hiking trail, horse carriage rides, aquatic events, fitness fun, kayak races, a miniature boating demonstration and special golfing events that include; mini clinics, a putting tournament, and golf for those interested."

Co-chair Dean Davenport said, "The club will again host the annual media luncheon, (July 16th) when this year's Venetian queen candidates are introduced and new festival features are announced. And a few years ago, the club sponsored the fireworks workshop, which helped determine the return of fireworks to the Venetian Festival. And now, with the fireworks expanded to two nights and the continually increasing costs, we want to make a statement to the community that the Club and its members will continue to support the popular week-long Charlevoix homecoming celebration."

Brian Kautz, club manager, said, "the committee has worked hard to encourage membership involvement, and this event certainly should attract families and individuals alike."

Participation will be emphasized, as each participant in each event will be awarded a prize coupon which then goes into the prize box.

At the conclusion of the day and during the barbecue, adult and youth prizes will be randomly drawn and awarded.

HEALTH

Summer jobs help teach teens life lessons

Erik Larson

'Your health'

School is out and the long days of sunlight are here.

Teens are working at summer jobs. Locals are busy meeting the needs of weekend tourists and summer resorters. Some of us are busy just doing our same-old 9 to 5, but wondering how to squeeze in that golf trip or family vacation.

This is the work of summer.

I remember my first summer job (not counting mowing lawns for Mrs. Preshaw, who had the longest earlobes I've ever seen or Mrs. Long who was all of 4 feet, 8 inches, tall and had 7 foot ceilings in her tiny bungalow). In that job, I was responsible for cooking up breakfasts for the local farmers and business-folks in my little town. I took the job just to make some money, but I learned a bit more than that. I learned how to think on my feet, what the word "expedite" meant and that I was still shy around cute waitresses.

Similar lessons are being learned by all the teens now hard at work in our community — even the shy lesson is being learned by some, I'm sure. Summer jobs are a great way for teens to learn that work is a necessary part of life. Whether flipping hamburgers or selling T-shirts, teens learn: 1) discipline 2) applied learning 3) patience 4) how to succeed 5) how to manage money and time 6) how to be of service to others.

Summer jobs can be a challenge for the family, however.

Parents often feel the need to be overly responsible for getting their teen to work on time. It's great to want to help your teen succeed, but it is the responsibility of the person who has the job to coordinate the rides and maintain clear communication about schedules to expedite (I guess, I still use that word even now) that happening.

I see a few codependent parents taking on more responsibility for their teen's successful job experience than the teens themselves do. That short-changes a teenager from really learning about discipline and service to others.

As a career coach, I also see value in teen's summer work as career exploration. Sure washing dishes this summer doesn't license you to be a doctor in summers to come, but it does teach you about what work you like to do.

If you're a working teen this summer don't just pay attention to the paycheck also pay attention to youself and your work. Do you like working with people or alone; do you like complicated tasks or routine tasks; are you curious about how the ice-cream machine works or are you more curious about why people pay good money to eat the creamy confectionery; are you better at working with your hands or working with ideas and words? All of these are questions that when explored help clarify a person's career path.

Of all the lessons learned from a summer job, I think the most important and most difficult may be learning how to provide service to others while also benefiting yourself. Some folks are good at just giving and never receiving, while others love receiving but have no concept of giving. The simple exchange at any corner gas station between clerk and customer is a lesson in how give good service to another, while also receiving the satisfaction of a job well done and the knowledge that you are earning your way through your good deeds.

Customer service is a paradox of both service to self and above self. Loving and caring for kids, spouses, family and friends evokes the same paradox.

A last note for that teenager who may want to be a doctor or car salesman or mechanic, whether working or not, make some time this summer to volunteer at a place where they do work that interests you. High school and college can train your brain, but they can't give you experience about what the day-to-day work is really like. Only putting yourself in that environment can give you a real feel for the job.

Now a quick note for those adults who are busy with their summer work: Don't forget that just as work is a necessary part of life, so is leisure and family.

Part of the work of summer is to soak up thet sun, doing what you love with the people that you love. You would think such an obvious truth would be easy to follow through, but not always so.

I heard a lot of complaining this spring about the cold weather and fretting about when summer would get here. Well, summer is here. The skies are blue and the lakes are cool. This is why so many of us have chosen to live or visit this little neck of the woods.

Take out that day planner and set up those dates to re-create in whatever manner will best rejuvenate your soul. That may be the most important of work of summer for both teens and adults.

Larry Feindt picked as county surveyor

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Larry Feindt has been chosen as Charlevoix County Surveyor, finishing the term of the late Mary Feindt, his mother.

Mary's death ended a 60 year career as surveyor for Charlevoix County. Feindt is confident that, like his mother, he will also serve the county well.

"There was a time when I thought I'd never do (this) for a living, but now I am. Funny how things change when you get older," Feindt said.

Those who know Feindt are happy he is in this new position for the county.

"He's very meticulous, very thorough and very knowledgable about surveying. We have the highest regard for him," said Sherm Chamberlain of Ferguson & Chamberlain Associates, Inc.

Chamberlain and co-owner John Ferguson worked for years with Feindt at Advanced Geomatics before starting their own business.

As County Surveyor, Feindt will be running Charlevoix County's remonumentation program which upholds the state's "Survey and Remonumentation Act," requiring that each county re-examine public land corners known as "monuments."

He will also maintain old survey records.

According to Feindt, every piece of land in the state of Michigan is organized by townships that were drawn when the state was created.

Within these townships are "public land corners." These are smaller land divisions also known as monuments, on every piece of public and private property.

"Everyone's property is based on public land," Feindt said.

With re-monumentation, property lines could change, depending on how the land was marked. In order to determine where the corners should be, Feindt will look at verbal testimony, fence-line occupation and old survey records.

The position of County Surveyor is a four year term, usually acquired by election. Feindt will be running for the position in the county election this November.

Feindt currently works as a surveyor for Advanced Geomatics, formerly known as Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering. The company was owned by his mother.

The company has a satellite location in Novi, outside of Detroit. Feindt does work at both locations, primarily for the Michigan Department of Transportation conducting surveys for road and freeway construction projects.

He plans to build a new facility for the Charlevoix headquarters on US-31 near the intersection of Birches Road. But, he is waiting for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce to purchase the current location in order to finance the move.

Garden Club plants at post office

Three years ago Jim and Christel Gibbons, members of the Charlevoix Garden Club, decided to beautify the Post Office garden space.

Many of the shrubs were doing poorly and color was needed.

A small committee was formed and petunias, day lilies were planted. The sidewalk was repaired and the following year a new sidewalk was built; none of which helped the plants.

Not to be deterred the committee planted over 200 bulbs of daffodils, but many were unable to survive the cold winter, so more will be planted this fall.

The committee planted 12 flats of petunias on May 23. This dedicated committee may be seen during various times of the season dead-heading, cleaning and pulling weeds.

"I have such a wonderful, dedicated committee and I am so proud of this community to beautify public and private space. I love this town," Christel said. So, the next time you are at the Post Office take a look and smell the flowers.

City considering time change with meters

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix City Council is looking into the possibility of saving downtown parking meter users a quarter an hour after business hours.

City council will discuss at its next meeting, July 7, the possibility of changing the parking meter ending time from 6 p.m. to 5 p.m. throughout the city.

At the last city council meeting, June 16, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President John Campbell questioned the merit of charging for parking after 5 p.m. when the lots are not filled to capacity.

"People are getting ticketed when the lot is only 50 percent full. Is that right if the purpose (of ticketing) is to move traffic through town?" he said.

Council members were in favor of looking into the parking times which are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, excluding holidays. The current hours have been in effect for 17 years but could be changed by a city council resolution.

City Manager Mike Weisner said at the city council meeting even if they decide to change the parking times, it is unlikely to switch this summer because of the number of signs around town listing 6 p.m. as the ending time.

Weisner and Police Chief Dennis Halverson said at the next city council meeting they will give a report of the current rules and operating procedures in regard to downtown parking as well as listen to feedback if citizens are present.

While most city council members were in favor of examining parking times, not everyone believes the times need to be changed.

"We've been operating under the existing system for a number of years. It seems to work," Weisner said.

Halverson wondered if the times should he changed as well. He said traffic volume changes in the city constantly and even though the lots may be half empty at times after 5 p.m., it is not an everyday occurrence.

"It's so variable that it can change from hour to hour downtown based on the time and the event," he said. "It's hard to predict downtown parking pressures. If the weather is cold or rainy it brings more people downtown."

Most parking meters in town charge 25 cents an hour and the fine for not paying a meter is $2. However, there are some cost exceptions depending on which of the over 200 meters people to choose to park in.

Halverson said the hack row of meters located behind Whitney's Oyster Bar are 10 hour meters that cost a dime an hour. Their purpose is to provide an alternative to employees who have to park downtown all day.

Some areas downtown are not metered, but still subject to time enforcement, such as the spots located directly in front City Hall. Cars are allowed to remain there for only 15 minute or 2 hour time increments.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he would like to see the parking meters by the Beaver Island Boat Company changed in this way. He has received several complaints from people saying the primary function of parking in front of the boat company is only to load and unload quickly and there is no need for parking meters.

"I think it would be better served if they just said 15 minute parking," Campbell said. "I think its kind of cheeky to always be asking for money."

But he acknowledged there still needs to be some sort of regulation in the area.

"They have to have some kind of a thing so people don't sit there all day," he said.

Dunmaglas site of another 'Symphony'

"It Don't Mean a Thing if it Ain't Got that Swing" may be music to some ears, hut to a golfer it's everything.

How appropriate then that this year's fifth annual Symphony on the Green is being given once again at the Dunmaglas Golf Course in Charlevoix. Featuring the world-renowned Glenn Miller Orchestra, the event will take place under the stars in a setting designed to get the audience "In the Mood."

Miller, a musician with a passion for his music, may have appreciated the chosen location and the patient man with a passion for redesigning Dunmaglas Golf Course into one that can be enjoyed by even the average player.

Mike Pung, one of the present owners said, "The original designers, Chuck MacGillivray and Larry Mancour, did a great joh, but they made the course too tough for the market. So, we've spent the last year and a half softening and making the course playable for the average golfer."

Nestled in the nearly 900 acres of natural beauty and wildlife is The Barn at Dunmaglas — location for the Glenn Miller concert.

The July 11 concert is being presented by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation and will benefit the surgical services department of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"With the hospital's recently completed expansion there are equipment needs throughout the hospital," said Amy Lalewicz, chair of this year's event. "We are focusing our fund-raising efforts on equipment needs for the surgical services department. Additionally we will be making our annual gift to the Crooked Tree Arts Council Beginning Strings program for northern Antrim and Charlevoix County and we have purchased a Red Cross fish as a part of the Great Northern Fish-In."

Concert-goers will have an opportunity to enjoy the views at Dunmaglas and may even be treated to an unexpected visit by some of the wildlife that roams free on the golf greens and throughout the woods.

Pung, who spends most days at Dunmaglas moving soil and tweaking the greens, the roughs and pathways, said on two consecutive days recently wildlife intervened in the play.

"The first day I watched a fox trot onto the green, take a look around and then grab my golf ball and take off. The next day, playing with friends, one of their balls was stolen when a deer walked across the green, picked up the ball and strolled off," he said.

An ideal setting for a "Sunrise Serenade," "A Sentimental Journey" or a little "Stardust."

While the music program is not selected until the evening of the event, Larry O'Brien, director of the Glenn Miller Orchestra has promised a wide range of music with selections from a list that includes: "Little Brown Jug," "A String of Pearls," "Tuxedo Junction," "Juke Box Saturday Night," "I've Got a Gal in Kalamazoo" and other popular selections from the Glenn Miller library.

Patron ticket holders for the concert will receive a $20 discount from Dunmaglas if they would like to play golf earlier on July 11. Pung and Smith are happy to have the concert return to Dunmaglas and are offering this discount for patron ticket holders in appreciation of the support they are giving to the hospital.

There are three ticket prices starting with the $200 patron ticket ($120 tax deductihle) including dinner before the concert and dessert afterward with the orchestra. The patron ticket also includes seating under the tent with the musicians.

Youth committee awards area grants

Several area organizations and recreational activities are benefiting from the decisions made by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee.

The committee awarded $13,700 toward recreation and other opportunities to benefit teens throughout Charlevoix County. Projects ranged from ball field scoreboards and life vests, to leadership training and art festivals.

There were 12 non-profit organizations receiving committee money within this funding cycle. The organizations, the successful projects and amount of the grant awards are as follows:

- Beaver Island Community School — $800 for continuation of the school/community garden.
- Boyne City Little League — $1,100 to purchase scoreboards for the new ball fields.
- Camp Daggett — $1,500 to purchase 75 life vests for campers.
- Challenge Mountain — $2,000 to purchase assistive technology for the visually impaired.
- M.S.U. Extension, Charlevoix County — $500 towards the "Take A Day On" program to promote leadership training and volunteerism among youth.
- Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency — $450 to provide local match support for the Head Start "Reading is Fundamental" program.
- Raven Hill Discovery Center — $1,275 to fund school visits to "Beyond Jurassic Park: Experiencing Michigan's Geologic History." The project makes prehistoric plants, animals and the environment of the past as familiar to children as the dinosaurs of Jurassic Park.
- VSA Arts of Michigan — $2,000 to support a barrier-free arts festival for special needs students.
- Connect Michigan — $750 to support a statewide endowment campaign for volunteerism.
- American Red Cross — $525 to purchase four child mannequins for use with childcare training classes.
- BASES — $2,000 towards renovation of the teen center.
- Charlevoix Mariners — $800 to purchase 40 life vests for the summer sailing classes

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee has now distributed more than $375,000 to programs benefiting young people since the group started making grants in 1994.

Money for grant making comes from a special endowment called the Charlevoix County Youth Fund held by the Community Foundation. The fund was spearheaded with financial support from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and has assets of more than $1 million.

Members of the Community Foundation Youth Advisory Committee are Kristen Russell, Danielle Cary and Rachel McDonough from Beaver Island; Erin Moriarity, Reed Ameel and Riley O'Brien from Boyne City; Megan Pemicano, Ashley Mauchmar and Darryl Kowalski from Boyne Falls; Travis Smith, AnnaKate Trubilowicz and Matt Teuscher from Charlevoix; and Patrick Teske, Tahitha Grover and Sierra Roberts from East Jordan.

Since it was founded by a group of local citizens in 1992, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's assets have grown to $8.4 million and grant making amounts to over $4 million. A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments.

Every year, a portion of the endowment's investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing charitable capital to perpetually benefit Charlevoix County residents and nonprofit organizations.

The next deadline for submitting a grant request to the foundation for youth related projects is Oct. 1, 2003. For more information about grant making opportunities or the community foundation call (231) 536-2440.

Duerr to be honored by friends of library

Margaret Duerr

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will honor Margaret Duerr for her many years of service to the library and for her special interest in the library's Michigan Room.

The new "Bob Miles' CHARLEVOIX II" book by the Charlevoix Historical Society will be donated in Duerr's name to the Michigan Room collection.

Duerr was the library's interim director following the retirement of long time librarian Florenz Milner and the appointment of the new director, Dorothy Olmstead.

Duerr organized the library's move from the old Carnegie Building on State Street to the new library on Clinton Street. She directed a large group of volunteers that carried all the books to their new location.

She later worked as a volunteer at the library and devoted many hours cataloguing books in the Michigan Room.

Duerr and her late husband, Charles Duerr, were long time Charlevoix residents and were very active in the community.

The friends have decided to establish a Margaret Duerr Book Award which will be given annually to honor an individual who has shown an interest in the history of the Northern Michigan area.

A book will be selected and added to the library's Michigan Room collection annually.

JUL 2003

ANNUAL DRINKING WATER QUALITY REPORT
OF THE
City of Charlevoix Water Supply

June 2003

The 1998 Michigan Safe Drinking Water Act, (1976 PA 399, as amended) requires all Community Water Supplies to provide to its customers Consumer Confidence Reports as required by title XIV of the Public Health Service Act, chapter 373, 88 Stat. 1660, popularly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act.

This report is provided to the customers of the City of Charlevoix Water Supply, and covers the reporting period of calendar year 2002. It is not being mailed to individual mailing addresses. The report is available at the following locations: City of Charlevoix City Hall, Charlevoix Public Library, Water Treatment Plant at 97 Grant Street, Charlevoix Electric & Water Department at 401 Carpenter Ave. Copies are available by mail from the City Manager's Office, 210 State Street, Box 550, Charlevoix, MI 49720. This report is also available for viewing on the City's internet web page at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Here is this year's Annual Quality Water Report.

It is designed to inform you about the quality drinking water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Our water comes from Lake Michigan, considered surface water. The State is performing an assessment of our source water; we will inform you how to get a copy when it is available.

We are pleased to report that your drinking water is safe and meets all State and Federal requirements.

This report is a snapshot of the quality of the water we provided to you in the year 2002. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and State of Michigan standards.

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Sam Creswell at the Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant, (231) 547-3256, or Ed Whitley at the Charlevoix Water Department. (231) 547-3278. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. The City of Charlevoix Water Supply routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State Laws.

This report shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1 thru December 31, 2002. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals which can be naturally occurring or result from urban stormwater run- off, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.

Radioactive contaminants, which are naturally occurring.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

The State of Michigan and Environmental Protection Agency require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety.

We met all monitoring requirements for the year 2002.

Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant and Distribution System personnel sampled and tested for over 100 contaminants that were NOT detected in our water supply. The following constituents were detected at low but safe levels, well below the MCL (Maximum Contaminant Level).

In the following tables you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - A pico equals one part per trillion, the measurement of radiation in water.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

n/a: not applicable

n/d: not detectable at testing limit

NOTES:

* Turbidity - turbidity is a measure of the cloudiness of the water. We monitor it because it is an indicator of our filtration system.

Lead and Copper - Lead and copper testing is on a three (3) year schedule, test results reported here are from the 2000 year; next round of testing is year 2003. (No lead was detected)*

Unregulated contaminants are those for which the EPA has not established drinking water standards. The purpose of unregulated contaminant monitoring is to assist EPA in determining the occurrence of unregulated contaminants in drinking water and whether future regulation is warranted.

We're pleased that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water is SAFE at these levels.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno- compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

About our system. . . .

The City of Charlevoix operates a Direct Filtration Water Treatment Facility which uses water from Lake Michigan. With a capacity of approximately 3 million gallons per day, water enters the plant through a submerged intake structure. Storage includes a one million gallon above ground reservoir at the plant, and a 300,000 gallon elevated tank (water tower) on Charlevoix's north side. The City has approximately 32 miles of distribution lines serving approximately 5,000 customers in the City of Charlevoix and areas of adjoining Charlevoix Township, as well as the influx of summer visitors to the area. Present flow rates vary from around 400,000 gallons per day in the winter to as much as 2.5 million gallons per day in the summer. In service since 1987, it is a modern, efficient facility staffed by licensed, well trained operators. Charlevoix is continually improving it's distribution system assuring fresh water and adequate pressure throughout our entire service area. An electrical generator at the Water Plant assures normal operation at full capacity in the event of loss of electrical power. We at the Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant and Distribution System work around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap.

Season brings summer ordinances in Charlevoix

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

As summer visitors flock to Charlevoix this July, increasing the population of the area greatly, it is important to remember there are several city ordinances designed to make life easier on everyone.

These ordinances deal with everything from alcohol in the parks to lighting off fireworks at night. Here are some of them according to Charlevoix Chief of Police Dennis Halverson:

- Alcohol is permitted at Michigan Beach, Depot Beach, East Park and Ferry Beach before 9:30 p.m. Mount McSauba Beach is not located within the city limits.
- Vehicles can only be parked on city streets and in city controlled parking lots for up to 48 hours. Halverson said they will be towed after that.
- Noise ordinances are enforced in Charlevoix, especially between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., Halverson said. Generally, if it can be heard over 100 feet, it is too loud and this includes car stereos.
- Burning garbage is prohibited in the city, although you can have a campfire in your backyard if there are no complaints by neighbors.
- Tickets are written for fireworks in Charlevoix. "If it makes noise or moves, it is prohibited," Halverson said.
- Traffic is always a problem in the summer. Halverson suggests residents use their knowledge of the roads to their advantage in the summer. "Know those areas that are more likely to give you problems and when you can avoid them," he said.

According to Halverson, many of these ordinances not only make life easier on everyone in Charlevoix, but they also make life safer.

"Safety never takes a vacation," he said.

2. Supports the community editorially?
3. Provides a forum for citizens to express their views?
4. Documents the history of the community?
5. Provides glimpses into our community's past each week?
6. Is the only newspaper devoted to the interests of the Charlevoix community?

SPORTS

Plenty of individual sports at Venetian

The 2003 Venetian Games feature an array of team and individual events.

This week's focus is on individual events.

Two popular events from last year, golf and tennis, have both been expanded to allow for more participation. However, both will maintain their last year's entry restriction which required participants to have a Charlevoix area mailing address, thus keeping the event for local enthusiasts.

There is golf for all ages with the Keith Carey Cup. Keith Carey was a popular long-time manager of the Municipal Golf Course and the event is a tribute to his memory. Local adult and junior golfers currently are vying for the championship trophies.

The manager of the golf tournament, Scott Blechel, has seen several weeks of qualifying play and now competition has moved into match play in the early rounds. Each flight's championship is scheduled for Tuesday, July 22, of Venetian week, but is determined by weather.

The tennis tournament, sponsored by the Charlevoix Historical Society, has grown to a week-long event format. It will take place during the entire Venetian week climaxing with the finals on Thursday, July 24. The tournament is under the direction of Charlevoix Historical Society.

Registration is through the Charlevoix City Recreation Department at City Hall by calling 547-3253. The tournament is open to all ages and abilities, including seniors. The tournament will include singles, doubles and mixed doubles.

The popular Jeff Drenth Road Race, a memorial to Charlevoix's finest distance runner, will again feature 10k, 5k and 1 mile races. Registration is again through the Charlevoix City Recreation Department.

The race date is the morning of Saturday, July 26, and starts at Mt. McSauba. The event has grown to become a tradition for Midwest distance runners as was evident last year when the Big Ten champion was among the participants.

Swimming for all ages will again be hosted by the Charlevoix Area Community Pool with Al Gooch serving as event manager. Participants need only to show up and register at 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, July 23, to compete. Races include freestyle, backstroke, butterfly, breaststroke and IM events. For more information call the pool at 547-0982.

Two fairly new events, disc golf and sporting clays, were well received and will be repeated this year.

Disc golf, is a fast growing sport which involves baskets and a disc-like Frisbee. It's played similar to golf with various "holes" accompanied with assorted hazards. There will be three levels of competition: novice, intermediate and advanced. This event is on Sunday, July 27.

Registration in advance is available at the Charlevoix City Recreation office or on site at Mount McSauba.

Sporting clays is a Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club sponsored event for certified marksmen with registration at the club site, Sunday, July 27. Last year's event drew the best marksmen from all over the Midwest.

A new event utilizing the new bike trail north of town will combine two types of biking.

The first is a bike hike with challenges along the route. This event will have an emphasis on items you will see along the trail. The serious biker that intends to make the entire 26 mile course willalso be challenged.

The Top of Michigan Trail Council is organizing the event which will start at Charlevoix Township Hall (Waller and Old Orchard Road).

Sign in, start and late registration will be from 1 to 2 p.m. Early registration is $12 and on site $15, which includes a Venetian shirt and opportunities for prizes. More details can be secured at the Charlevoix City Recreation Department.

Last year over 2,000 participants took part in the Venetian Games and with this year's expanded offerings, the number is expected to greatly increase.

For additional information call Venetian Games Commissioner Dean Davenport 547-6433 or the Charlevoix City Recreation Office at 547-3253.

Next week we will focus on Bingo in the park and the Venetian Cup Sailing Regatta.

Sheriff watching for illegal fireworks

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater is asking everyone to be sensible about using fireworks this Fourth of July.

"The upcoming Fourth of July is a time of celebration, let's not make it a time of tragedy too," he said. "I know it's part of the tradition on the Fourth, but too often we have people suffering severe injuries because of fireworks."

There are two types of fireworks, according to Lasater.

The first type is "Class B," manufactured and used for professional displays. These are illegal in the state of Michigan without a permit.

The second type is "Class C," these are the kind commonly sold in stores for consumer use. They include paper caps, toy trick noise makers, sparklers, fountains, toy snakes and toy smoke devices. They are legal in the state of Michigan and do not require a permit.

If you are unsure about which type of firework you have, follow this guideline: If it makes a loud bang or leaves the ground it is illegal.

Always follow the directions on the packaging. Never hold fireworks in your hands or around your eyes and ears. Always use fireworks in an open area and never check a malfunctioning firework.

Always leave it alone for at least an hour and soak it with water to ensure that it won't explode.

Lasater added, consider the alternative — attending your county's display, leaving the fireworks to the professionals.

For a complete listing of both legal and illegal fireworks in the state of Michigan, please visit www.michigan.gov/documents/bulletin12 9109 7.pdf.

Further questions can be directed to the Fire Marshall Division of the Michigan State Police at (517) 322-1924.

Cemex: Bill would not affect operations

BILL

the law does change, it is unlikely it will affect how the company disposes of CKD.

"It might change the administrative reporting functions with it, but it doesn't mean we will start disposing of CKD in a manner that will be dangerous to the environment," she said.

Buckler said the company currently disposes CKD in accordance with Michigan requirements under a type three waste rule as a low hazardous industrial waste.

"Even though the waste rule might change, there's a myriad of other rules that come into play. It's not just a single regulation that can sweep it off the books. They work in harmony," she said.

Charlevoix County Representative Kenneth Bradstreet said he would support the legislation as it stands now because it more clearly defines inert materials.

"As I look at it, it doesn't really even do anything other than clarify something," he said. "I'm not sure it really does anything."

Bradstreet said the state already grants wavers to CKD and recognizes that much of the byproduct is inert.

The bill's primary sponsor is Representative Clark Bisbee, of Jackson, but Roskoskey said he is uncertain who is trying to pass the bill through the Michigan House of Representatives. The three cement plants in the state, LaFarge in Alpena, Holcim in Dundee and Cemex in Charlevoix, would stand to benefit most from the bill.

"It could be any one or all of them. I can't really tell," he said.

Roskoskey said the increased disposal costs by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality this year could be a factor in trying to banish current CKD disposal regulations.

The proposed legislation is still early on in legislative processes which may render the legislation moot before it has time to gain final approval and passage.

The Environmental Protection Agency has taken note of the effects CKD produces on the environment and is considering adopting a national law regulating the material as hazardous. If so, federal law would take precedent over state law and cement plants would have to dispose of the waste according to governmental standards.

The current regulations were set because, in the past, the material was unregulated and caused environmental problems which Michigan officials wanted to eliminate. CKD is currently regulated as a solid waste and, by Michigan law, cement plants must have a licensed landfill where they are required to dispose of the material.

Roskoskey said CKD is highly alkaline and can produce a leachate with a pH balance as high as 12, which can render groundwater unsafe for consumption and dangerous to aquatic life.

A pH balance of 12.5 is considered hazardous, but Roskoskey said DEQ officials have yet to see a pH balance of 12.5 or above in CKD contaminated water.

CKD, in clean-up studies by the Resource and Redevelopment Division, also has been found to produce lead, mercury, lithium, selenium, cadmium, arsenic and barium in soil. Its effects on air are mainly the nuisance of increased dust particles.

Under Michigan rule, cement plants do have a right to declare the material as inert said Roskoskey.

Included on the list of current inert materials are rocks, chipped tires, trees and stumps, low hazard industrial waste, excavated soil, construction brick and pavement. But Roskoskey said many of the items listed as inert materials have very strict definitions placed on them to ensure they do not include hazardous materials.

CKD can be beneficial to the environment in certain circumstances, however the uses are not sound proof.

The material can be used in land applications to change the pH balance of soils on farms that go acidic after time.

However Roskoskey said there are fewer and fewer farms meaning the materials would have to be transported lengthy distances.

CKD could also be used for filling in road surfaces, but given its dusty composition Roskoskey doubts it would work well.

Charlevoix, Beaver Island, Horton Bay to have parades

PARADES

Island, 85 are members of the American Veterans post.

F-16 jetfighters from the Michigan National Guard will start the parade by flying overhead at a minimum of 1,000 feet and may execute a high performance climb. The parade will be led by 15 retired Marine officers who reside on the island.

For parade entries contact West at (231) 448-2505. Parade entries will be announced by master of ceremonies, Lisa Gillespie.

What is unique about the Beaver Island parade is that spectators are able to see it twice if they happen to be standing in certain locations. According to West, the prime viewing areas are on Main Street at The Shamrock Bar and Restaurant and also at the ferry dock.

Spectators interested in attending, who do not reside on the island, can take a ferry that departs from Bridge Park Drive in downtown Charlevoix.

Horton Bay's annual political satire parade is at 1 p.m. This year's parade theme is "The Cradle of Civilization."

"In Horton Bay we celebrate our nation's birth unlike any other," said John Rohe, of The Horton Bay Parade Committee. "It is a parade of humor and good cheer."

All parade entries are subject to approval of the committee; those who are interested should contact Rohe at (231) 347-7327.

No commercial or serious political entries are allowed. No motorized vehicles will be in the parade unless they are creatively decorated or used as towing entries. Poor taste entries will be declined in this family event.

Entry applicants are allowed a two-minute presentation in front of the judges' stand at the Horton Bay General Store.

The parade lineup will be at 12 p.m. and Rohe has promised a very festive occasion as entries are coming in.

The parade takes place on Boyne City Road, beginning at the Horton Bay Road intersection and ending at the Horton Bay Methodist Church. Spectators and participants are encouraged to arrive as early as possible.

Rohe said, the first all-girl rock band, "The Fertile Crescents," are expected to make an appearance as well as the first prom queen from 10,000 B.C. Evidence of the first marriage and the first divorce will also be presented.

The Horton Bay Parade Committee is made up of several people who reside in the "civic, cultural and community center of Bay Township" known as Horton Bay. It is a small community located between Charlevoix and Boyne City Road.

Each year they formulate a theme for their parade.

"This is not a pretty process, you wouldn't want to try this at home," says Rohe.

The idea is to have a parade without any commercialism. The parade committee believes most other parades held across the country merely tell the public how to be good consumers.

Rohe said, they are "an anesthetizing stream of commercial billboards."

Horton Bay wishes to discourage this as much as possible, he added.

The parade has been nationally recognized in newspapers across the country and was featured in the 2002 edition of Eccentric America magazine.

"We tend to believe all other parades are eccentric," Rohe said.

The parade is funded by the community through local donations.

Many summer projects for city

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The city of Charlevoix has a full plate on its hands this summer with plenty of construction projects underway and several more on the horizon.

City Manager Mike Weisner said there are currently several projects in the works, but this summer is not very different from any other.

"We've had more active years, but we've got plenty this year," he said. "It wouldn't be any fun if we weren't busy."

Some of the projects in the construction phase are the City Hall renovation, resurfacing four city streets and the bathroom trailer added behind the bandshell

Feathered family helped by company

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Spectrus Lexalite International Corporation has taken a single mother and her six children under its wing since she unexpectedly dropped into the company less than a month ago.

This happened when a mother duck flew into the company's atrium in mid-June and laid her eggs. Sometime on the weekend of June 20, the nine ducklings hatched, but three have passed away since then.

Modeling after the saying "it takes a village to raise a child," almost a dozen people have chipped in to help care for the mother duck and her family.

"The maintenance crew has been great at making sure they have food every morning," Vice President of Administration Patt Blanchard said.

Spectrus Lexalite, located on US-31 North, is a plastics injection molding manufacturer of lighting components. Specializing in inert materials, the employees did not have any specific duck care knowledge, but have been doing their research.

When the mother duck flew into the atrium and laid her nest, employees found a web site online that gave the gestation time for duck eggs. When they came to work the following Monday, the babies were hatched and they knew the ducklings were born early.

The mother and her ducklings have now become sort of the company mascot.

"We're all kind of attached to them," Blanchard said.

International Sales Manager Lisa Hoyt said having them around has boosted morale.

"You come in for water or a cup of coffee, take a look at them and it puts a smile on your face," Hoyt said.

Nagel's quick thinking keeps child safe

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

It was just another day at work for Charlevoix lifeguard Jessica Nagel, 17, of Ellsworth on June 24.

But, just another day for her meant an 8-year-old girl was kept out of harm's way thanks to Nagel's attention.

"It is what I would expect out of our lifeguards," said Charlevoix Recreation Department Director Ike Boss. "It is just the day in the life of a lifeguard."

On that day, Nagel was keeping watch over several swimmers around 2 p.m. at Ferry Beach, when she noticed an 8-year-old girl on an inflatable raft. The girl was out past the swim markers but by a boat.

Nagel said she thought the girl was with a boat anchored near the swim area, but realized she wasn't when a gust of wind started to push the girl's raft farther out in the water.

As soon as she noticed this, Nagel sprang into action and swam out to the girl. She said she heard an adult yell behind her, further confirming her thoughts that the girl was in trouble — she said she later learned the girl's mother had not noticed she had gone out so far on the raft.

"I didn't really think. I just thought about bringing her in," Nagel said.

When she got to the girl, Nagel said she noticed her eyes were closed and the girl did not realize how far out she was in the water. Nagel told the girl she was going to bring her in and swam her and the raft to shore.

Nagel said this was just part of her job, but to the parents of the girl, it was more than that. According to lifeguard supervisor Gerard Doan, he received a call from the girl's parents wanting to thank Nagel for her quick reflexes.

Nagel is a first year lifeguard and said she has not had any other experiences like that yet this summer.

"I really like it. I love swimming and I swim all the time. This is the perfect job for me," Nagel said of being a lifeguard in Charlevoix.

Doan said incidents like Nagel's happen at least once a week during the summer in Charlevoix.

"There are a lot of things that just get overlooked that you would term a rescue or assist," he said.

In this instance, Doan said Nagel was right on it.

"You never know when something is going to happen. You have to be ready every day," Doan said.

He said it is a difficult job for lifeguards in Charlevoix, because they have to keep an eye on around 200 people at a time who are swimming in the waters surrounding the beaches in Charlevoix. Plus, they have to be ready at a moment's notice to act.

Additionally, making things difficult on the lifeguards is some people confuse them with baby-sitters. Boss said people are regularly dropping their children off at one of the city beaches and asking a lifeguard to keep an eye on them.

Nagel said, "Lifeguards are here to watch the water. You (parents) keep an eye on your kids, too, and we will do our jobs and keep an eye on everyone."

But, even with all these difficulties, Charlevoix beaches have been safe for bathers.

Boss said, "We are so diligent on the rules to try to get ourselves to where we don't have to do a rescue. We have not had a drowning on Charlevoix public beaches since the lifeguards have been on duty."

Doan added, the last actual "full fledged" rescue on a Charlevoix beach was last summer when he pulled a drowning swimmer from the water of Lake Michigan Beach.

Help Charlevoix remain beautiful

EDITORIAL

Trash like this has been seen all over Charlevoix. Please clean up after yourself. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

It is tiring having to write this editorial every year, but it must be done.

Charlevoix is a great place to be in the summer. It is a wonderful playground for those who love the outdoors, with its acres of forests and miles of beaches to enjoy.

This area is awash with natural beauty. From late at night as the moonlight dances across the water to the next day's sunset when the skies turn from blue to several brilliant shades of orange, Charlevoix is truly the most beautiful place on earth.

It is this greatness that brings in people from all over the world.

But, some of these people seem to take Charlevoix's beauty for granted. They think this playground is thiers to do with what they please and are not afraid to muck it up. These people are nothing more than disgusting litterbugs.

Every summer it is the same thing, a few bad apples visit Charlevoix and toss their trash everywhere but in the many trash cans around town. What these lazy people do not realize is that they are giving a bad impression of visitors to the locals and they are harming the very beauty we cherish.

Please clean up after yourself when you visit Charlevoix this summer. Help us keep Charlevoix a beautiful place in the future.

Milk sickness can still be a threat in northern Michigan

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Milk sickness was a terrifying disease in nineteenth-century America.

It troubled settlers all along the American frontier in the Midwest. In Michigan, it was common in the southern part of the lower peninsula for decades.

The disease usually struck in late summer or early fall and might wipe out most of a small rural settlement in a few weeks. The cows looked sickly and trembled, which also gave the disease the nickname "the trembles."

Calves might die and often rural children and adults died a few days after showing symptoms. It was not until well into the twentieth century that causes were understood and control of the disease was possible.

The potential for the disease is still out there waiting for the right circumstances.

In the 1800s, no one knew what caused milk sickness. We can now say that the basic cause of milk sickness is a common and pleasant, white-flowered plant that grows at the edge of wooded areas or in damp woods and usually blooms in August.

Commonly called White Snakeroot, it is so similar to some of its relatives that precise identification is difficult. The plant contains a poison which is soluble in fats and is secreted in milk by lactating cows. Even after drying, White Snakeroot retains the poison.

A cow can consume a considerable quantity of White Snakeroot without major symptoms since the poison is eliminated with milking. Calves and children may die while the cow, providing them with milk, is nearly symptom free.

The toxin in the milk is very stable and survives pasteurization and even persists in cheese made with the milk. Humans consuming the milk or milk products show serious symptoms quickly and may die within a few days.

It is no surprise that the disease followed the frontier. As settlers cleared forests for pasturage, suitable habitat for White Snakeroot increased. Since many families consumed only milk that had been produced on their farm, the disease seemed to strike whole families.

Children and calves often showed symptoms before anyone noticed that the cows were a little unsteady. Most dairies in those early days received milk or cream from only a few local farmers and White Snakeroot almost certainly grew on all the local farms.

Why is this story of more than 100 years ago of interest in our day?

The plant still grows abundantly over most of Michigan and looks as innocuous as it ever did. Cattle still eat the plant if it is available.

What keeps us from milk sickness most of the time now is the large volume of milk from a variety of herds, most of which are fed a carefully controlled diet to maximize milk production.

It is, however, just as true now as it was 150 years ago that any cow which consumes some quantity of White Snakeroot produces poisonous milk. If that potentially troubling milk is mixed with thousands of gallons of non-contaminated milk, the poison is diluted well beyond the point of being troublesome. Milk from a single herd of cows who are fed mostly from fresh summer pasture near wooded areas is as much a risk as it was in 1850.

In these days of our increasing favor for the free range and the "natural," milk sickness is still a potential threat. It would be well to know the source of milk or any milk products that might potentially be from a single, pasture-fed herd.

There is no specific treatment for the poisoning, although consumption of alcohol was occasionally recommended in the nineteenth century when physicians observed that those who drank heavily were never troubled with milk sickness.

We will remember what France did

Editor:

I am writing in response to your editorial of June 25. In your analogy of Americans' attitude toward the recent betrayal by France and a school yard scuffle, one of your questions is, "I just don't understand it." Please view the attached picture for a concise explanation that speaks volumes (The picture was of a graveyard in Normandy, France, containing the bodies of Allied soldiers who died in World War II - Editor). These American's gave their lives so that you can write as you please while France can make decisions as she sees fit.

However, decisions always have consequences as a result. France was publicly saying (in the United Nations) "wait, wait, wait" on the sanctions while continuing to make deals with Iraq. You might read an article by Bill Gertz of the Washington Times, May 24, 2003. I quote, "A U.S. military intelligence team in Iraq has uncovered a dozen French passports and defense officials believe other French passports from the same batch were used by Iraqis to flee the country."

Can you really respect an opponent who behaves in such a way? The playing field in a grammar school fight would be a more level playing field than the world situation that we have recently faced.

I strongly suggest that you interview several of our local war veterans if your truly want to understand how many Americans view the actions of France. Now is the time to move forward with the peace process. Being a "good sport" is one thing (a very admirable trait), but evaluating and protecting our national security is quite another.

France has, once again, backed herself into a corner. I don't believe that our citizens will forget that fact too quickly. It is not necessary to hate the French people or their leaders, yet we do need to remember the stand that France failed to take. "E tu Brute?""Remember the Alamo!" "Peace in our time." Some events are best remembered for the future, in order that we may know who are real "friends" are.

(Editor's note: In a letter to the President of the United States, the French government strongly denied any connection to any French passports that may have been found in Iraq. Furthermore, the article also stated that it was not known how the passports got into Iraq or if they were forged. It should also be noted that there have been no official confirmations of the Washington Times report as the article used unnamed sources.)

Thank you

Editor:

When an event is as magnificent as the "Trimper Children's Benefit" on Sunday, June 29, you know scores of dedicated people were involved.

Six months of planning with hundreds of man-hours being spent by "The Charlevoix Coalition Against MLD" members — Sam and Cindy Supernaw; Jeff and Lenore Morgridge; Dave and Kelly Herboldsheimer; Ron and Jill Way; Dane and Lynne Tollas; Jim and Nomi Morgridge; Kendall Campaigne and Joe Hayes — to produce an event that was flawless.

There are so many people to thank, it is impossible to recognize everyone individually. There were scores of volunteers who kept everything running smoothly. But for the event's host, Linda Mueller and family, who have done such a magnificent job in restoring "The Castle," Denise Sobleski and Tom Urban of Special Events for their assistance in facilitating the event, Scott McKenzie who did such an outstanding job as the auctioneer keeping things lively and fun and Fran Tollas and all of the entertainers who filled the great hall with wonderful music, we thank you all so much.

But all of that work would have been to no avail if it had not been for the hundred-plus generous people who donated such an outstanding array of gifts to be auctioned and the 700 citizens who attended the event and were so supportive with their gracious donations.

Charlevoix, we are so proud of you and we are overwhelmed, humbled, and deeply and forever indebted.

Why did district charge non-profit group?

Editor:

I would like to applaud the director and Ragamuffin Children's Theater and Choir for the absolutely fantastic performances of Annie, Jr. It was most delightful and very professionally done. Everything about it was top-notch. How very fortunate as a community to have such a talented, quality group. Of course little Annie (did you know she is only 9 years old?) was incredible and endearing along with the rest of the troupe.

However, there was one big black mark concerning this production. The amount this Charlevoix children's, non-profit group was charged by our very own public school is outrageous! Take a guess how much. Not hundreds, not one thousand or two thousand, hut about three thousand dollars! Is this the kind of treatment we, as taxpayers, can expect to charge local, non-profit groups?

Due to certain copyright requirements, charging admission was not feasible. Instead, admission was free but donations appreciated. Is this scary or what? I hope and pray.they did at least meet expenses.

Just thought you, as a community, need to know how our public school treats a local, children's, non-profit group. And perhaps "tomorrow" will bring a brand new day in treatment of local groups.

Library to consider design of old school

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "We would like to have interior designers and the contract person working together."
> Valerie Meyerson,
> Charlevoix Public Library Director

Charlevoix library board members will listen to several presentations this week to decide who will design the interior of the new library and how to manage the project.

A special meeting will take place 4 p.m., Wednesday, July 9, in the library basement to hear interior design presentations from three representatives. Yesterday, the library board of trustees heard presentations during its regularly scheduled meeting from two construction management companies in the library basement.

"We've done a lot of preliminary research of what to look for. We're looking for someone we can work with and someone who has renovation experience — and better even historic renovation experience," Library Director Valerie Meyerson said.

She said the public is welcome to attend and ask questions during the public comment portion of the meeting.

On Wednesday, July 9, two teams will present design plans for the interior of the old middle school property to the library board of trustees.

Alyce Riemenschneider will present at 4 p.m. and Stephanie Savage and Bill Williams of Engberg Anderson Design Partnership will present at 5:30 p.m.

Engberg Anderson is doing the majority of the design work on the outside of the building, but these presentations will be strictly for the interior design portion which includes carpeting, equipment, furniture and color schemes.

The July 10 meeting is the regularly scheduled library meeting and, aside from appointing next years officers, Duane Wickson of Clarke Construction and Dave LeVevre of the Christman Company will present in hopes of their companies receiving a construction manager bid for the project.

Meyerson said they are hoping to get a third construction management company to present.

Library members are still unsure if they want to use a construction management company for the old middle school as opposed to a general contractor.

"We don't know if we're going that route yet, but if we decide to go that route, we'll know who we want to work with," she said.

Both construction managers and general contractors are designed to help facilitate the building project.

Meyerson said a construction manager would comes on to the project earlier, help with design issues and work on a flat fee.

The library would get more say than with a general contractor because the construction managers also find the bids and allow the board to decide which ones to accept, where as a general contractor is hired for a certain amount of money and bids out subcontractors for the project.

"We're still looking at all the different pros and cons," Meyerson said.

She said the board would like to get both the contractor and interior designer set in place for a better collaborative effort.

"We would like to have interior designers and the contract person working together," Meyerson said.

Coast Guard helps out with flower weeding

Coast Guard members Nic Porta, "The Doc" and Patrick McCracken weed the beds of petunias along Michigan Avenue Thursday morning. McCracken said the flowers were dying when they began weeding. (Photo by Amy Sayre)

By AMY SAYRE

Charlevoix's petunia population was weeded out last Thursday by United States Coast Guard volunteers, but city officials are still searching to find someone to weed in the coming months.

City Manager Mike Weisner asked Coast Guard officials last week if they would weed the beds of petunias that line Charlevoix's city streets because the city had lost its usual weeding bidder and the flowers were in need of care.

"We were very pleased and fortunate the Coast Guard was available," he said.

Peggy's Gardening in Petoskey has weeded the flowers for the past three years, but this year the city decided to pursue lower bidders than Peggy's offer. When city officials interviewed the low bidders, none could perform the massive weeding task.

By the time the city got around to contacting Peggy's Gardening, the service had already booked itself with another client.

"We haven't run into this problem, not since the city has taken the weeding over," Street Superintendent John Martin said.

Petunia weeding takes place approximately four times every summer, but Martin said they are still in the process of trying to find someone to pluck the petunia pests on future dates.

While the Coast Guard volunteers were able to do the job this time around, their schedule in the future looks like it will prevent them from helping again.

"I just don't think we're going to be able to work it out in our schedule," Lieutenant Dave Wilhelm of the Coast Guard said.

He said the Coast Guard has long training periods coming up, preparations for the Venetian Festival and maintenance they have to perform at the ship yard, so devoting more time to taking care of the flowers is not conducive with their schedule.

Bob Hoffman, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, said the annual budget for planting the petunias is $17,000. His organization has provided planting and watering for the petunias for many years and only a few years ago the city took over the task of weeding.

The 25 Coast Guard volunteers weeded from approximately 7:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., July 3, throughout the city. Wilhelm said they had men working on the lighthouse that day and aboard the ship as well which limited the number of available volunteers.

Two members of the coast guard, Nic Porta and Patrick McCracken, weeded along Michigan Avenue on the east side of the street last Thursday morning.

Despite their lack of weeding skills, the volunteers could tell the flowers were in need of care.

"They were dying before we came out," McCracken said.

The men said they received several questions from people passing by who asked the volunteers if they were fulfilling community service hours and, despite the bad rep they may have received, Porta said they were enjoying the morning.

"It was a great deal that they could do this. We certainly appreciate what they were able to do," Martin said.

FDA APPROVES DENTAL DEVICE TO REDUCE MIGRAINE ATTACKS
Migraine prevention breakthrough
As seen on ABC's GOOD MORNING AMERICA.
The first clinically proven, nondrug method for the prevention of migraine. The NTI-tss is a small, virtually invisible mouthpiece that covers only your upper front teeth while you sleep.
The NTI-tss must be custom-fitted by a dentist - which usually takes only one 30-minute visit.
In a clinical trial, 82% of migraine sufferers who used the NTI-tss for 8 weeks had a 77% average reduction in migraine attacks. The NTI-tss device reduced not only migraine attacks but also the need for medication usually taken to treat migraine pain.

French Rags are customized knitwear that are made by Brenda French in California that use 60 different colors of yarns. The clothing comes in any length, neck-line and pant and can be worn for elegant occasions such as a black tie dinner or to the country club.

"The clothing really fits this area very well. The area is casual, yet we also have country clubs," Smith said.

City Hall work progressing

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Work on Charlevoix City Hall is coming along well, with crews finishing up interior demolition to prepare for renovation and expansion.

"There have been no major problems. It is pretty much what was on the drawing board," project manager Jim Shull said. "We are right were we should be budget-wise."

For the last month, work crews have been gutting the City Hall building while City Hall staff have been housed in the former post office on Mason Street. After gutting the building, crews will start to put in new walls and new electrical lines.

According to project manager Jim Shull, the walls will be going back up in about 2 to 3 weeks. The electric work was expected to start this week.

Also, work on a new addition on City Hall will start in about three weeks, Shull said.

The first phase of the City Hall renovation will be complete around mid-January, with city staff moving back in around the end of January.

In the meantime, Shull reminds residents and visitors to pay their city bills at the former post office or at the drop box in the parking lot between Mason and Antrim streets. He said he has found a few people inside the building while crews are trying to work.

The building is shut down while it is being renovated.

Around the first of February, crews will move the city police and fire department staffs over to the former post officer, while they begin the second phase of the project — renovations to the police station and fire station.

Construction is expected to be completed by June 2004, Shull said.

Jim Shull points out the original floor of Charlevoix City Hall, which was built in the 1930s.

(Above) The Charlevoix City Council chambers looks a little different right now as the room awaits renovation. Crews have taken down almost everything in the room in preparation for its reconstruction. You will be ticketed for driving on Wheelway

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The first ticket was issued to a motorist driving on the Little Traverse Wheelway July 1 and it has city officials hoping it will be the last.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Deputies had witnessed vehicles veering off the roadway onto the trail to avoid the construction pileup on US-31, but had previously only issued a warning to motorists violating the trails no motor rule.

"I'm kind of saddened by the fact a ticket was issued. The message needs to get out this is not an alternative for people traveling on US-31," County Planner Larry Sullivan said.

He said on a trail, which is marked with signs throughout saying "No motorized vehicles allowed," results in people lowering their level of awareness and making the using the trail more hazardous.

"I think it has a great potential for danger in light of the fact that the person riding on the trail is not going to expect a motorized vehicle," Sullivan said. "Kids 4, 5 and 6-years-old riding on the trail would not be expecting cars. It's a matter of people not being as cautious."

He said the ticket for this fine is $175, but an accident involving a pedestrian and vehicle on the non-motorized trail would be far more costly.

"If there's a collision with a 2,000 pound-plus vehicle and a person, we know who's going to win," Sullivan said.

The trail was built with federal funding applied for by the Michigan Department of Transportation but, in order to receive the donated money, the trail was built under a non-motorized stipulation.

Sullivan said cars, four wheelers, snowmobiles and golf carts are prohibited from using the trail.

"If its got a motor on it, its not allowed," he said.

Sullivan encourages any motorist who see cars driving on the trail to call 911 and report it immediately.

Since the trail's construction, the Top of Michigan Trails Council has conducted surveys on its use, although they have yet to compile statistics for the Charlevoix portion. That survey will take place Aug. 2.

In previous dawn-to-dusk surveys conducted randomly in Bay View and Bay Harbor, the council found walkers, bicyclists, runners, in-line skaters and dog walkers all used the trail with sometimes an upwards of 600 users a day. The busiest times of the day are between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and the heaviest volume of trail users takes place near the urban centers, such as Charlevoix and Petoskey.

The Little Traverse Wheelway is not the only trail in the state with cars cruising down its surface. According to an article in the Detroit News, residents living off the Huron Valley Trail in Lyon Township have reported cars racing down the path at speeds of 40 and 50 mph.

Charlevoix's problem is not as extreme.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said this isn't a major problem and before the ticket was issued, the police handed out only one warning.

The majority of offenders Sullivan said are trying to avoid construction on US-31, so he is hoping once the construction stops, motorists will stay on the highway. However the close proximity of the trail and road does not allow for a block making it easier to drive the trail.

"Due to the limited amount of real estate between the highway and Lake Michigan, it is almost impossible to get any type of barrier in place," he said.

Sullivan said to prevent this from happening in the future the county is developing a specific ordinance that would possibly include policing the trail. Currently the sheriff's department is keeping an eye on the Wheelway.

Artists blame date for lower sales at show

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Sales were down at this year's Downtown Art Fair in Charlevoix and many artists attribute it to the fact that it was on a weekday instead of a weekend.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce agrees.

"When you compare sales to last year, they were down," said Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. "To have a successful show it's much better to have it on a Friday or Saturday."

The event this year took place on Tuesday, July 1 and Wednesday, July 2. Last year the event took place over Friday and Saturday, July 5 and 6.

"Most people don't get off until today (July 2) or tomorrow (July 3). Usually a weekend is better," said artist Peter Amerson.

Merta said that a July 4 show is not possible because Harbor Springs has one every year on that date and most of the artists go there. In order to get more artists, the Charlevoix chamber attempts to schedule the art fair around the Harbors Springs show.

For this year's show they had talked about having it July 5 and 6, which would fall on a Saturday and Sunday. Ultimately they decided on July 1 and 2.

" We thought it would be nice to try a mid-week show, might be better for business," said Merta.

It was for some.

Kirby Dipert, owner of Charlevoix Wear, reported an increase in sales at his downtown location.

"It was better than last year (on this date) when we didn't have an art fair," said Dipert.

Dipert said that while he believes the art fair helped bring in business, many factors can contribute to an increase in sales.

Genna Whitney, owner of Whitneys' Oyster Bar also noticed an increase in business from last year.

"I liked it better in mid-week because you have enough business over the weekend. It did give us a little extra distance for those couple of days," said Whitney.

However, Terry Left, owner of the Villager Pub, Terry's Place and Great Lakes Fish and Chips, said his sales were not up during the art show.

"In my opinion, they should leave it on the weekend," he said.

And, Jim Berlage, owner of Bridge Street Books, observed that sales were down from last year.

But, he appreciates the art fair and the people drawn into town.

"As a merchant, I noticed a lot of people downtown, which is always good for business," said Berlage.

"It's always good to try new ideas," said Merta. "The artists' sales are down but who's to say why. It could be economy, who knows?"

Artist Ruth Muller Taylor disagrees.

"We've had a bad economy for 2 years but it didn't hurt it last year," she said.

Overall she said, "it's been a fair show."

While they are disappointed with sales, the artists say they come to the Charlevoix art fair because of the good location. They hope next year will draw a bigger crowd.

Pool gearing up for auction

A larger than usual dollhouse, an innovation in human transportation called a Segway and a hand-painted Adirondack chair on display in the lobby of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool are daily reminders of the upcoming pool auction Sunday, August 10.

Not as visible are many other donations such as a cruise for 10 people aboard a 65 foot yacht, three weeks in Hawaii near Waikiki Beach, gourmet dinners in area homes, antiques, golf at Bay Harbor and services.

Appealing to those who are unable to donate an item or attend the event at the Charlevoix Country Club, fund-raising committee chairman Bruce MacArthur suggested that there are other ways to help underwrite pool expenses.

"One can help by becoming a sponsor at levels of $1,000, $500, $250 or $100," he said.

Donations may be dropped off at the pool, located at 11905 US-31 North. Those who wish to become sponsors should call auction coordinator Sue Herzog at 547-4077.

Bingo to be in East Park for Venetian

This is the last in a series of articles that provides readers insight regarding the array of events that have become part of the Venetian Festival.

Over a dozen activities, all part of the Venetian Games calendar of events, have been scheduled throughout the Venetian week. Some are competitive and some are more for vicarious participation, but all will offer a choice for festival goers.

If watching is "your game," spectators will enjoy observing golf, swimming, basketball, tennis, soccer, volleyball and softball. If participation is more to your liking besides having the opportunity to compete in these same events, you can dance, sail, bike, shoot sporting clay, play disc golf, and even play bingo.

Speaking of bingo, here's the profile on Bingo in the Park, one of the 2003 Venetian Games. The Charlevoix Senior Citizens host the event which is hosted in a huge tent in East Park overlooking Round Lake.

Everyone is welcome to the bingo games from 1 to 4:30 p.m. in Charlevoix's East Park. There is a small charge for the bingo cards.

The event is primarily designed for adults with cash prizes and merchant certificates being awarded. The committee is looking for a short list of "celebrity callers." Interested parties should contact the committee.

The managers are the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center with the committee consisting of Earl Muma and Liz Meadows.

Also, the Sailing Regatta is scheduled for Wednesday, July 23, and can be viewed on Lake Charlevoix. All those interested in entering are welcome.

Summer Slam to start July 20

The 2003 Summer Slam Three-on-Three basketball tournament will be on July 20 at Michigan Beach in Charlevoix.

The Summer Slam is part of the Venetian Games and is actually the opening event for the 2003 Venetian Festival.

The games begin at 10 a.m. and will continue all day with championships finishing around 4 p.m.

Age groups are: 9 and 10; 11 and 12; 13 and 14; 15 and 16; 17-34 men (competitive); 17-34 men (recreational); men 35 and up (recreational); women 17 and up (competitive); and women 17 and up (recreational).

Teams will be matched into divisions according to age, height and experience.

Teams are guaranteed a minimum of two games and the winning teams will receive awards.

Also, each team member will receive a 2003 Summer Slam T-shirt. The entry fee is $90 per team and entry deadline is July 15.

All proceeds from this event go to the St. Mary's School in Charlevoix and the event is run entirely by volunteers. For registration forms or more information, please contact the Summer Slam Hotline at (231) 547-6913.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark — nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Speed a factor in accident July 6

Two people were injured in a one vehicle automobile accident around 12 p.m., July 6, on Burgess Road, north of Quarterline Road, in Hayes Township.

Accoriding to the Charlevoix County Sheriffs Office, Tyler Lalley, 16, from Charlevoix, was south bound on Burgess Road when he lost control and drove off the road and hit three trees.

Charlevoix EMS transported Lalley and his passenger Saul DeYoung, 14, from Charlevoix, to Charlevoix Area Hospital for their injuries. A third passenger, Travis Burke, 16, from Charlevoix, refused medical treatment at the scene.

Lalley was driving a 1990 Subaru Station-Wagon. The sheriff said speed was a factor in this crash, which remains under investigation at this time.

All three occupants were wearing their seat belts which greatly reduced their injuries.

Two injured in accidents on lake

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating two water accidents with injuries on Sunday, July 6 on Lake Charlevoix according to Sheriff George T. Lasater.

In the first accident, Carley S. Williams,17, of Dryden was treated and released by Northern Michigan Hospital for rope burns and a right arm injury.

Williams was being towed on a tube by Stephanie Benacquisto on Lake Charlevoix in the Boyne City area when the accident occurred.

In the second accident, Richard Lesko, 11, of Birmingham was injured while water skiing.

The boy was treated and released by Northern Michigan Hospital.

Coast Guard gives boating safety tips

The United States Coast Guard urges boaters to boat smart this summer and not mix alcohol and boating.

Leading causes of death on the water include alcohol and failure to wear a lifejacket.

Most boating fatalities are preventable if the boater remembers a few key safety tips before getting underway:

- Never drink and boat. The water is unpredictable and your judgment is impaired when you've consumed alcohol.
- Wear the proper life jacked for the water your are in. A lifejacket can mean the difference between life and death. Of the 498 people who drowned in 2001, life jackets could have saved 420. Boaters are also reminded of the federal regulation requiring children under 13 years of age to wear a life jacked. State regulations vary.
- Have a portable waterproof marine band radio. When an emergency arises a marine band radio set to channel "16" is your link to help.
- Check the weather. Be aware of changes in the sky, wind and water. Head to shore when the weather begins to turn bad.
- File a float plan. Tell someone where you're going, your boat description, how many people are going with you, when you are expected to return and ways to contact. Don't file float plans with the Coast Guard.
- Take a boating safety course. The Coast Guard recommends that all boaters take a safety class and a refresher course every five years. The Boating Safety Course phone number is (800) 336-2628 and the Boating Safety Hotline is (800) 368-5647
- Get your boat inspected as soon as it hits the water. Free vessel safety checks are offered to the public. Contact your local Coast Guard Auxiliary for more information.

US-31 work may finish by Venetian

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Road construction on US-31 between the city of Charlevoix and the town of Bay Shore is scheduled to finish at the end of this month, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The department hopes to finish the project by the week of the Venetian Festival. If not, the project will be suspended.

"We co-ordinated construction with the city of Charlevoix, the Charlevoix County Road Commission and the surrounding counties," said Bob Felt of the department.

"Things are progressing well but they may take longer than expected."

If the work is not completed by the Venetian Festival it will wrap up shortly thereafter.

This will be a relief to residents and visiting tourists alike. The 9-mile stretch of construction work can add an average of 15-20 minutes onto a commute.

"We have received an awful lot of calls from frustrated motorists. Most are going home after a long day," said Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater.

> "Things are progressing well, but they may take longer than expected."
> Bob Felt,
> Michigan Department of Transportation

One motorist attempted to use the nearby Little Traverse Wheelway pedestrian path as a detour and was ticketed. Most just turn around and go back to where they came from.

Lasater said many residents are upset with the sheriff's office for not making more attempts to detour traffic. According to the sheriff, it is the responsibility of the department of transportation and the construction workers on the job to handle traffic in a construction zone.

There is one detour Lasater recommends — from US-31 go east on Boyne City Road and take it to Old US-31. Take Old US-31 north to where it ends at Murray Road.

He cautions that when taking the detour motorists need to watch their speed. He has ticketed several drivers trying to make up for lost time.

'Blooming Garden Party' at Garden Walk

Sharon Blossom, chairperson of the Charlevoix Garden Walk and Luncheon, is eagerly expecting a great turnout for the fifth annual event on Wednesday, July 16.

Sharon Blossom

"Following such a bitterly cold winter and a long, dreary spring folks are ready to enjoy the beautiful sights and fragrant smells of some of our most stunning local area gardens that have finally come to life. The transformation of the landscape is spectacular and I can't imagine a more idyllic way to spend a summer day," she said.

The Charlevoix Garden Walk 2003, "A Bloomin' Garden Party," provides visitors with a rare opportunity to slip into six private gardens ranging from a romantic Victorian garden bursting with blooms to an artful arrangement of outdoor rooms for relaxing and entertaining.

Each garden is unique, inspiring, imaginative and delivers ideas for turning outdoor spaces into inviting havens.

Tickets to the Garden Walk are $10 per person and are available from local area merchants in Charlevoix including: The Appletree, Barb's Hallmark, Bridge Street Books, Don's IGA; in East Jordan at EJ Sportswear; Boyne City at Mary's; and in Petoskey at McLean & Eakin Bookstore.

Visitors will be able to purchase tickets at the garden club booth at the Charlevoix Craft Show in East Park on Saturday, July 12.

Tickets may also be purchased the day of the event at any of the six participating gardens.

To celebrate summer and the flourishing gardens Sharon suggests sharing lunch with companions and garden club members at the "Feast with Friends" luncheon on the day of the garden walk.

"What could be more suitable than enjoying a relaxing lunch amidst the beautiful grounds, gardens and views of Lake Charlevoix from the historic Charlevoix Depot," she said.

To draw attendees garden club members supporting the luncheon are decorating festive tables, serving a meal prepared by Galley Gourmet in Bay Harbor and working tirelessly to ensure that visitors enjoy themselves and have fun.

Advanced reservations for the "Feast with Friends" luncheon are required and must be made no later than July 13.

Tickets for the luncheon are $25 per person.

Call Jackie at 547-5444 for reservations or purchase a luncheon ticket with at Garden Walk ticket at the Charlevoix Craft Show on Saturday, July 12. Seating is limited.

In addition to the luncheon on Wednesday, July 16, the Charlevoix Depot is also the site of a Craft Show presented by garden club members featuring handmade vintage Garden Dollies.

These life-size "dollies" were individually designed, produced in a limited quantity and are certain to become a keepsake.

Other unique items for the garden and gardener including books, plants and pots will be offered at reasonable prices.

Refreshments for the garden enthusiasts will be served.

The Depot is located at 307 East Dixon.

Ducks become company mascots

DUCKS

Production at the company has been up as well since the ducks arrived, Blanchard joked.

"We've got a family to feed," she laughed.

It hasn't all been pleasant for the new duck family. Employees laid down bread for the mother duck and her babies a week ago and a crow began buzzing about the area.

Worried the babies were in danger, one of the employees called the Department of Natural Resources and found out that the crow would in fact eat the ducklings.

They have since switched to more of an oat diet so the crow would stop coming around.

"Maintenance has done wonders to make sure they are safe in their new habitat," Blanchard said.

When the babies were born, the employees brought out two 25 inch diameter lenses from the factory for the ducks to swim in. Blanchard said the ducks loved them, but the mother duck couldn't fit, so the pools were upgraded.

The two lenses were replaced with a blue 4 foot diameter pool two weeks ago. The ducks were hesitant at first about their new watering hole, but employees put a ramp up to it and baited the ducks to the water with food. Now all the ducks swim happily together, which is better for the protective mother duck.

The employees tried adding more wildlife to the atrium by putting minnows in the pool, but they were quickly eaten by the ducks. The employees considered it a sushi night special and are going to try again with tadpoles.

Their diet is certainly helping the ducklings grow. Blanchard said they are twice the size they were a week ago and employees are expecting them to begin feasting on the lettuce in a week or two when they are big enough to jump up onto the garden plot.

This is the first time a duck has made its home at Spectrus Lexalight, but employees are speculating it certainly will not be the last.

"We're guessing she'll be back next year," Blanchard said.

"Fresh food, nice garden, clean water, why wouldn't she want to live here?" Hoyt said.

Judging by the reactions of the employees to their latest company addition, they are hoping for the ducks' return next spring as well.

Jazz Band to give concert at Castle

The Northwest Academy Jazz Ensemble will perform a free concert for the public at the great hall at Castle Farms.

This concert will feature the big band sounds of one of the finest young groups to be playing in Northern Michigan. The concert is from 7 to 9 p.m., Thursday, July 10.

Donations will be accepted and CD's of the group will be available.

The Northwest Academy Jazz Ensemble has been in existence for three years and has grown to be a favorite of many jazz lovers throughout northern Michigan. One of its first performances was during an exchange trip to England and they have also performed in Denver, Vail, and Colorado Springs, Co.

During the past three years the group has performed for weddings, fund-raising concerts, special holiday events, and numerous swing dances throughout Michigan.

The band is made up of "Big Band" instrumentation with five saxes, four trumpets, three trombones and rhythm.

The trumpet section features Rachel Bellairs on lead trumpet. She has been labeled "one of the finest young trumpet players in Michigan." C.J. Toton keeps the heat on Bellairs in the trumpet section and adds a dimension to the group that people have come to expect. Gina Attee is the "new kid" on the block and she adds quality depth to the group.

The trombone section features Craig Welseott on lead Trombone. Welseott has traveled to Europe with Bellairs and the Blue Lake International Jazz Ensemble.

The rhythm section features Rick Smith on drum set. Smith has been a very dynamic addition to the band and brings a real "flair" to the group. The sax section is lead by Joe Sievertson and Dan Sanchez on the alto saxophone. Sievertson and Sanchez play with a feeling that is uncommon for someone in their early years as jazz musicians!

Northwest Academy is a public school academy that is located in Charlevoix. It has been operating for seven years and offers a curriculum of technology and fine arts to grades 6 through 12.

If your child wants to be a part of future jazz bands or excels in voice, visual arts, drama or technology, call 547-9000.

The Northwest Academy Jazz Band will be giving a concert July 10 at Castle Farms on M-66 in Charlevoix. (Courtesy photo)

Red Hats meet

The Red Hat Society of Charlevoix met recently for tea at the Rose Cottage on Mason Street to celebrate its first anniversary. Just one year ago, 12 members met at the Rose Cottage to charter the group, which has now grown to 35 members. (Courtesy photo)

SCRAPBOOK

Battle of Pine River fought 150 years ago

By DAVID L. MILES
Charlevoix Historical Society

July 12, 2003 celebrates the one-hundred and fiftieth anniversary of one of the most crucial dates in the history of Charlevoix — the Battle of Pine River.

This minor land and sea skirmish heralded the true beginning of the Pine River (later Charlevoix) settlement. Because of the battle the little community that had been here ceased to exist until the arrival of our first settlers in 1854. Its aftermath cleared the area of all non-Mormon residents and made a fresh slate of the waterfront lands.

Tensions had been long simmering between the Gentile fishermen of the mainland, mainly free and easy Irishmen, and their Mormon antagonists on Beaver Island. They formed a mutual loathing society. King Strang, the strong-willed dictatorial leader of the island Mormons, said in his newspaper, the Northern Islander, that the mainlanders were "little else than a band of vagabonds and thieves." The mainlanders equally despised the self-righteous and arrogant Mormon islanders. Both groups harvested the riches of Lake Michigan's waters, but kept a contemptuous distance from one another.

It was common practice in those days for most traders to pay the area's Native Americans with whiskey. This became illegal in 1851, but Mormons, to their credit, were the only ones to take the new law seriously enough to enforce it. The mainlanders ignored the law, to the point that Strang sent over the county sheriff to arrest the naysayers in the fall of 1852. They saw the boats coming and hid in the woods, so nobody was arrested and the sheriff went home empty-handed.

A tense calm prevailed until the following summer. Strang wanted to arrest three men in particular and sent the law over the waters again, this time under the pretext of summoning the men to jury duty at Saint James. The mainlanders had vowed to kill any Mormons who came over to serve papers of any kind. Two small boatloads of Mormons, largely unarmed, landed on the Lake Michigan Beach below the Pine Avenue bluff under the watchful eye of Pine rivermen who had assembled in the trees along the hillside.

When confronted, the Mormons claimed they were not there to make threats, but to serve the subpoenas. The mainlanders, rightly suspecting a ruse, refused to hand the three men over. They advised the Mormons to get back in their boats and leave at once. What happened next cannot be determined because of too many conflicting accounts. What is known for sure is that someone fired a shot, perhaps in warning, which triggered a volley of lead from the hillside, mainlander Louis Gebo sustained a wound in his knee, and the Mormons scooped up their injured and fled.

They had a head start before the now emboldened and hotheaded mainlanders could ready their boats and make chase. For eight strenuous miles the Mormons pulled their oars as fast as they could. The mainlanders finally caught up close enough to open fire. Bullets tore into the wood of the island boats, injuries were sustained, and the only thing that saved the Mormons from annihilation was the presence of the ship Morgan. They raced for her and pleaded with her Captain Stone for rescue. He took them aboard and refused to hand them over to the enraged combatants.

The mainlanders headed home. Only after they cooled off did they realize what they had done. They knew King Strang well enough to know what would happen next. In a matter of days, Pine River became a ghost town. The mainlanders had won the Battle of Pine River, but they had lost the war with the Mormons. The only thing they could do now was flee.

Itinerant Mormon fishermen came and went from the island to the mainland over the next year, living in the few shanties and cabins that had been erected on the shores of the three lakes. None of them were settlers, for their way of life precluded working the land and putting down roots. That happened in 1854, when Medad and Phoebe Thompson, disenchanted Mormons who had found Strang's rigid way of life not for them, left Beaver Island and traveled to the shore of Pine Lake. There they found land to their liking, the Ferry Beach area, and became the first permanent settlers of Pine River/Charlevoix. 2004 marks the sesquicentennial of their arrival.

The Battle of Pine River had opened the door to the Thompsons and all who would soon follow.

This is an expanded version of the account of the battle found in the Charlevoix Historical Society's new book Bob Miles' Charlevoix II, a 488 pp. pictorial history with narrative text published in 2002. The book may be purchased a the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State Street from 1-4 Monday through Saturday, at the Shop of the Gulls, 205 Bridge Street, or at Bridge Street Book Shop, 405 Bridge Street.

Convention facility, airport just two of many projects in East Park. Weisner said the number of projects taking place this summer is typical, but the number of planning projects are higher than average.

CITY

Included in the planning projects are the old middle school property acquisition, conference feasibility study, Brookside Chapel feasibility study and plans for a new downtown marina.

Weisner said in regard to the plans for upcoming projects, the actual project and money to fund it go hand in hand.

"When we look at the project, we not only look at the project but potential funding," he said.

Weisner said that kind of thinking has allowed the city to mainly operate under a cash basis as opposed to bonds.

One project under planning and monetary consideration is building a convention center in Charlevoix, which Weisner believes will pay for itself through operating costs once constructed.

"If it's something that proceeds, we'll look into grants to fund it," he said.

He said they are still gathering information on the possibility of building the center, however not everyone agrees the plan should proceed.

"Since they've done the work out to the castle it's ridiculous to even talk about the convention center," Mayor Gabe Campbell said.

With the construction of Castle Farms complete, Campbell does not think Charlevoix tax money should be spent to compete with private businesses who cater to weddings, proms and other formal occasions which could be held at Castle Farms.

Fortunately many of the costly planning projects, like a convention center, will be one time ventures.

"The higher (cost) irregular ones, those (projects) aren't going to be reoccurring," he said.

Funding for current projects has already been accounted for.

Construction of the airport parking lot, which is scheduled to begin in late August or early September, is a state project and 90 percent of the money came from grants. The other 10 percent was generated by airport revenues.

The city was able to fund the majority of the estimated $2.5 million it will cost to renovate City Hall through savings. Weisner said they have been saving for the City Hall project since 1993, but will still come up $600,000 short.

The cost difference will be covered by a loan from the electric fund.

One project they are looking into additional funding for is the ski hill golf course water supply. The project will increase the water supply to the golf course greens in the summer and the snow making capacity at Mount McSauba in the winter.

Weisner said the plan at the golf course was to develop a long term well supply and they are researching the possibility of installing higher powered snow guns at the ski hill.

The city budgeted an upwards of $250,000 for the project, but it is not going to be enough, so Weisner said it is something they will have to deal with in future budget years.

One project that has not been discussed for quite some time is the infrastructure master plan. The plan would look at street setups, future needs of the city and include the storm sewer and street light master plans. Weisner said it has not been looked at for 18 years.

Aiding in the development and simplifying the paperwork at City Hall is the consideration of creating a graphic information system. It is a computerized system that can store various types of information such as property maps, sewer lines and differing hydrant flow pressures throughout the city.

Weisner said not many smaller cities have this technology available, but it is the route many communities are choosing to follow. He said the city is looking into grant possibilities to fund the system.

Appletree building sold to Elk Rapids developers

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The well-known historic downtown Charlevoix building housing the Appletree will be torn down and replaced according to a plan by its new owners.

The plan proposed to the Charlevoix Planning Commission Monday night would replace the building with a three story retail and residential structure called the Appletree Building. The current building was once the site of famous local architect Earl Young's real estate office and then contained the business Appletree for about 30 years.

"Our goal is to build a building that looks like it has been here for a long time, but is new," said Jerry Rutter, an Elk Rapids developer and the new owner of the building along with his partner Scott Zager.

"This is unusual and neat and very classy," he said. "We like to do award-winning projects."

The developer's architect Michael Pattullo, with Northstar Design in Petoskey, added, "Our intent is to try and capture some of the turn-of-the-century retail

Venetian Festival to start Sunday

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Friends, family and visitors to Charlevoix will not be disappointed by the week-long festivities surrounding the seventy-third annual Venetian Festival taking place from July 20 to July 26.

Festival president Dan Barron said while the festival is certainly a time for fun and games, it takes on almost a homecoming feel as well with several former residents returning to the area.

"We're pleased we've been able to maintain the hometown presence," he said. "It's a central gathering time for everyone."

Something new this year to even the returning patrons of the Venetian Festival is the Pride of Michigan, an 80 foot naval ship which has logged enough nautical miles to circle the globe three times.

Annual home tour to be this weekend

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Who: Kappa Sigma sorority
What it Is: The annual tour of Charlevoix homes, which also raises money for charitable groups.
When is it: Saturday, July 19

The twenty-first annual Kappa Sigma Home Tour will take place this week and feature six very unique homes in Charlevoix.

The tour will take place Saturday, July 19, which is a change from years past. Home Tour Chairperson Tricia Petrosky said they usually have the tour on the first Wednesday after July 4, but changed it this year to Saturday.

"We changed the date to encourage greater participation for all aspects of the tour," she said.

By having the tour on a weekend, the sorority was hoping to increase the number of participants, workers and donations.

In the past the home tour has attracted 1,000 participants and raised over $10,000 for their chosen charities, Petrosky said.

This year's proceeds will benefit the Trimper family and the Charlevoix Area Hospital Obstetrics Department.

"Some of the ladies in our group personally know the Trimpers and we just felt it was such a worthwhile cause, we wanted to help," she said.

Helping to raise the donation figures, a framed original acrylic painting donated by local artist, Linda Boss, will be raffled off. Tickets will be $2 each or six for $10 and available for purchase at each of the homes.

One hundred percent of the raffle proceeds will go directly to the Trimper Family.

Aside from the date, the other change this year is transportation. Petrosky said all the homes on the tour are located within two-and-a-half miles of downtown Charlevoix and they will not be providing a shuttle.

All participants will have to drive and park themselves.

There are a few rules the sorority would like people to obey. Children under the age of 12 are not allowed unless they can be carried in a front pack.

There is also no smoking or cameras allowed in the homes.

All tour participants are prohibited from wearing shoes.

People can wear socks or hospital booties will be provided.

"We've had too many scratched floors in the past," Petrosky said.

Tour tickets are $20 and can be purchased after June 27 at the following locations: The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls and the Clothing Company in Charlevoix; Boyne Country Books in Boyne City and the Quiet Moose and Petoskey Chamber of Commerce in Petoskey.

Festival names, tax cuts, summer pedestrians

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Summertime is the busy time for anyone living and working in Charlevoix.

With all the events that are going on in the area, the staff of the Charlevoix Courier have barely had time to breathe, much less form complete thoughts on subjects. Our minds are distracted by trying to figure out — mostly in vain — how to get all of our work done and still have time to enjoy some of the beauty around us.

Because of that, I have only been able to produce short bursts of thought for a column. But sometimes it is the short stuff that really makes you think.

Festival names

There seems to be a disturbing trend in the festival and event business these days. That trend is selling out your name to the highest corporate hidder.

I understand that this brings in needed money to some of these festivals, but, gosh, it is cheesy. Take for example the recent Cherry Festival in Traverse City. For as long as I or my wife — who is a Traverse City native — can remember it was always called the Cherry Festival and its two parades were called the Heritage Parade and the Cherry Royale Parade.

Now, every advertisement for the festival called it the Alltel National Cherry Festival — ick — and the parades were changed to the AAA Michigan Heritage Parade and the DTE Energy Cherry Royale Parade — double ick.

Those companies were probably hoping that spending enough money to get their names placed in connection to the Cherry Festival would give them positive public relations. But, both my wife and I are left with a taste for those companies akin to really bad head cheese.

It should be noted that the Charlevoix Venetian Festival has not sold out and is still the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. I hope it stays this way. Sad to say, but the Charlevoix Courier Venetian Festival just doesn't have the same wonderful ring to it.

Tax cuts?

There has been a lot said about a recent tax cut that the government just put into effect, but very little said about a group who was left out.

In the new tax cut you have been hearing about, our elected government officials failed to give a child care tax credit increase to poor working families — those making hetween $10,500 and $26,000 per year — hut included it for middle class and upper income families. Basically, this means while the rest of us enjoy this new tax cut, poor families in the United States are left out and continue to pay the same in taxes.

Some could say, poor families are paying for our tax cut.

A few people in Congress tried to fix this injustice and were supported in their efforts by President George Bush by trying to pass legislation that would include poor families. But, a majority of those in the House of Representatives basically torpedoed it and the issue was killed.

So, who exactly does this impact? Well, for starters, according to information from Representative Bart Stupak — Charlevoix's representative in the House of Representatives who voted for the plan — this impacts ahout 200,000 people in our armed forces. Now, there is a real "thank you" from our government for the military's sacrifices in the recent war.

What about locally? In Charlevoix County alone, according to the 2000 Census, 2,898 households of the 10,373 households that reported an income make $25,000 and under. This means 27 percent of Charlevoix households will not benefit from this new "tax cut."

Let's hear it for our congressional representatives for sticking it to the working poor.

Pedestrians

Summer brings a lot of new people to Charlevoix. People who have not experienced the fun of trying to drive in a blinding snowstorm, the effects of cabin fever or how a hody can get used to temperatures below zero after three straight weeks of it.

But, for some reason, some of these new folks — and a few locals — seem to think it is still the dead of winter around here and it is OK to waltz across the street at any time.

Here are some pointers that will keep you and your friends from becoming road kill on Bridge Street:

- If the pedestrian traffic signal indicates it is not time to walk, don't.
- Do not walk out into the street if traffic is coming at you, thus causing the driver to slam on the brakes, and leave a stain in his or her seat cushion, while you skip across in front of them.
- Do not use your strollers as a means to stop traffic hy pushing them out in it.
- Lastly, there is a walkway under the hridge, feel free to use it.

Safety is something that helps keep the summer fun for all of us.

Edith's summertime game for locals and area visitors

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

People like to play games and none more so than our friends in Charlevoix!

Almost 10 years ago I wrote a tongue-in-cheek column that caused quite a stir, and because there are so many new, year-round settlers here, including retirees and young professionals, I thought it would he fun to update the column.

It's about the game of one-upmanship that everyone — both locals and summer people — still enjoy. There is one set of questions for our locals and another set of questions for our summer friends who own "cottages."

I know there are also visitors who rent cottages, stay at motels, bed and breakfast places and on hoats — they return year after year and care deeply about this area. To them I say, "Hang in there!" One of these days your children may qualify to score hrownie points in the Charlevoix game of "who did what first."

In order to score a perfect 50, a local person needs to answer "yes" to most of the following questions:

- 10 points if you were born in Charlevoix.
- 10 points if you graduated from Charlevoix High School.
- Eight points if you married a Charlevoix girl or boy. (Add a point if he or she was born in Charlevoix and another point if he or she graduated from Charlevoix High School.)
- Men, add five points if you played foothall, baseball or basketball on the High School team. Women add five points if you were homecoming or Venetian Queen or a cheerleader.
- Men add five points if you are a member of the Volunteer Fire Department. Women add five points if you volunteer at the Hospital or Rainbow Shoppe.
- Add five points if your children were born in Charlevoix Area Hospital.
- Add five points if you are a memher of the Board of Education, Planning or Zoning Commission, or on the City Council.
- Add three points for participating in the Venetian Festival.
- Add 3 points for planting petunias three years in a row, or two

Letter to the editor

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the wonderful people of Charlevoix.

My sister-in-law, Katie Pettis, recently died after a courageous battle with cancer. The support and compassion shown to Katie, my brother Jim and my nieces was unbelievable during her illness and after her death.

A special thank you to the Rev. Michael Teuscher and all the memhers of Bethany Lutheran Church, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, all of Katie's co-workers at New Creations and all the teachers and students at the elementary and high schools.

You have been such a wonderful support for my family through this difficult time. The meals, the fund - raisers, the support and most of all the love you have all shown makes me proud to tell people, "I am from Charlevoix, Michigan." Thank you to each and every one of you!

Officials investigating new gym idea

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix officials are studying what it will take to build a new gym in the city to replace the gym at the old Charlevoix Middle School.

According to Charlevoix Schools Superintendent John Sturock, the gym at the old school may be converted into a library under an agreement with the district where the library and city would purchase the old building.

"There is a need for an extra gym for recreation purposes," he said. "We are covered with the schools. At the present time, there are a lot of people that want to use the (high school) gym after school, but we are using it."

Sturock said gym time will get even tighter in the future, because the girls' and boys' basketball seasons will probably combine by 2005. Already, due to a lack of available gym time for non-school teams, organizations have been using the old middle school gym. But, that is only a temporary use as it will probably be turned into a library.

Sturock stressed, though, that the school district will not be paying for a new gym. He said he is only getting information together about the costs of a new gym for the city and library.

"This is totally in the infancy stages. It may never come about because the money is not there," he said. "The (school) board could consider to pick up the maintenance. If we got an extra gym out of it, it would be a plus."

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner also said this plan is very young.

"I am just gathering information for the community. I don't know where the money would come from," he said.

Helen Open seeking last year's participants

The year 2002 saw the Second Helen Open, an annual trihute in honor of Helen Weislik.

The response was nothing short of incredible. The "Smallest little tournament" in town raised $15,000 — an astounding sum, thanks to all of those who donated money, prizes or time, golfed in the open or bid on items auctioned the day of the Helen Open. Their generosity made it possible for funds to be given to Hospice of Northwest Michigan (formerly Charlevoix County Hospice).

For any who may he unfamiliar with this event, the Weislik Family has owned The Townhouse Bar for 40 years and this tournament was estahlished as a lasting tribute to Helen Weislik, who dispensed spirited advice as freely as she dispensed spirits.

The Helen Open is all about local community. In keeping with that focus, the proceeds from the 2003 Open will again go to the Hospice of Northwest Michigan (Charlevoix County), to help support the tremendous services they provide to our area residents.

Captains for last year's teams are being contacted and returning golfers were registered on Sunday, July 13 at the Townhouse Bar. First priority was given to those who golfed in last year's tournament.

Once golfers returning from last year have registered, the open will accept individual registrations from golfers new to the tournament. From those, it will fill openings on any existing teams.

The fee remains at $50 per golfer this year and must be paid at registration. As with last year's registration, food will be available for a nominal donation.

This year's open will be Sunday, Aug. 17, again at the Charlevoix Municipal Course. Signs with donors' names will again be printed and placed on the course and every donor will be acknowledged in the printed program.

Two complimentary drinks at the Townhouse Bar will be provided to each person donating at least $50 and food will be available to non-golfers for a donation of $10 per person.

An auction is given and everyone is invited to bid on their favorite items.

For more information call Rochelle Whippo, chairperson at 547-3518, Kelly Scholey at 547-1943 or Vivian Mettler at 547-9751.

Castle to be site of Great Lakes Orchestra concert

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra continues its Castle Farms Summer Series at 7 p.m. on Thursday, July 17, with a concert of chamber works by Mozart and Schubert.

The concert will feature two Mozart quartets, his oboe quartet with Michael Beery, oboe, and a flute quartet with flutist Bonnietta Benn. The string ensemble, with Prudence Kurtz, violin, Margaret Beck, viola, and cellist Marlys Manthei, will also perform Schubert's "Trout" quintet with pianist Michelle Mitchum and bassist, Bing Farrar.

The "Trout," one of Schubert's best known songs, became the source for his set of variations for the quintet.

Michael Beery is on the staff at the Interlochen Arts Academy and has served as the principal oboe with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra during the past season. Bonnietta Benn has performed as principal flute and soloist since the orchestra's founding.

The orchestra has developed a solid base of community support in the region during its first two seasons.

Cofounders Margaret Beck (artistic director) and Robert Pattengale, (executive director) have provided the organizational impetus and the performing members have responded with time, energy and talent.

The full orchestra will present the Castle Farms Series finale on July 31 with a concert of orchestra favorites.

Featured soloist will be trumpeter Rachael Bellairs performing Haydn's "Trumpet Concerto in E-flat Major."

Tickets for the Castle Farms Summer Series are available in Petoskey at the Horizon Books and the Crooked Tree Arts Center (347-4337), in Harbor Springs at "By the Bay," in Charlevoix at the Bridge Street Book Shop and at the chamber of commerce offices in both Boyne City and East Jordan.

Council votes against parking meter change

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix City Council decided July 7 to keep the current parking meter times after some discussion by the council and city officials.

City Manager Mike Weisner presented two memos to the board from Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson regarding his findings and, based on what was presented, city council members unanimously decided to cancel changing the parking meter times.

In the memo, Halverson stated, "The stores downtown have always recognized the importance of turnover, as it relates to their sales. I do not recall any business person taking issue with the current enforcement hours. I have always felt they were more likely to take issue with not having enforcement than with having too much."

Halverson said at the meeting, the merchants main complaints come from other employees downtown, not customers.

"We tend to get the most complaints from employees who park not in front of their store, but three stores down," Halverson said.

A memo regarding the parking meters at the Beaver Island Boat Company received little discussion as council members were in favor of keeping with the company manager's wishes. The manager said the two meters were placed in front of the company because it wanted some parking control in the area.

Since the company requested the parking meters be installed and the company's manager felt they are a cost effective control mechanism, there was no further discussion by council members.

Discussion about pushing the parking meter enforcement times back from 6 p.m. to 5 p.m. was raised at the previous city council meeting, June 16, when Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Chairman John Campbell questioned the purpose of ticketing after 5 p.m., when the lots are only half full.

Council agreed to look into making the change, but after what Halverson presented, it decided it was in the best interest of the city to stay with the current parking meter times from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, excluding holidays.

Charlevoix librarians take part in statewide workshop

Beth Strawbridge and Amy Spegele of the Charlevoix Public Library were two of 50 library employees from around Michigan who recently returned from six days of intensive learning about library services at the Library of Michigan 2003 Beginning Workshop.

Selection and cataloging of materials, reference, library law, children's services, public relations, and administration were some of the topics studied during the June 1-6 workshop held at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Fifteen speakers from around the state taught the workshops. All are experienced in the field of library science.

Workshop attendies were also joined for an evening presentation by Michigan author Tim Smith, creator of the popular "Buck Wilder" series of nature guides for children.

By participating in this workshop, Spegele qualified for her State Michigan Level VII Certificate of Library Experience. Strawbridge, who already has a masters degree in library science, renewed her Level II certification.

"I am thrilled that the Library of Michigan provides such a wonderful and affordable resource for our staff," said Val Meyerson, Charlevoix Library Director.

The Beginning Workshop is made possible in part by a grant from the Library of Michigan Foundation.

Halverson elected president of board

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson was nominated and elected school board president at its meeting on July 8.

Halverson has served on the board for five years and said working under great leadership in the past will serve him well in his current position.

"I've got some big shoes to fill with Allen Telgenhof's departure from the board. He's a good model for anybody assuming that position," he said.

The school board, in accordance with state law, had a special meeting over a week ago with the purpose of establishing officers and taking care of administrative processes for the upcoming year. Halverson said the meeting revolved around several housekeeping issues that needed to be resolved before the start of the next school session.

Charlevoix school superintendent Dr. John Sturock ran the special meeting and accepted nominations from the floor for the open board positions. Once candidates were nominated, the board then voted on the positions.

In addition to Halverson, Bill Trubilowicz was named vice president, Barney Way was elected treasurer and Larry Levengood was elected secretary.

One of the issues Halverson said he and the newly elected board will face is the ongoing budget issue, such as long term planning for the six-year sinking fund.

"The budget has become an ever present issue. That will be the area the board as a whole and superintendent will be monitoring the closest," he said.

Halverson said he is confident in his fellow board members commitment to do the best job they can for the students and staff in the Charlevoix school district.

"I think we've got a great board. We've got people that truly care about doing a good job and truly care about the Charlevoix school system. It's certainly a good foundation to start into the new year," he said.

Tiller's organization having Farm Festival

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Tiller's International, a back-to-basics farming organization, is hosting a Farm Festival this week at the group's farm near the intersection of US-31 and Ferry Road.

Duley Perkins, project coordinator, said people can come to the farm and volunteer for a host of activities from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., during the festival — from helping put up fencing to finishing up a timber frame cottage that was started last year.

Perkins said the Tiller's group is a non-profit organization that started in Kalamazoo and teaches people how to capital farm, mainly for those interested in rural development. The organization also teaches how to use appropriate technology for farming throughout the world, such as using oxen to plow a small field in Africa.

Last year, a site was started in Charlevoix on a farm-stead that burned down in the 1950s, with the intention of developing it into a training center. At the center, people can learn simpler forms of farming, how to care for farm animals or even blacksmithing.

For more information on the Tiller's, call (800) 498-2700.

Museum Week taking place on island

Once again the Beaver Island Historical Society is sponsoring its twenty-third Annual Museum Week from July 13 through July 19.

Unless otherwise noted, afternoon presentations are $3 and evenings (at 8 p.m.) $5.

Multi-event and family discount tickets are available at the Print Shop Museum.

All proceeds go to help the Beaver Island Historical Society advance its projects; most recently its been concentrating on enhancing the Heritage Park on the Donegal Bay Road by landscaping the grounds, accepting a paved parking lot and positioning additional artifacts.

Most events are at the 100-year-old Holy Cross Parish Hall and tickets are available at the door. Other locations are noted at right.

The schedule is:

• Wednesday afternoon popular award-winning author Mary Blocksma will sign copies of her newest book, "What's on the Beach," for which she has also done all the illustrations. A chance to find out about her next surprising project as well; no charge. At the Print Shop.

This also marks the beginning of the Ray Denny Memorial Art Show from noon until 4 p.m., which will run for three days. This is your chance to see what several of Beaver Island's artists have been up to in the past year. No charge; donations accepted.

On Wednesday evening Beaver Island's Oral Historian will show some footage from interviews he's undertaken, read from some transcripts and talk about his important historical society project.

• Thursday morning will bring the second Nature Walk, this one for kids. It costs $5; adults who must tag along will be charged $10. Register in advance at the Print Shop Museum.

At 2 p.m. Jim Gillingham's presentation, "The wonderful world of Amphibians and Reptiles," will take place.

Thursday afternoon; the art show continues.

Also on Thursday afternoon MaryAnn Moore and Madeleine Jones, members of the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers' Association, will dress in period costumes and, with the assistance of local actors, depict what life was like in a Nineteenth Century Great Lakes Lighthouse.

• Friday morning will bring the third Nature Walk, this also one for kids. It costs $5; adults who must tag along will be charged $10. Register at the Print Shop Museum.

Friday will have MaryAnn Moore and Madeleine Jones, dressed in period clothing, telling lighthouse tales to children at 2 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

Final afternoon for the art show.

Also on Friday, Pinky will oversee her famous high-stakes Bingo game at the Parish Hall, with over $1,000 in prizes. The $10 admission gets you a master card and four regulars. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.; starts at 8 p.m. Refreshments; 50/50s; and extra cards.

• Noon on Saturday will bring Liz and Paul Niehaus's Pet Show on the Mormon Print Shop's porch. If your pet can fly or slither or hop to the Print Shop, it has an excellent chance of winning one of the numerous high-prestige Awards. No charge.

Between 1 and 3 p.m. Antje Price will open the Protar Home.

Also on Saturday, the highly-acclaimed Conklin Ceili Band will hold a concert at the Parish Hall, starting at 8 p.m.

Admission is $10. Drinks will be served during the music and at half-time there'll be a presentation about last March's Twinning Ceremony by some of the contingent of 55 Beaver Islanders who were there at Arranmore.

Resident questions airport contract

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix resident Dave Scott is questioning negotiations between Island Airways and the city of Charlevoix concerning the renewal of the company's expired contract with the Charlevoix Airport.

The five-year Fixed Based Operators Agreement between the two entities, in which Island Airways agrees to perform maintenance functions to the airport as well as provide service to Beaver Island, expired earlier this year. The airport and city are currently operating under the terms of the old contract.

Instead of putting the offer out for bidding, City Manager Mike Weisner has chosen to renegotiate a new contract with Island Airways.

"They're progressing. There's a lot of information to work through, but we are getting very close," Rachel Teague, general manager of Island Airways, said.

Weisner said details have halted the formation of a new contract.

"It's taken awhile to work out the details. I've talked to them several times and plan to talk with them in the near future," Weisner said.

However, Scott feels Weisner should cast the details aside and look into other potential bidders for the lucrative contract, who could service the airport better and cheaper.

"For the city to privately negotiate on a huge contract is a gross injustice," Scott said.

According to Rick Brandi, city treasurer, while it is hard to put a solid number on what the contract is worth, the city collects $85,300 in fees from the airport. Since the city splits the fees with Island Airways, this means the airline would also receive about $85,300.

Weisner said there are considerations other than solely the monetary amount of the contract with Island Airways, because the company provides several services that are necessary to running the airport.

"We've always just negotiated with them. It just makes sense to cross-utilize employees," he said.

The relationship between Island Airways and the Charlevoix airport is one that stems back at least 15 years, but Scott questions sticking with a company who he alleges has violated portions of their own agreement.

Scott said Island Airways has subleased city T-hangars, including one to him, despite item six of the city leasing agreement which states "this lease may not be assigned and may not be sublet."

Teague responded that the FBO agreement does not address hangar subleasing.

Weisner first heard about the leasing violations a few weeks ago.

"We're looking into that right now. We haven't gotten a direction on that," he said.

Scott has also questioned airport safety standards because a runway approach strobe light has not been operational for quite some time.

"It's been addressed," Teague said. "The state comes in and inspects on a regular basis and we've been passing with flying colors. If things are not operating properly, they're addressed quickly."

When the contract last expired five years ago, the city bid it out and the only response received was from Island Airways, so this year when the contract was up for renewal, Weisner chose to privately negotiate with the company.

"I question the practicality of anyone other than Island Airways that could service us as well," Weisner said.

The city does not by law have to bid out the contract. When a contract for goods or services is over $20,000, city law states there must be a competitive sealed bid process. However City Attorney Jim Young, in a memo to Weisner, said the FBO contract is not for the purchase of goods or services and likened the contract more to a lease, meaning the city does not need to have a competitive bidding process.

Scott believes if the city were to bid it out this year the response would be different than the scenario five years ago. He received a letter from Tim Zowada, president of Bear River Aviation Inc., expressing his interest in placing a bid on Charlevoix's expired airport contract.

Scott also questions the monetary losses the city incurs while maintaining a contract with Island Airways.

In the expired contract, the company does not pay for landing and rent, receives $7,000 for the maintenance they perform and collects on half of all parking, landing and hangar rental fees generated by the airport.

Scott said he would ideally like to see a contract that benefits everyone using the airport.

"It's my personal opinion that this relationship between the city and Island Airways is definitely benefiting Island Airways and is hopefully benefiting those people who need service to Beaver Island. But that's only one segment of population that uses that airport," he said.

Finger pier collapses on Beaver Island

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to the collapse of a finger pier at about 8 p.m. on Thursday, July 3 at the Beaver Island Yacht Dock.

According to Deputy Sheriff James Campbell of the Sheriff's Office Beaver Island Substation, at the time of the collapse there were seven people on the dock which collapsed into about 10 feet of water.

The victims were Scott Cooper, 46, of Holland; Ron Lee, 47, of Taylor; Gerald Jay Cooper, 71, Holland; Michael John Cooper, 47, of Zeeland; Jill Cooper, 45, of Zeeland; Katherine Lee Cheaves, 36, of Ellsworth; and Tracy Cheaves, 38, of Ellsworth.

Jill Cooper suffered cuts and abrasions and Katherine Lee Cheaves suffered bruising. Both were treated at the scene by the Beaver Island EMS.

The incident remains under investigation with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Chairs for charity

Members of the First Congregational Church are holding a "Take a Seat Chair-ity Auction" to benefit the Women's Fellowship, Food Pantry and B.A.S.E.S. Chairs of all varieties, such as this chair painted with the South Point Lighthouse, were painted and will be auctioned off at the church Aug. 1. (Below) A finished chair. (Photos by Amy Sayre)

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and organizations and manages them as permanent endowments.

Every year, a portion of the endowment's investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development and various civic projects.

The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing charitable capital to perpetually benefit Charlevoix County residents and nonprofit organizations.

The community foundation will review grant requests again this fall. The deadline for applications is Oct. 1, 2003.

City to drill test wells for McSauba, golf course needs

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "Doing nothing is not an option. The well at the golf course will fail and we will have limited snow making facilities to the guns at the ski hill."
> Mike Weisner, Charlevoix City Manager

The Charlevoix City Council approved the start of a project July 7 which will increase the water supply to the Charlevoix Golf Course and Mount McSauba ski hill.

Preliminary work to the two areas will begin this summer because improvements currently being made at McSauba and the golf course call for an increased water supply to the area.

"All we're going to do this year is fix our current well at the golf course and put in underground electric and piping at Mount McSauba. When we find out the results of two test wells, we'll be able to develop future budgets to get water," City Manager Mike Weisner said.

Water at the golf course is needed because the current well is failing, so the city has known for a while it would need to find another source. Snow is needed at Mount McSauba because the city has decided to upgrade their snowmaking capacity with the purchase of three higher powered snow guns.

The city purchased three snow guns at a total of $9,000 apiece for the ski hill. They will be doing piping and electrical work to the hill to prepare for higher powered guns which will be used at full capacity once a sufficient water supply is found.

Weisner said increasing the water supply has to be done because the work taking place this summer is creating the higher water demand.

"Doing nothing is not an option. The well at the golf course will fail and we will have limited snow making facilities to the guns at the ski hill," he said.

The project, which includes drilling two test wells and doing preliminary work on both the ski hill and golf course, will cost $177,600. By the time the project is finished, the total project implementation fee, which includes developmental costs, will be $412,000, Weisner estimates.

It is not certain how much the project will end up costing the city given that it is unknown where they will be able to get water. Seven options were presented to city council centered around different possible water sources which included test wells, tying into city water mains and even possibly drawing water from Lake Michigan.

The first and most desirable option includes drilling a test well north of the ski hill and if a sufficient water supply is found, supply water to the golf course and ski hill via the first test well area.

However if the first test well fails, a second $36,000 test well will be drilled at the south end of the golf course in hopes of striking water.

"I'm assuming the test wells will be put in within a month depending on how busy the well driller is," Weisner said.

If they find a sufficient water supply, the test well drilling will stop and the city will not have to use any of the other costlier options presented at the city council meeting.

Even though the project, which has been in the planning stages since last fall, will begin this summer, it will not be implemented in time for this year's ski season.

"The timing isn't that big a deal as long as we have the test well and the direction on that for the next time we have a budget," Weisner said.

Cancer society needs Relay for Life teams

The American Cancer Society is currently seeking teams to participate in Charlevoix's First Relay For Life event at the Charlevoix Middle School.

The event begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9, and ends at 10 a.m., Sunday, Aug. 10. Relay For Life, a team based fund-raising event, is a way to make a difference in the fight against cancer.

This is the first year for the Charlevoix relay. Businesses, families, friends and survivors are invited and encouraged to form teams and hit the track in what promises to be 24 hours of entertainment, celebration and reflection.

Forming a team is simple.

Teams should have 10-15 walkers, all ages are welcome. Relay For Life is a community event in which participants spend a full 24 hours taking turns walking laps on the track, socializing, picnicking, playing games and participating in planned activities, all while raising money and awareness to fight cancer.

There is an informational meeting at 5:30 p.m. on July 14 which will be at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church. Anyone and everyone is invited to attend. Learn more about participating and aiding in the fight against cancer.

"Cancer survivors are a large, diverse, important community, and Relay For Life is one way the American Cancer Society reaches out to them," Theresa Haske said. "Survivors find comfort by spending time together at relay and empowerment by making a difference in the lives of others battling the disease. We invite all cancer survivors to join in whatever capacity they choose."

Paying tribute to those who have battled cancer lies at the heart of the relay. During the Victory Lap, cancer survivors from throughout the community walk a celebratory lap around the track together.

At sundown, luminaria are lit to honor and remember those who have battled cancer and to help guide walkers through the night.

For more information on Relay For Life or forming teams contact the American Cancer Society at (877) 240-0001 or visit www.cancer.org.

Lake Keepers group looking for more volunteers

The Lake Keepers are looking for volunteers.

The Lake Keepers, a committee of the Lake Charlevoix Association, does various on-the-water tasks in the service of keeping Lake Charlevoix's water clean. Instead of one paid Keeper, which is the model on some other bodies of water (Hudson River, Neuse River, Puget Sound, Chesapeake Bay, Lake St. Claire), there are eight volunteers, using their own boats. They are John Danly, Bill Gallagher, Jonathan Friendly, Steve Hansen, Paul Nowak, Ralph Parker, Gail Piltz and Leon Vercruysse.

Their tasks mostly have to do with the shoreline, so the boats move along in shallow water, in full view of the home owners — which is good, because the boats, with a Lake Keeper banner on their sides, are a valuable reminder of the efforts needed to protect the Lake's water quality.

Here are some examples of ongoing studies, the data for which is gathered by the Lake Keepers:

• Locating eroding banks along the shore. Through the multi-agency Lake Charlevoix Watershed Project, the group is able to offer the owners of the most severe examples matching grant money for repair.

• Surveying the shoreline to determine what proportion of the approximately 1,640 properties have ecologically good (a full or partial green belt, wetlands) or not so good (lawn right down to the lake, scalped beach) features.

• Counting, annually, the various types of boats using the lake.

• Counting the permanent and temporary docks around the lake.

In addition, the keeper committee has established a computer database in which this data, and more, can be entered. Trends in the data can be seen and the Lake Charlevoix Association can correspond with both property owners and township officials in education endeavors.

An example would be letters to shoreline owners and alerting them to the presence of the filamentous green growth, named Cladophora, seen on their shore. The presence of Cladophora may indicate excess nutrients entering the Lake.

Two keepers record measurements of the lake's water clarity and plant growth in the mid-main body and south arm during the summer months. This data, having been collected for years, indicates long term trends in the health of the lake.

In the next few years, the keeper committee would like to take over the early summer time scouting for Cladophora currently done by staff from Tip of the Mitt Wateshed Council. Another future step is increased publicity for the Keeper ecology-question answering service at 582-0117.

If any of this activity appeals to you and you would like to be a part of the effort, please call Steve at home 547-0436 or the Keeper number 582-0117.

Having a shallow draft boat is good, but not essential, since many of the tasks require a crew of two. Kayakers are needed.

The Cladophora surveys are done in a few feet of water from kayaks. People knowledgeable about data entry are welcome, as are people who enjoy studying the property tax assessment maps to learn about new property splits and consolidations.

Copies of these maps are how the keepers orient themselves along the shoreline and how they obtain addresses to for letters to home owners.

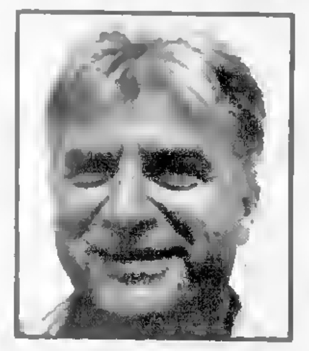
HEALTH

Help keep the community healthy and happy

Bob Gorkiewicz, P.T.



'Your health'

We cannot choose our parents or the genes that they have given us, however we make many lifelong choices, which significantly influence our health throughout life.

Increasingly it is becoming apparent that our choices of activity level, how we exercise and what we consume, over a long period of time makes a difference in our acquisition of disease processes and our longevity.

The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) (www.cdc.gov) indicates that, as of 1999, 61 percent of our adult population is obese. What is more disturbing is that for the same time period, 13 percent of children aged 6 to 11 years and 14 percent of adolescents aged 12 to 19 are obese. Incredibly, the prevalence in adolescents has tripled in the last decade. Our children are getting fatter faster than any time in history.

While it was once thought that obesity was a sign of living a good life and being well off, it is now known to be a significant trigger for serious health problems, many of which are life threatening.

According to the CDC, overweight and obesity are associated with heart disease, type 2 diabetes (which can lead to kidney failure, blindness, amputation and a host of other problems) stroke, arthritis and breathing problems.

I was staggered when I read that "Although type 2 diabetes was virtually unknown in children and adolescents 10 years ago, it now accounts for almost 50 percent of new cases of diabetes in some communities" (Wang G Diets. Pediatrics 2002 109 (5):E81-1)

Shall we all shake our heads and click our tongues? Shall we wait for the federal government to fix the problem? No, that won't help much! What will help a great deal is if each one of us would take some personal responsibility and spend a little time analyzing our life styles and trying to determine where we can build some consistent physical activity into our lives.

The CDC recommends that Americans accumulate at least 30 minutes (adult) or 60 minutes (children) of moderate physical activity most days of the week (read 7 days through my eyes).

The activities should be pleasurable and would be best if functional. For example, we who live in Charlevoix are blessed with an incredible out-of-door setting. You can honestly get around in this town nines months of the year on a bicycle, burn fat and not Middle East oil, and have the added advantage in the summer of actually moving faster than the cars in town!

Choose to bicycle to work or to the store. Yes you really can do it and in a surpassingly short period of time. Walk the incredible trails in our parks, nature preserves and our great inter-town trail. You will be amazed at the sights, sounds and smells that come to you when you are on foot and paying attention. Leave your cell phone at home, walk with your spouse and actually have an uninterrupted conversation!

We have a lovely pool in town. It is a great tool for exercise, especially in all of the months that don't end in August (the lakes are a little cold otherwise — a neoprene suit helps extend that season). Buy a pool membership and go have some fun. There is lap swim time, family swim time and adult exercise time, so you can choose what best suits your needs.

Meet your friends at Curves or Southside Gym or Harbor Health and Fitness. There is a social aspect of exercise that keeps us going and enjoying the work, while enjoying the companionship. Help our city and school planners make decisions that allow us to functionally move from place to place not using our cars and to design our cities in a manner that invites non-motorized transportation.

The Surgeon General's 2001 "Call to Action to Prevent and Decrease Overweight and Obesity " (www.surgeongeneral.gov/topics/obesity) states that "communities can help when it comes to health promotion and disease prevention. When there are no safe places for children to play and, or for adults to walk, jog or ride a bike, that's a community responsibility."

And most importantly, be a role model for our children. Pass on to them the tools to live a healthy lifestyle, a diet rich in fruit vegetables, grains and daily exercise. It may make up for some of the questionable genes we have passed to them!

Certainly these changes can not be made all at once, but rather gradually over a period of time. When you start seeing success with the first increase in activity (which may take 6 weeks or more), you will likely then undertake more increases in activity, blending it even further into your lifestyle.

If you have pre-existing health problems, consult your physician regarding exercise limitations. For advice about designing and pacing your physical programs, consult a sports trainer, exercise physiologist or physical therapist. If you bite off more than you can chew and injure yourself, call your physician and consult with a physical therapist. Physical therapists are trained specifically to analyze movement deficits and motor problems as well as sports related injuries. Based on the analysis, a treatment plan is established, which usually includes therapeutic exercise. The end result is to get you "back in the game" of a healthy life and not be sidetracked at half time.

For a healthy life, choose to (paraphrasing Garrison Keilor), "eat well, do consistent work outs, and keep in shape"

Symphony a success, despite the rain

In spite of Friday night's reoccurring downpours, a large crowd turned out for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's "Symphony on the Green" performance helping to raise more than $60,000 for the foundation.

Marc Lame, surgeon at Charlevoix Area Hospital, gave his appreciation at the start of the concert to the Symphony on the Green Committee for all their hard work in putting together the event.

Then, with baton in hand, Larry O'Brien Musical Director for the Glenn Miller Orchestra, got the crowd going as they presented "Pennsylvania 6-5,000." After saying their audience in Gaylord was more enthusiastic, O'Brien was drowned out on the next chorus, not by the rain, but by the wildly enthusiastic crowd shouting out the familiar numbers.

In the vernacular, "the joint was jumping" by the time the orchestra got to "Little Brown Jug." "Tuxedo Junction" was another popular tune, followed up by vocalist, Julia Rich's rendition of "I'll Take Romance."

Male vocalist, Nick Hilscher from Marietta, Ga., warmed audience hearts with his young Sinatra style singing in, "April in Paris" and "A Nightingale Sang in Berkley Square."

"We are so pleased that everyone had a good time and came out in spite of the rain," said event chair, Amy Lalewicz.

For the most part, attendees to the event came dressed, not in their summer finery, but in foul weather gear and coats.

"Better weather would have been wonderful, but people were so nice about the weather and dressed for it. We are so grateful to everyone and the music was wonderful," Lalewicz said.

Foundation Co-chair Mary Adams seemed to be everywhere during the evening making certain that every guest was having a good time.

"We are so pleased to be able to purchase some new equipment for the hospital and support our community at the same time," Adams said. "We just feel badly that our much-needed rain showed up on Friday night."

Midway through the concert O'Brien said he'd been resisting the urge to play "Stormy Weather," but he would yield a little as the orchestra presented "Here's That Rainy Day." O'Brien's comfortable style and obvious love for the music helped to warm the evening and the audience responded in kind.

"Your applause is music to our ears," he said. He also acknowledged the younger people in the audience saying he was "always happy to see younger people enjoying the music."

Next stop for the orchestra on Saturday would be Kalamazoo, so appropriately "I've Got a Gal in Kalamazoo" was one of the last songs of the evening.

Saying, "We have a tradition we observe wherever we play," O'Brien dedicated the next song ("American Patrol") to all the veterans in the audience and to those currently serving in our armed forces.

The Glenn Miller orchestra has a youthful look of primarily musicians in their mid-twenties, but the old familiar sounds from the 1940s and the 1950s were there. The artists come from throughout the United States, including Alaska, but the sound they make is of rich harmony developed by playing 300 shows a year.

Funds from the event are being presented to Charlevoix Area Hospital for the purchase of Stretta equipment for use in gastroesophageal surgery and for other equipment used in Orthopedic surgeries.

Other funds will be used to support the Crooked Tree Arts Council Beginning Strings program in Charlevoix and Northern Antrim counties, for the purchase of a Red Cross Fish in the Great Northern Fish-In and in support of the Foundation's Community Outreach programs.

St. Mary School to have morning Pre-Kindergarten class

This fall St. Mary School will begin offering Pre-Kindergarten classes from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m., Monday through Friday.

St. Mary's has a pre-established Pre-Kindergarten program and the quality of this program will be maintained. It is offered for children who will be 4 years old by Dec. 1, 2003.

Morning sessions are a new feature of this program, as it was previously offered in the afternoon.

The Pre-Kindergarten program is designed to meet the needs of the developing 4-and 5-year-old child. Social skills are emphasized in helping the child to deal with life situations at his or her age level.

Gross and fine motor skills are developed through play experiences and group activities. Number concepts are explored.

St. Mary's goal is to work toward each child developing self-discipline and self-confidence. Rewarding the positive behavior that children exhibit is valued.

The teacher/program director, Heather Sape, of Charlevoix, is a graduate of Central Michigan University, with a major in Early Childhood Development and a minor in reading. She has been trained in the Michigan Literacy Profile Program, in both Building Blocks and Four Block.

In addition to the Pre-Kindergarten program, St. Mary's will be adding an Extended Day Program, which will be a service to parents in transitions for their children. This program is not only offered to the parents of children in the Pre-Kindergarten class, but is offered to parents in the community who are in need of care for their children in the afternoon.

The Extended Day Program will take place from 11:30 a.m. through 5 p.m., Monday through Friday during the school calendar year. It is offered for children age 4 by Dec. 1, 2003, through age 8.

In order to launch this program, the school requires a minimum of six students to be enrolled.

The fee for the Extended Day Program is $15 per day. A registration fee of $30 is required to hold a child's place in this program.

For further information on these programs or to register a student, please contact the school office at (231) 547-9441.

Planning Commission passes Appletree plan commercial storefronts you would see in any northern Michigan town."

The plan passed the planning commission unanimously without discussion.

It will be now moved on to the Charlevoix City Council for final approval at 7 p.m., Aug. 4 during the council's regular meeting at the U.S. Coast Guard Training Room on Bridge Street next to the Beaver Island Ferry.

Planning Commission chair Dennis Kusina said the commission had to approve the plan because it did not violate any zoning ordinances and fit in with the city plans.

"They did their homework," he said before the meeting.

The new plan calls for a three story building fronting on Bridge Street and rising 36.6 feet into the air — slightly higher than the two buildings on either side of the present Appletree building.

There will be retail space at street level, with a residential unit behind it. Above the retail will also be residential units, with both one and two bedroom options.

The rear of the building will be four story, including a below level parking garage and storage area.

Residential units will sell for $700,000 and up, Rutter said.

He added he already has buyers interested in the project.

Rutter said he has shown the plan to the owner of the Appletree business, Mike Holmes, and he has indicated his support for it. Rutter added Holmes' business will be asked to rent the retail space available in the new development.

During the meeting, Charlevoix City Council Member Shirley Gibson, who was sitting in the audience, suggested that the developer use part of the current building's facade — such as stones in its current wall — for the new building due to historical purposes.

Rutter said the historical significance of the building is one of the reasons the new building will be called the Appletree Building.

He did not say if he would use parts of the current facade in the new building and he dismissed using the current building in the new plans due to structural issues.

Rutter added he will be using a "French" design on the facade to fit in with the "character of Charlevoix."

After the meeting, Gibson said she was not impressed with the new design.

"I don't think it fits in with the character at all. Charlevoix is going to lose its uniqueness," she said.

She added it will look like any other building in any other town.

Dave Garland, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, said there is nothing the society can do about this plan because there is no historic district in Charlevoix.

Rutter said he expects demolition of the current building to begin in mid-August to September, with everyone moving into the finished new building next spring.

Little League team in district semifinals

The Charlevoix Minor League All-Stars (9-and 10-year-olds) advanced to the district semifinals with a 7-1 win over Gaylord.

The Little Leaguers are only two victories away from reaching the state tournament.

Brandon Darrah went the distance on the mound, striking out nine in the win. He also had one of Charlevoix's eight hits.

Thomas Rich and Boog Nitchman each had two hits. David Merrill, Wyatt Drost and J.T. Lawrence also had singles in the victory.

Manager Chuck Klooster said that strong defense was a key and credited Drost and Logan Kline at first base, Nitchman at second, Rich at shortstop, Lawrence at third, Merrill in right field and Matthew Klooster behind the plate with exceptionally strong defensive performances.

Charlevoix was scheduled to play in Lewiston on Tuesday, July 15, with the winner advancing to the district finals, but results were unavailable at presstime.

Gaylord defeated Charlevoix's Major League All-Stars, 4-3 to end the 11- and 12-year-olds tournament run.

Charlevoix rallied in the bottom of the sixth, putting the potential tying run on third and winning run on second base with one out, but could not break through.

Andrew Largent had two hits for Charlevoix. Woody Nitchman, Ty Telgenhof and Tyler Jones each had one with Nitchman's a triple.

Telgenhof took the pitching loss, yielding three earned runs in five innings of work, striking out six. Michael Heckendorn struck out the side in his one inning on the hill.

Santa Claus to appear at Venetian Festival

The ship will have just come from an underwater exploration in the Norwood area studying a civilization that existed over 6,000 years ago. It will dock in Round Lake from Thursday, July 24, to Saturday, July 26. Tours will be given of the ship.

The ship will also take place in the boat parade Saturday night.

Barron said it will be just as jazzed up as the other boats with lights, music provided by the Rayder jazz band and the Venetian queens aboard.

Also making a first time appearance at this year's festival will be Santa Claus, celebrating Christmas in July at Kids' Day, Thursday, July 24.

"They've got our rapt attention because we've never seen Santa's summer outfit before," Barron said.

Santa has opted to leave the reindeer up north however, and will be arriving in summer style on a Boston Whaler.

To make Santa feel more welcome, the harbor will be decorated for Christmas with trees and lights.

Aside from Santa, Kids' Day plans to have a zoo with pony rides, games, Laura the elephant, a 30-foot rock climbing wall, a dove release and, new this year, Mongo the mechanical bull.

A bike tour, hosted by the Top o' Michigan Trails Council, was also added this year on the opening day, July 20.

Riders can navigate the Little Traverse Wheelway while also participating in a scavenger hunt.

If the bike ride goes well, Barron said other activities may be added to the opening Sunday next year to complement the bike ride and three-on-three basketball tournament.

"We're looking at the prospect after this year to have a barbecue that opening Sunday," he said.

While new events are always added to Venetian, some activities are always a sure bet.

The annual croquet match will take place Monday, July 21, with high stakes for two of the teams.

The Charlevoix city and county fire departments will face off with the winning team getting to place their fire engine first in the parade Saturday.

Barron said placement of the trucks is a highly coveted position for the departments and this was the fairest way to determine who got to signal the start of the parade.

Also leading the parade on July 26 will be the Grand Marshals, including war veterans from World War II, the Korean War, Vietnam, Desert Storm and the Iraqi War.

All the hoopla and activity in Charlevoix during Venetian week calls for more than the standard police operation. A stronger police force provided by Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson and his staff will be patrolling the crowds.

Halverson said the average night in Charlevoix has two or three officers on duty, but during Venetian Festival the number multiplies to as many as 15 officers.

"For us it's a busy week. Guys are working extended shifts with no days off for some," he said.

To increase man power and strength, they pull in auxiliary workers, people from the sheriff's department and even officers from Boyne City for a shift.

Halverson, in his seventeenth year working Venetian, said they run the gamut of problems throughout the week typical of large crowd gatherings such as lost children, alcohol-related problems and parking.

"People should be aware that the whole week there will be less available parking on Bridge Street," he said.

The carnival street closures are similar to those in the past with Mason Street closed from Bridge Street to City Hall from Wednesday to Saturday.

> "It's a central gathering time for everyone."
> Dan Barron,
> Venetian Festival President

The parking lot located behind the 300 block of Bridge Street will not be available for parking as well on those days because of the carnival.

The extended festival format has caused some changes in police numbers and enforcement over the years. In the past, their main concern was Saturday night and now they have four or five nights of heavy patrol.

While Halverson did say the department is ready to handle the crowds and chaos that is the Venetian festival, they will be looking forward to the end.

"We wouldn't want it two weeks in a row," he said.

"How about a plan that's a real family value?"

Do we think alike or what?

Man injured when car rolls onto his leg

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a minor injury accident around 1:10 p.m. at 08104 Cedar Lane, in Charlevoix Township, on July 7.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, Kenneth Leon Wilson, 80, of Charlevoix went to move his grandson's basketball net and believed that his vehicle was in park, when the vehicle began to roll backward. As he attempted to get into the vehicle to stop, he lost footing and fell down.

The vehicle then rolled up onto Wilson's leg, where it rested.

A neighbor, Carl Johnson, heard Wilson's calls for help and attempted to assist him by removing the vehicle, but was unsuccessful before the arrival of Charlevoix EMS.

Wilson was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated for a minor leg injury.

SCRAPBOOK

'Buyer beware' still a good rule of thumb

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

Through the years, when it was necessary to get a different piece of transportation, the adage, "Buyer Beware" has been a most important part of the transaction.

Dales' grandfather, Morris Chew told many stories about trading horses. In his time, he would find that the horses which came up for sale had been doctored up to look better than they really were. Grandpa said that most generally they were portrayed as being younger than they actually were. Sometimes they were given a tonic mixture to make them frisky. Grandpa would look at their teeth and could more accurately tell their ages by the condition they were in.

This continued on into the more modern ages, when the automobile came along. One time, Dale was down at John Norton's gas station, located at that time on the corner, next to Judy's Restaurant. An elderly neighbor came in, driving a four door Dodge he had just purchased. John didn't dare tell him the history on the car, but after he got his gas and pulled out, John said the car was all worn out. It was owned by a rural mail carrier, and the reason he traded it off was that it was nearly worn out. John knew they had used a product called FahSpray, which covered up the worn mohair on the seats. The exterior was all shined up, so the car appeared to be in great shape.

In the late fifties, we had put 78,000 miles on a Buick we owned for four years. We traded it in on a fancy Volkswagen bus, which we bought in Traverse City. About four days after we traded it in, the dealer called and said he just sold the Buick, and he changed the speedometer to show that it had only 18,000 miles. We always kept the car immaculate and it looked beautiful. We didn't want any part of this, and luckily, the man never contacted us about the mileage. This happened before there were fines levied for setting speedometers back.

Every fall, we went to the Traverse City fair and we would see the black and white Buick sitting outside one of the concession stands. The owner belonged to one of the clubs in town and drove it to work at a food concession stand. About 10 years later, Dale happened to see the man getting something out of the car and went up to him and asked him how he liked the old Buick. The owner said he now had 220,000 miles on it and hadn't had many problems through the years.

Dale then told him that he used to own it. Dale informed him that the car actually had 280,000 miles on it, due to the dealer rolling back the speedometer. At that point the owner didn't care, because it had been a great vehicle.

Due to the electronic capabilities which we have today, a lot of people think it is not possible to set a speedometer back. Well, I'll tell you a new twist. One of Dale's hobbies is automobiles, and often someone will ask him to try and find them a nice used vehicle. He received a call from a couple interested in buying a good used Cadillac. In looking through the advertisements, he found a 2000 model Sedan Deville located in central Michigan. The car was owned by a private party. The price was $22,000, but the owner would take $20,000, since there was no trade in. The man was a retired college professor. He lived in a new condominium in a nice part of town, with a three stall attached garage. He was planning to go to another condo he owned in Arizona and bring a nice Mercedes Benz which he also owned, back to Michigan. A wonderful story, as the Cadillac had been bought from a GM official and the speedometer had just turned 29,000 miles. It was sterling silver in color, had factory chrome wheels on it and was immaculate.

When he returned from Arizona, a week later, he called Dale. Dale reported that the couple would take the car, but would need the serial number so they could get insurance and bring it back to Charlevoix. Everything was ready to go. Then, the couple decided to spend $15 and check the history of the vehicle on the internet. WOW! Here's what they found. The Cadillac was purchased new in Florida in 1999, driven three months and three weeks and 18,000 miles were put on it in that short period. A new Florida title was issued at that time. The car was driven for the next thirty months in Florida and was then taken to Canada, where it was registered in Ontario.

It remained in Canada for three days, where the mileage was set to 20,600. Then it was brought back to the United States at Port Huron, with only 2,600 miles more on the speedometer than it had thirty months previous.

It was taken to an auction at Burton and sold to the professor, a private party, a week later. He then had to take the car back to Port Huron to get it certified so it would meet U.S. emission tests, and a Michigan title could be issued. The professor drove it just short of 9,000 miles from last November to this June in the U.S.A.

Dale called the professor to give him the no deal news and he didn't even act surprised. Needless to say, the couple flatly said they weren't interested whatever in the car, and the deal was off. This was certainly $15 well spent.

So, even in this new electronic age in which we live, the old adage "Buyer Beware" is as relevant as it was one hundred years ago, when Grandpa Chew was buying horses to haul the old buggy.

Vets honored in Venetian parade

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

This year's Venetian parade will feature five grand marshals, each representing wars that have changed American way of life and our history.

Mary Selph will be representing the recent Iraqi War, John Kiernan will represent the Persian Gulf War, Ed Holm will represent the Vietnam War, Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell will represent the Korean War and Louis McKenzie will represent World War II.

"We wanted to honor vets that served in the area from all the different wars," said parade organizer Norman "Boogie" Carlson.

The youngest marshal, 21-year-old Mary Selph, returned home from the Iraqi conflict just last week.

Selph, who joined the Marines after graduating from Charlevoix High School, has been in the service for one year and four months. Last week ended her five months of service in Iraq.

"I like representing a female in the service and representing Charlevoix," Selph said.

John Kiernan served in the Persian Gulf twice — once for the Marines from 1987-88 during the Iran-Iraq conflict and again in 1991 for the Army during the Persian Gulf.

"I've hopped around," Kiernan said.

He spent three years in the Army before joining the United States Coast Guard in 1992.

Like his fellow marshals, he is honored to be in the parade.

"It's a nice feeling to participate in something like that," he said.

Louis McKenzie, 80, was an Air Force photographer during World War II. While stationed in Guam, he snapped pictures from a B-29 fighter plane as allied forces bomhed Japan. He has always marched in the Venetian parade as a retired veteran, but this will

Cemex, township to meet over ordinance

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

A meeting between Charlevoix Township officials and Cemex representatives will take place July 29 to determine if the company is complying with the township's mining ordinance.

The meeting comes as a result of several Boulder Park residents questioning the board's effectiveness in dealing with Cemex.

Residents allege Cemex has violated several rules set forth in the township's mining ordinance at a Charlevoix Township Board meeting in April. Boulder Park residents also attended the township meeting on July 14 and listed pollution, noise and vibration violations as their main concerns.

"I have met with (Boulder Park residents) and I have obtained a list of what they feel are problems. We're going to try to address all of those concerns," township attorney Dick Joseph said.

Joseph said he plans on reviewing the current ordinance line-by-line at the meeting with Cemex representatives. His findings, which he expects to be minor issues, will determine the township's next course of action if the company is not in compliance.

"We would take appropriate legal action until they become in compliance. They can read the ordinance just as well as we can," Joseph said. "My guess is they are really close to being in compliance. If they're not, and I'm wrong on that, then we'll come down with the full force of the law available to us."

Michele Buckler, Cemex Environmental Manager, said the Major development still being planned

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Developer Dorian Lange appeared before the Charlevoix township planning commission Tuesday, July 15, to gather zoning ordinance information regarding constructing a 73-acre development on property along US-31 North.

Charlevoix township board trustee Nancy Rajewski said the development is still very early on in planning stages, so she is unsure of a time frame the building could actually be constructed.

"Until they actually come up with a site plan, we just don't know," she said.

Rajewski said at the meeting there was no public comment, formal presentation or motions made. Lange only collected zoning information about the unit which is proposed to be constructed in both Charlevoix and Hayes townships.

He requested zoning information about what could be developed on the property under certain zoning classifications. He gathered information about both a planned residential district and planned unit development (PUD). The PUD includes both commercial and residential districts.

The proposed development will cover 73 acres total, with 44 acres in Hayes Township and 29 acres in Charlevoix Township.

The area in Charlevoix township is currently zoned as a commercial district, so if anything other than businesses are built, the area will have to be rezoned. But before anything can be built, each proposed site has to be approved by the township.

The proposed project includes a hotel, office space, senior housing, a restaurant, retail space, apartments and self-storage units, but no construction of any kind has begun in Charlevoix township.

Rajewski said the township board heard of the plan about a year ago, but the developers did not get information to the board until recently.

The hotel, Americinn Motel and Suites, will be a two-story, 54 unit structure with an indoor swimming pool and on-site parking. The hotel will span almost 4 acres and will be located northeast of Bethany Lutheran Church, fronting US-31.

According to master plan documents submitted last year to Ethel Knepp, Hayes Township clerk, the entrance and exit to the hotel, and the development that may accompany it, will be an located across from the Charlevoix Country Club entrance. The request for the hotel project, which was granted by the Hayes Township Planning Commission on March 19, 2002 was made by Lange on behalf of Lange Limited, LLC, of Eaton Rapids.

The Hayes Township property planned for development is located at the northeast section of the US-31 and Boyne City-Charlevoix Road intersection, surrounding the Bethany Lutheran Church and adjoined with the Vidosh Landscaping parcel.

Lange has proposed construction of an office facility southwest of the senior housing complex with a restaurant possibly on the opposite side of the hotel entrance. Plans show a grocery store and a retail strip development located southeast of the hotel and apartments to be built over the Hayes Township retail strip center.

Behind the grocery store, Lange has planned construction of self-storage units. The planned development unit request states this storage area will be hidden from view by the retail and senior housing complexes.

Relief for visitors is a short walk away

EDITORIAL

Visitors to Charlevoix's East Park and downtown finally have some place to find relief and just in time too.

Last month, the city of Charlevoix, the Downtown Development Authority and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce placed a temporary bathroom facility behind the East Park stage to meet the needs of visitors to the downtown area.

Regardless of the humor created by the fact that the city tore down a building in that location last year, the Wharfside, only to have a temporary building there this year, these bathroom facilities were needed.

During Venetian Festival alone thousands of people converge on downtown Charlevoix and East Park to enjoy the music and take part in the many activities available to them.

With that many people, there are bound to be a few filled bladders.

In the past, those who had visit the restroom, had to do so in one of the few city facilities near the park or dark, dank and disgusting portables. Some even resorted to dropping their pants in the alleys to fertilize our flowers, only to be ticketed by our fine police officers.

Now, visitors to the downtown area who find their urge to seek relief can do so in a clean bathroom facility centrally located in the park.

And, because the community is currently considering plans for a new park, the facility is temporary and can be towed away.

But, when the need presents itself again, the bathroom facility can be brought back out.

Now, some people say the temporary facility is ugly. But, in comparison to those single stall portable potties of the past, is it really that bad?

The city, chamber and DDA should be congratulated for bringing in this temporary facility.

The relief on East Park visitor's faces alone should show how good of an idea it was.

Tree time and human time is very different

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

What does time mean to a tree?

I can't tell you, because even though I occasionally talk to trees, not only do they not listen to me, they certainly do not talk back. What I do know is that time means something completely different to trees than it does to us humans. That difference may help to explain why it is so difficult for people to deal with the natural world.

We are pretty comfortable with annual plants that we can start from seed. They seem to almost leap out of the ground and are ready for our use of them in a matter of weeks. The vegetable gardens we tend are a clear testament to how much we value that short-term relationship.

Radishes do not require much from us by way of understanding because they seem to operate with the same frantic concern for the passage of time that characterizes much of human experience. From seed to harvested radish in less than 30 days; From here to anywhere in the world in less than 24 hours.

Trees are not like that. Trees start slow, and some may spend decades establishing a comfortable root system, while the above ground parts we most easily see may grow only a few feet tall. A good tree can live comfortably for centuries or even thousands of years if the fates be kind.

Compared to that, our biblical three-score-and-10 -years is hardly noticeable.

We commonly pack so much into a few days of summer vacation that the days may blur as time seems to whizz by. To a tree or any long-lived plant a few weeks is hardly time to take a good breath. It is not easy for us to grasp life at the comfortable pace of an organism that may be around for more than 500 years.

Do we need to think like a tree? Only if we plan to understand how almost all of the nonhuman world works.

To us a forest fire is a devastation that will not be repaired in our lifetime. To the forest containing the trees a forest fire is the necessary part of a renewal that may take centuries to complete.

If trees have a long memory and a relaxed pattern of living, the forest that contains them is nearly eternal.

The centuries-long lives of a few generations of trees is just a moment in the life of a complete forest.

My first ecology professor often told us that the natural world was more complicated than we could think. He was talking about trying to understand processes and patterns that unfolded over thousands of years.

Until we can begin to think in terms of what will likely surround us a thousand years down the road we will never be able to effectively manage or plan for most of the natural world. It moves too slowly for us to see.

Just because it is slow does not mean it is less effective than we are. Our human-center thinking makes it difficult for us to see how it may be more effective over the time span that it uses.

The real challenge of science and human understanding is to grasp the very slow and the very fast, the microscopically small and the galaxy large.

Our brains are poorly equipped for the work, since they are tied to our puny life spans and what we can easily see with our unaided eye.

When science tells us of the atoms and electrons it has found and pictures for us those things that are 10 billion light years away (one light year is about 6 trillion miles) we should begin our journey of understanding by thinking about the trees and how much older they are than we will ever be.

Letters to the editor

Charlevoix has great people

Editor:

I am writing this letter to all visitors and citizens of Charlevoix to tell them that honor, duty and honesty are still alive today. How do I know this? I know this because on Thursday evening, July 3, my wife left her purse by the benches on Round Lake when the band was playing. The misplaced purse went undetected for approximately one hour. When she realized it was gone, panic ensued. We found Officer Matthew Umulis and he already knew of our predicament from his dispatcher. He gave us his card and told us he would call us when he heard something. We had barely reached home when a call came from him telling us to come pick up the purse.

We met Officer Umulis downtown and he returned the purse. Nothing was missing. Not the money. Not the checkbook, not the cell phone, not the car keys. Not even a stick of gum. Our prayers were answered, our vacation could continue and for once this husband didn't lose it on his wife for doing what he does every day — lose something!

So this summer, Charlevoix has taught us two lessons. Lesson 1) there are good, honest people in the world, especially here in Charlevoix. Lesson 2) It's only stuff, but it's stuff we have a hard time living without.

Thank you Charlevoix police, thank you Matthew Umulis and thank you God for hearing our prayers for the return of our stuff!

Save the Appletree

Editor:

Here we go again! The Charlevoix Historical PHOTO Society is showing its impotence again. If Earl Young's old office isn't worth saving as a historical treasure of Charlevoix, what is? If Mr. Dave Garland's group doesn't understand that the state of Michigan does have a process for designating historical buildings, I hope someone on our city council, downtown development authority or chamber of commerce does.

Geoffrey Reynolds would know the process and I assume our career city leaders have knowledge of state agencies.

I worry that these people who can start the process of saving the old Appletree Building, won't do so. Moneyed projects coming to our city has blinded them from doing what's right, in the past. I hope there are enough people who care about the things that give Charlevoix its charm and they can influence our city leaders to act.

In the meantime, be at the 7 p.m., Aug. 4 city council meeting. It will be at the Coast Guard training room, next to the Beaver Island Ferry. See which of our leaders care about Charlevoix history and charm, more than money and development.

Here are two excellent reasons to reject the new Appletree building: It's ugly and it doesn't fit!

Thank you

Editor:

We would like to thank everyone for the benefit given for our children and MLD at Castle Farms in Charlevoix on June 29. It was a beautiful day and the generosity of others continues to amaze us.

We would like to specifically thank the organizers of the event: Sam and Cindy Supernaw, Ron and Jill Way, Jeff and Lenore Morgridge, Jim and Noni Morgridge, Kelly and Dave Herboldsheimer, Dane and Lynne Tollas, Joe Hayes and Kendall Campaigne. The event ran so smoothly and everyone had a good time.

We would like to thank the owners of Castle Farms, Richard and Linda Mueller, and special events coordinators, Denise Sobleski and Tom Urban. The Castle looked remarkable and everyone enjoyed the beautiful setting.

Our thanks also goes to Fran Tollas for coordinating the music. It was lovely and we look forward to hearing the CD. Thank you also to Scott McKenzie, auctioneer extraordinaire.

We would like to especially thank all of the volunteers, the people who donated items and the many who came and participated in the event.

On our Caring Bridge web site on June 30, we wrote the following: "When thanking some of the organizers, we heard a couple of people say, 'It's the least we can do.' Please don't sell yourselves or the generosity short. The reality is what the benefits have done is perhaps saved our kids lives. We are not exaggerating. The money raised could pay for the plane ticket that finds the person who can help. The money could be what pays for the media trip that leads us to someone who holds answers for us. The money could be that little bit that leads the researcher to the answer. It could save our kids lives, maybe improve them, and perhaps affect thousands of others."

That does sum up the importance of what happened on June 29. Thank you seems like such a small thing to say when you are feeling such enormous gratitude. Just please know it means so much. Thank you.

Library makes changes for the hectic summer season

Changes to the library have generated some comments among the community.

"The library has really changed, it looks so inviting," said Don Scheck, a long time library patron, in response to improvements that have been made at the Charlevoix Public Library.

"We have made many changes just in the last few months, preparing for the influx of our summer patrons," said Val Meyerson, library director.

She said the library has relocated or sold some of the older furniture and replaced it with more traditional library furnishings. The seating capacity in the adult area has doubled and one computer workstation was added.

"It is very convenient now for customers to access their e-mail via the 15-minute internet station," Meyerson said. "This quick work station has helped with our capacity problem by allowing patrons who only want to access their e-mail a fast way to do that."

The library has six other hour-long internet access stations.

The computer workstation table now matches the rest of the library furniture and is attractive and comfortable. The task chairs that go along with the new table are also much more comfortable than the older chairs that were not adjustable.

The other change that has been appreciated by many of the summer as well as local patrons is the addition of leased books that do not get put in the holds queue. Fiction books are very popular in the summer and it is hard to ever actually see them on the shelf.

Most of the best sellers get placed in a holds queue for people who have requested the book. The leasing program has allowed the library to purchase second and sometimes third copies of the hottest titles.

These leased titles check out for one week and go directly back to the shelf.

"The patrons have enjoyed the ability to actually view some of these titles on our shelf," said Jeanne McGhee, library assistant.

Although most of the 50 or so titles purchased through the leasing program are checked out, they do sit on the shelf for a period of time.

"We almost double our business in the summer, it is hard to keep books on the shelf," Meyerson said. "Summer in Charlevoix obviously affects us all!"

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark — nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Health agency suggests switch

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department, is offering digital thermometers, at no charge, in exchange for mercury thermometers.

Mercury thermometers have a silver core; thermometers with blue or red cores are alcohol based and safe.

To exchange a mercury thermometer, double-bag it in a sealed plastic zip-lock bag, and bring it to any of the health department offices during regular business hours.

"People can drop off as many mercury thermometers as they want," said Scott Johnston, who coordinates the exchange program for the health department. "But since we have a limited supply of digital thermometers, we're limiting one to a household."

When mercury thermometers break, liquid mercury spills, forming droplets that can accumulate in tiny spaces and emit dangerous vapors in the air. Mercury poisoning affects the human brain, spinal cord, kidneys and liver.

It affects the ability to feel, see, taste and move. It can cause tingling sensations in the fingers and toes, a numb sensation around the mouth and tunnel vision.

Long-term exposure to mercury can result in symptoms that get progressively worse and lead to personality changes, stupor and coma.

Because mercury can pass through placenta, where it affects fetal development by preventing the brain and nervous system from developing normally, the federal government recommends that pregnant women not eat fish that may be contaminated by mercury, such as shark, swordfish, tile fish, king mackerel and tuna. A complete list is available at www.fda.gov.

"You may never break the mercury thermometer that's in your medicine cabinet right now", Johnston said. "But why take the chance of harming someone in your family when it's so easy to remove this toxic substance from your home?"

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties.

Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For more information about the thermometer exchange program, call Johnston at (989) 732-6863 or your local health department office.

Organization gives Charlevoix high marks

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

According to independent research company Standard and Poor's, students in Charlevoix Public Schools benefit over other students across the state when it comes to testing, student spending, student-teacher ratio and graduation rates.

"I think we do a good job. We've got an outstanding teaching staff. We're constantly evaluating the curriculum to make sure it's in line with the Michigan core curriculum," said Charlevoix Superintendent John Sturock.

Standard and Poor's compared results of Charlevoix's district with other districts of similar demographic characteristics, including the population of the district, the ratio of economically disadvantaged students and the ratio of disabled students. From this they determined "peer averages."

Charlevoix's 2002 MEAP passing rate was 63.4 percent, whereas the state's average was 52.8 percent. The peer average was 54.5 percent.

The district's excelling score was 20.9 percent, the state's was 13.4 percent. The peer average's excelling rate was 12.9 percent.

The district's ACT mean score, taken from the average test results of Charlevoix high school students, was 21.6. This was slightly better than the peer average of 21.5 and the state average of 21.0.

In addition to test scores, Standard and Poor's also determined that over the past five years Charlevoix district's graduation rate has increased from 88.3 percent in 1998 to 92.4 percent in 2002. This number exceeded the 2002 state graduation rate of 88.8 percent and the peer graduation rate of 85.3 percent.

"We put a lot of dollars towards instruction," Sturock said.

Even though the district's enrollment has dropped in the past two years, state funding has increased. Standard and Poor's attribute lower student-teacher ratio and increased student funding as factors in higher test scores for the Charlevoix district.

The only tests in which students did not exceed peer average were the AP tests. AP, also known as Advanced Placement, are courses for high school seniors that equal those for college freshman.

After taking the course, students take the AP test to receive college credit before they enter a university. The tests are difficult to pass and the majority of students do not receive credit.

Sturock attributes lower AP scores in the district to low participation for that particular test.

"I think we have one AP course and we don't have a lot of students taking (that) AP course," he said.

While they did not exceed the peer average, 54.5 percent of students in the Charlevoix district received a passing grade of three or higher on the test, compared to the state average of 54.3 percent.

Sturock stressed a school is judged on more than just test results.

"There's a lot more to education than a test. There's a lot more going on in our public schools that no test can measure," Sturock said.

However, he is pleased with this latest data.

"We use them as diagnostics. We're doing well based on those standards and benchmarks," Sturock said.

Standard and Poor's is a research company that provides "Student Evaluation Services" for school districts in Michigan and Pennsylvania.

To see detailed accounts of student scores, visit their web site at www.ses.standardandpoors.com.

Directors work hard for festival

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

It takes a village to raise a child and it takes a board of 10 and hundreds of volunteers to organize a Venetian festival.

The seventy-third annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival is underway, but for this year's board of directors the fun is only starting with many of the crowd favorite events taking place in the second half of the week.

This year's Venetian board of directors is composed of 10 individuals who are each in charge of different aspects of the week long extravaganza and celebration of Charlevoix's heritage.

"It's a great team effort. This is a group that roles up its sleeves and gets the job done," said Venetian festival president Dan Barron.

Dean Davenport is all about fun and games. As this years commissioner of Venetian Games, he is in charge of organizing the week-long range of competitions.

Thursday, July 24, plans to be jam packed with games and entertainment as Kids Day makes is appearance in East Park and the street carnival heads into full swing. The street carnival will begin Wednesday evening, July 23, and last until Saturday night, on Mason Street and the adjacent parking lots.

Dave Novotny spearheaded this year's street parade and fireworks. The fireworks this year plan to be better than years past, with Friday's display being the largest in the history of northern Michigan.

Friday's fireworks will begin approximately at 10:15 p.m. over the waters of Lake Charlevoix. The display will be set to a medley of tunes which can be heard from East Park, Ferry beach and Depot beach.

Saturdays harbor fireworks and grand electrical boat parade will begin around 10 p.m. in Round Lake and feature a medley of songs from this years festival headline bands. John Taylor is in charge of the boat parade and staging.

Making the festival financially possible is a crew of board members. Fund-raising board members include Tom Bickersteth, John Winn and Francis Flanders. Anne Golski is in charge of fund-raising and retail. Also helping to keep track of funds as well as generate them is Bob Kern.

Barron said each member volunteered to be a part of the board and have put in a total of approximately 500 man hours into the Venetian festival.

Providing over 36 hours of musical entertainment is the Rhythms of Venetian Music Festival taking place throughout the week in East Park and Bridge Park.

Two well known rock musicians from the 70s will perform during the week. Dave Mason will close out Tuesday nights performance and The Edgar Winter Band will close out Thursday nights entertainment. Both acts will perform in East Park.

A local favorite, Mojo an the Boogiemen will take the stage just before the Edgar Winter band Thursday.

And keeping the media informed of it all, including the array of Venetian activities, games, competitions, musical acts and fireworks, is board member Laurie Lounsbury.

Designer, management team picked for library

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Library Board of Trustees narrowed down their candidates last week and hired an interior designer and construction management team for the new library project.

Interior designer Alyce Reimenschneider and the Clark Construction Company were chosen to handle the renovation and restoration of the old middle school, which was acquired by the city, library and Downtown Development Authority to become the new library.

"I am definitely excited about them working on the project. I think with Alyce, she just seemed to very creative and enthusiastic about the program and her history with libraries is really phenomenal," Library Director Valerie Meyerson said. "I'm really glad the board decided to go construction management because it's really going to help out in the long run."

Reimenschneider, a graduate of the University of Michigan, specializes in library design and has worked on over 40 library design projects in Michigan, including several renovation projects.

Her design team worked on the Howell Carnegie District Library, which included 31,000 square feet of new construction and renovation, and won a first place historic preservation award for the project.

Despite her design firm's Ann Arbor home, Reimenschneider said they have never found distance to be an issue.

Reimenschneider and her associates said due to the library's current pre-bond phase and since funds are unknown, they will begin on a starting fee. When the designs are set and the library has their funds in order, they will redo the proposal.

Reimenschneider said they are very familiar with all aspects of design, including monetary issues.

"We've been told over and over again that we've saved so much money based our experience," she said.

Reimenschneider was very excited to get the opportunity to work on the building because she has vacationed in Charlevoix for the past 40 years and saw great potential in the old middle school property on her walk through.

Duane Wixsom, manager of northern Michigan operations with Clark Construction, also said he sees a lot of potential for the old middle school building.

"It's a great building. It appears to be very structurally sound. When it's done you'll have a treasure on your hands," he said.

The Clark Construction Company does over $200 million of work a year and has worked on several construction projects in northern Michigan, including the current Petoskey library project. It won a 1998 Build Michigan Award for work on the Holy Childhood of Jesus Church in Harbor Springs.

"They are a great firm. They have a good history. I am looking forward to the fact that libraries are on their mind, they are going through this right now (in Petoskey)," Meyerson said.

Illegal fireworks

Former resident writes book on the Bataan Death March

Smith (Bub) Merrill, a 30-year resident of Charlevoix before moving to Petoskey, is sharing his story with the world.

Merrill was one of the prisoners-of-war who survived the Bataan Death March in World War II.

The fight for the Philippines was over. Prisoners sat beneath the burning April sun. At the time of surrender, hunger, exhaustion and disease were rampant among POWs. The Japanese gave them neither food nor water, but forced them to sit in the baking sun.

On the morning of the fourth day, the prisoners began their march northward — The Bataan Death March.

"Silence of a Soldier," as told to William J. Duggan, is Merrill's life story.

In addition to being a war story, it is also the love story between Treg and Bub Merrill. The Merrills and the Duggans met as neighbors overlooking the bluffs of Lake Michigan in Petoskey.

Duggan retired from Webster University, St. Louis, Mo. in 1995, as provost of the University. He was at Webster for almost 30 years, first as a professor of Comparative Religion, then as Dean of the Graduate School.

He established graduate studies programs in Geneva, Switzerland; Vienna, Austria; Leiden, the Netherlands; and London, England; in addition to establishing graduate studies at about 37 military bases across the U.S.

Both Duggan and Merrill will be signing books in Charlevoix from 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday at the Bridge Street Book Shop in downtown Charlevoix.

Guild donates to Charlevoix hospital

Ruth Waters, president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild and hospital volunteers and Guild members recently made a "big deal" out of their summer donation to the hospital when they presented a four foot long check for $10,000 to the hospital.

Explaining that the hospital Gift Shop and Guild have had an unusually good spring, Waters and the group celebrated the summer with a picnic and check presentation at Michigan Beach.

"We've had a very good year so far and our members have really worked hard to raise money to benefit the hospital. We are very proud to be able to do this and hope to repeat this presentation at Christmas," Waters said.

Members enjoyed their annual picnic at the beach and discussed plans for new merchandise in the Gift Shop and their current raffle for holiday dishware.

In addition to working in the Gift Shop and hosting fund-raising events for the hospital, the Guild is very active working throughout the hospital helping deliver patient meals, working in the print shop, in cardiac rehab, diabetic education, physical therapy, surgical services, admitting, dietary and assisting with clerical at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation.

For more information about volunteering at the hospital contact the Volunteer Services Department at 547-8651 or 547-8502.

Charlevoix's heritage celebrated

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

This year's Venetian festival theme is the Heritage of Charlevoix and what better way to usher in the theme than with the first annual Heritage Day.

Heritage Day debuts Friday, July 25, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in East Park. Venetian Festival President Dan Barron said even though it is a first-time event, he expects it to have a large impact on the festival.

"I think it's going to be very popular and I think it's going to give us a good base to build on," said Barron.

He is hoping to make Heritage Day a staple of the Venetian festival with a different period or theme featured every year.

This year's theme is the role of agriculture in Charlevoix's past. The day will have Charlevoix's agricultural history reflected in displays of antique farm tools, photographs, a video on Charlevoix's multiple bridges and miscellaneous items found in a time capsule from 1910.

With a little something for the visitor, there will be drawings for prizes held every half hour in the Heritage Day tent sponsored by the historical society.

Farm tools will be on hand for guests to use compliments of the Elzinga Centennial Farm. John and Phyllis Elzinga will be present to answer questions and display their 1950s farm truck, Buttercup.

In keeping with the musical tradition of the Venetian festival are several performance acts on Heritage Day.

Included in the performances are the Charlevoix Men's Chorus performing at 12:30 p.m., Native American Dancing at 1:30 p.m. and closing out the day is the Tag-a-Longs.

The Tag-a-Longs are local members of the Jordan Valley Fiddlers' Jamboree who have performed, for over 25 years, music from the 1930s, 40s and 50s with old-time hoedowns a feature in their shows.

A local barbershop quartet, the Charleboix's, will perform periodically throughout the day in the park as well.

Heritage Day is hosted by the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Charlevoix Public Library and the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

Research ship to visit for Venetian

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Capt. Luke Clyburn

The 80-foot research ship Pride of Michigan will be coming to the Charlevoix Venetian Festival to give tours and take part in the boat parade Saturday night.

The ship is in the Charlevoix area studying ancient water levels and a 6,000-year-old mining operation by early settlers of the area.

Evidence of the mining operation has previously been found near the shore of Lake Michigan, just south of Charlevoix, near Norwood.

"We have been working for the last 10 years on this period of history of the Great Lakes when the lake levels were 100 feet below the levels they are now, just after the glaciers left," Pride of Michigan Captain Luke Clyburn said.

In fact, the Pride of Michigan has found an ancient river that ran through the straights of Mackinac that was 80 miles long and surrounded by forest, as well as ancient sunken forests in Lake Huron.

Using this information, Clyburn said the crew of the Pride of Michigan will be searching off-shore, near the mouth of Grand Traverse Bay, for more evidence of the mining operation.

"The probability is strong that their would be evidence of civilization in that area," Clyburn said.

The Pride of Michigan will be arriving in Charlevoix tonight, Wednesday, but will not be open for tours until Thursday.

The ship will be in Charlevoix until Saturday, when it will take part in the Venetian Boat Parade.

Tour times will be 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., Thursday and Friday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday,

The Pride of Michigan has a crew of 16 Navy Sea Cadets, ages 12 to 17.

Many of them are trained scuba divers and conduct much of the research.

Additionally, this is not Clyburn's first visit to Charlevoix.

He said he used to sail out of Irish marina in the 1970s.

For more information on the Pride of Michigan, visit www.prideofmichigan.org on the internet.

Assisted living ordinance to be discussed

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix City Planning Commission has set a public hearing for 6 p.m., Aug. 11 over a proposed addition to the zoning ordinance that would allow assisted living complexes.

The meeting will be at the United State Coast Guard training room on Bridge Street, next to the Beaver Island Boat Company office.

The commission has been discussing this ordinance since mid-April, when a developer requesting to build such a facility in Charlevoix pointed out the current zoning ordinance does not accommodate assisted living complexes. Since then, they have decided on an ordinance change that allows the facilities under a special use permit.

According to chairman Dennis Kusina, requirements also include that development could only have one level and there would be a minimum and maximum amount of units if they are constructed in a residential zone.

Setbacks were also discussed to keep more than one complex from being built in an area.

At the last planning commission meeting, July 14, Kusina stressed commissioners were not considering any proposals for certain complexes and the commission was just creating an ordinance for the city that deals with assisted living facilities. This was in response to a number of Charlevoix citizens at the meeting who had questions and concerns about a proposed assisted living complex called Sunnybank on the city's northside.

The proposed development is a single-story building spanning 36,000 square feet, covering about one acre of land. It is shaped like an "X" with wings containing 54 units, 32 of which are efficiency and 22 that are one-bedroom apartments. It is being proposed by Diane Gillette, co-owner of Sunnybank Retirement Community in Petoskey.

The developers currently have an option to purchase a piece of land in the city that fronts Petoskey Avenue, near Division Street, and is owned by Charlevoix resident and Realtor Ed Amiek. The entire property encompasses about 3 acres.

According to the proposed city ordinance, an assisted living facility is a "housing development that is legally restricted to persons age 62 or older, which may consist of either independent or assisted living residential units and associated amenities."

Two injured in accident near Atwood last week

A 57-year-old Springfield, Ohio man was seriously injured around 10:30 a.m., July 17 when he struck the side of a van on US-31 near the intersection of Atwood Road while riding a motorcycle.

A 62-year-old East Jordan woman, who was a passenger in the van, was also seriously injured.

According to the Antrim County Sheriff's Department, the accident occurred when the driver of the 1998 Astro van, a 59-year-old East Jordan woman, failed to stop at the intersection of US-31 and Atwood Road.

The driver of the motorcycle, who was traveling south on US-31, failed to stop in time to avoid the collision. He was traveling with a group of friends on three other motorcycle at the time in a staggered line.

The motorcycle struck the side of the van near the passenger-side door. Speed estimates on the motorcycle was around 50 to 55 mph, which is at or under the speed limit for that section of road.

Seat belts were worn by everyone in the van and the motorcyclists had on an approved crash helmet. Alcohol was not a factor in this accident.

The crash remains under investigation.

Adult art classes hosted by Crooked Tree Arts Center

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Adult Summer Arts Classes kick off Tuesday, July 29.

Adults, ages 16 and up, can enroll in a variety of two and three day watercolor workshops, meeting from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the art room of the renovated Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Two day workshops are $100 for art center members and $120 for non-members. Three day workshops are $150 for members and $180 for non-members.

Instructor Donna Vogelheim, of Farmington, has exhibited at the American Watercolor Society exhibitions, Watercolor West, Rocky Mountain National Watercolor Society and the Midwest Watercolor Society.

In her scenes of Harbor Springs, Vogelheim depicts her positive reactions to the resort town's stately Victorian homes, quaint downtown and busy marina.

Vogelheim is teaching a two-day beginners watercolor workshop from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 29 and 30. She is also leading a three day workshop for all levels on Tuesday through Thursday, Aug. 12 through 14.

Instructor Tony Warren, of Shelby Township, has received over 70 awards in 100 shows including Art and Apples in Rochester.

His watercolor style is bold. His artwork has been featured in Creative Watercolor: Step by Step.

His three day workshop, Winning With Watercolor, is geared toward intermediate and advanced watercolorists and will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 21 through 23.

Want to learn more about watercolor? Join Donna Vogelheim on Thursday, July 24 for a free lecture and demonstrations. No admission charge, but please call the arts center to reserve your space.

Historical societies team up for program

In a joint meeting with the Norwood Historical Society, the Charlevoix Historical Society will feature a program on area and other shipwrecks entitled "Diving into the Past" conducted by State Archaeologist John Halsey.

This topic is of great interest to many in northern Michigan, with world interest having focused on Charlevoix during the Bradley tragedy off Beaver Island in 1958, and the wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald in Lake Superior in 1970's.

Join the historical society for what should prove to be an especially interesting historical evening, at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Aug. 8, at The Depot.

St. Mary's Youth help out in Detroit

The Young Neighbors Team from St. Mary's Parish with the Soup Kitchen supervisor. (Courtesy photo)

A team of young people and adults from St. Mary's parish in Charlevoix spent a week of their summer vacation reaching out to persons in need in the inner city of Detroit.

The team participated in a project called Young Neighbors in Action (YNIA).

YNIA involves over 2000 participants in providing service to poor children and families all across the United States.

This is the sixth missionary trip to the inner city of Detroit for the youth from St. Mary's. In the previous five years they have spent time remodeling an old convent that is now being used to keep the youth off of the streets, graffiti removal, landscaping, fixing up a home that will be used for the homeless, working with Alzheimer patients, distributing literature door to door about illegal toxic dumping and other environmental issues and working with refugees who are seeking asylum in the United States.

This year the youth worked at St. Leo's Soup Kitchen. St. Leo's has been in existence for over 20 years, serving the needs of the "poorest of the poor" in the inner city of Detroit. They serve approximately 200 meals a day, six days a week.

A vast majority of the food used in the soup kitchen is donated from restaurants, country clubs or the Gleeners. They also receive food from private donors.

They rely on these donations to feed the hundreds of people who come in every day.

These past six months alone the soup kitchen has served 5,000 more meals than they served last year and the numbers continue to increase. The soup kitchen also recently added shower facilities to enable the homeless a clean, safe place to shower.

While at St. Leo's the team from St. Mary's did a variety of work.

They prepared the luncheon meal every day, including setting up the soup kitchen, cooking all of the food, and preparing the utensils and food trays. They also served the meal every day, which included passing out water, collecting lunch tickets, putting the food on the trays and signing people in at the door.

After lunch was completed, they cleaned the kitchen and dining room area.

The youth also did some facilities upkeep at St. Leo's.

Young Neighbors is an eye-opening experience for all who participate.

The youth return to their communities with a better understanding of the needs and concerns of the poor. They also better understand their call to "feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and shelter the homeless."

As many of the youth stated, they did not realize how fortunate they were and how they took things for granted.

Their entire view of the world has expanded due to their experience at St. Leo's.

The team this year consisted of: Alyssia McDonough, Dan Buday, Erin Buckner, Jaleesa Baier, Sonya Plude, Megan Richards, Adam Richards, Amy Drew, Eric Baldwin and Patty Furtaw.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

American Cancer Society to have Charlevoix relay

The American Cancer Society is currently seeking teams to participate in Charlevoix's first Relay For Life event at the Charlevoix Middle School.

The event begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9, and ends at 10 a.m., Sunday, Aug. 10. Relay For Life, a team-based fund-raising event, is a way to make a difference in the fight against cancer.

This is the first year for the Charlevoix relay. Businesses, families, friends and survivors are invited and encouraged to form teams and hit the track in what promises to be 24 hours of entertainment, celebration and reflection.

Forming a team is simple.

Teams should have 10-15 walkers, all ages are welcome. Relay For Life is a community event in which participants spend a full 24 hours taking turns walking laps on the track, socializing, picnicking, playing games and participating in planned activities, all while raising money and awareness to fight cancer.

"Cancer survivors are a large, diverse, important community, and Relay For Life is one way the American Cancer Society reaches out to them," Theresa Haske said. "Survivors find comfort by spending time together at relay and empowerment by making a difference in the lives of others battling the disease. We invite all cancer survivors to join in whatever capacity they choose."

Paying tribute to those who have battled cancer lies at the heart of relay. During the Victory Lap, cancer survivors from throughout the community walk a celebratory lap around the track together.

At sundown, luminaria are lit to honor and remember those who have battled cancer and to help guide walkers through the night.

For more information on Relay For Life or forming teams contact the American Cancer Society at (877) 240-0001 or visit www.cancer.org.

Library to have design workshops

The Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees invites the public to participate in the Pre-funding Design Workshop One for converting the Old Middle School site to the New Library.

Two workshops will be given at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 6 and Thursday, Aug. 7 in the lower level of the current library, located at 109 West Clinton Street.

The workshops will include input from the team of professionals whom the Library Board selected for the project: Bill Williams, architect, of Enberg-Anderson Design Partnership; Alyce Riemenschneider, of Riemenschneider Design Associates, for interiors; and Duane Wixson, construction manager, of Clark Construction.

The workshops will be a collaborative process in which those attending will have the opportunity to identify unmet needs in the current Library which they would like to see remedied in the new building.

The first session is the ideal time to let your needs and wishes be heard.

During the day of Aug. 7, the project team will be translating the needs identified by the public to paper.

"This is an opportunity to see the project team paint the picture of the new Library, incorporating the ideas which you bring to the process," said Val Meyerson, library director. "By the evening of Aug. 7, when we convene the second session, we should have a series of drawings showing possible floor layout for the new building."

The process works best if participants attend both evenings, but everyone is welcome to come when they can.

Contact the Library at 547-2651 for additional information.

Pictures of other new libraries can be seen in the lower level of the Library.

Who: Charlevoix Public Library
What it is: Workshops in the design of the new library.
When: 7 p.m., Aug. 6 and 7

Little League season ends

Charlevoix's 9-and 10-year-old Little League All-Stars ended a tremendous tournament run with a tough 13-11 loss to Huron Shores in district semifinal action in Lewiston last week.

Charlevoix trailed 7-1 after three innings and staged a great comeback to take an 11-10 lead after five innings. Huron Shores came right back, however, and scored three runs in the top of the sixth and then held on for the victory.

Keegan LaBlance had a bases-loaded triple while Thomas Rich, Matthew Klooster, Boog Nitchman, Brandon Darrah, Wyatt Drost and J.T. Lawrence all added singles. Rich and Nitchman split the pitching duties for Charlevoix.

Other team members were Riley Corcoran, Coby Herriman, Jordan Jones, Logan Kline and David Merrill.

Five wars represented with parade grand marshals

PARADE

he his first time as grand marshal.

Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell served the Navy during the Korean War and spent time in both Japan and Korea during the conflict. His fleet was part of Task Force 95 that operated on a triangle between Japan, Okinawa and Korea. This will be his first year in the Venetian parade.

Mary Selph

This is the first year veteran Ed Holm will be representing the Vietnam War as a grand marshal and not driving a fire truck as a member of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department.

John Kiernan

He was drafted for the army in 1967 and served for two years. He spent one year in Vietnam in which he was wounded and awarded the Purple Heart.

Of being grand marshal he said, "I thought there were other people more deserving than me."

Gabe Campbell

Still, he added, "I feel honored to be asked."

This year's parade begins at 11 a.m. at the intersection of Bridge Street and Carpenter Street and ends at Bridge and Clinton streets. The parade will be lead by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, winners of the Charlevoix city versus township fire department croquet match on Tuesday.

Fire and police will be followed by the active and retired veterans, then by the grand marshals who will lead the floats down Bridge Street to Clinton Street, where the parade ends.

Highlights of this year's parade will include The Newman Navy League, Charlevoix High School's marching band, St. Ignace Fire Department Clowns, The Sault Ste. Marie Pipe Band, "Enchanted Carriages," the Venetian Queen, the Cherry Festival Queen and other pageant winners, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corp., Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America, the Charlevoix Community Band and "The Red Hat Society."

Area historical society to have annual Sunset Cruise

The sixth annual Sunset Cruise event sponsored by the Charlevoix Historical Society takes place on Tuesday July 29.

Tickets have been distributed to area members and are $15 if paid in advance. They are also available at the Harsha House and The Bridge Street Book Shop. Tickets purchased at the dock just before sailing will be $20.

Because of liability, the society must ask that everyone be 21 or older to board.

The Emerald Isle will depart promptly at 8:30 p.m. from the Beaver Island Boat Company dock in Charlevoix. Hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar will be available plus music by the Bud Bechtold Quartet for dancing.

Township looking for Cemex violations

CEMEX

company is ready to talk with township officials as they have been in the past.

"Cemex is fully committed to working with the township and have been on that matter," she said.

Buckler said they are committed because the company is operating within ordinance perimeters.

"Yes, we are in compliance with the township ordinance," Buckler said.

After the July meeting, Joseph plans to begin making the necessary changes to the 20-year-old ordinance. He will then give Cemex a reasonable amount of time to respond to the new ordinance and change operating rules if necessary.

"I don't expect to find them very far out of compliance. People may not like it, but the ordinance says what it says. If they're in compliance, then we are going to continue to work with them on an annual basis to make sure we aren't in the same situation we are in now," he said.

Buckler hopes the July meeting will create some understanding between the two bodies.

"We hope to work with the township to develop a better understanding of their expectations and plan for the future," she said.

At the July 10 meeting, when residents brought their complaints before the board again, county officials agreed to make Cemex's mining operation an agenda item at the next township meeting on Aug. 11.

Boulder Park resident Richard Maddin believes Cemex's mining operation would not be an issue now had the township enforced its ordinance in the past. He and other residents are now striving to make township officials use their authority to force Cemex's compliance within the township's mining ordinance.

"If you really look at it for what it is, it's nasty that the township has done nothing," Maddin said.

Aside from the township, Cemex also has to answer to officials with the Department of Environmental Quality, but Joseph said the department is too underfunded and understaffed to delve into Cemex's operational procedures.

"For a long time the town deferred to state and federal government for environmental issues. Now I think the township may step up and assume some of the responsibility," Joseph said.

Dave Thorley, DEQ environmental engineer with the Air Quality Division, said the department's responsibility is to enforce both state and federal regulations, but it does not take any part in the township ordinance.

"I'm out there performing inspections. I'll write violations when needed," he said.

In June, Joseph asked Cemex to submit a narrative, including the hours of operation, what steps it is taking to control noise, dust and other nuisance factors and map out the company's excavation site. Joseph has the narrative, but has not had a chance to review it.

The current ordinance was created in 1981 and is outdated in two monetary areas — violation and reclamation fees.

"I know the ordinance is going to be amended in at least those two areas," Joseph said.

The ordinance states Cemex will be fined $100 a day for every day it operates in violation. But, Joseph said it is an insignificant monetary amount compared to the billions in profits the international company takes in on a yearly basis.

He said the $10,000 reclamation bond also needs a drastic increase. When Cemex vacates the property, which is predicted to be about 20 years away, the excavation site should be repaired and ready for occupation by another owner, be it commercial or residential.

If the land is not in proper condition, the township could collect on the bond amount to repair the property. Joseph said the $10,000 bond could not even begin to touch the amount of money it will take to rebuild the site, which has over 1,300 acres total in both Charlevoix and Norwood townships.

"If Cemex were to leave tomorrow, who's going to pay for the cost of reclamation? It's entitled to make a profit, but it's not entitled to do that at the cost of the community," Maddin said.

Joseph is hoping to set the new bond amount to at least seven figures.

Cement kiln dust (CKD) may be one of the costly environmental problems that will have to be addressed with the bond money, if it is not disposed of properly now by the company.

"At some point and time that plant will close and they will leave and the area will have these huge piles of kiln dust, so we need to make sure that is taken care of," Joseph said.

While Joseph is trying to make Cemex dispose properly of its CKD, there are several residents who would like to see stricter regulations placed on the company than the township has the ability to enforce.

"There are some concerns about kiln dust because it has contaminates, like mercury. But under the current law, Cemex is in compliance with all of that. They might not be in other states, but they are here," Joseph said.

He said talks thus far with the company have gone well and he is hopeful the company and township will be able to reach an agreement.

"Cemex, while they have been firm with us, has been very cooperative," he added.

While Joseph is working to ensure Cemex is operating under the confines set by the township mining ordinance, he understands appeasing all parties involved will be impossible.

"In a case like this when the dust finally settles, not everyone will be happy. But, we want to protect the environment and make sure we aren't left with a huge eye sore that is dangerous," Joseph said.

> "I don't expect to find them very far out of compliance. People may not like it, but the ordinance says what it says. If they're in compliance, then we are going to continue to work with them on an annual basis to make sure we aren't in the same situation we are in now."

Boat burns off Beaver Island

Thought to be fish tug Vega with three men aboard

Jerry Yettaw, William Heath and Henry Papineau believed to have been burned to death.

Monday morning the report came from St. James of the burning of a gasoline boat about three miles from Sand Bay, almost opposite Martin's Point. The fire was first noticed by a woman named Mrs. Brow, who lives some distance from the bay. She immediately ran to Shoemaker Gallagher's home and notified them, and the word was sent to St. James. By the time Mrs. Brow had reached Gallagher's home, the boat had disappeared, as no trace could be seen of it by the use of a strong glass.

Monday forenoon at about 11 o'clock the fish boat "Vega" owned by Guy Lamphear and Jerry Yettaw, with William Heath as engineer and Henry Papineau and Yettaw, left this harbor bound for St. James, where Mr. Yettaw was to be employed. Since their departure from here, no trace of them nor the boat has been found, and it is feared that the unfortunate men were aboard the burning boat and all have been lost.

Wednesday morning two tugs from St. James went to the scene of the burning boat, but no trace of them nor wreckage was found.

At present the particulars as to how the accident happened, the name of the burning boat, nor whether the men have lost their lives is not known, but it is thought the boat was the Vega and all on board are lost. At the time the boat left here she had about 50 gallons of gasoline in her tank, and the death of the men must have been a horrible one.

Inn property much improved

Money has been spent to great advantage

Frank H. Alfred, President of the Pere Marquette is the "Man Behind"

In a recent interview with Manager A. I. Creamer of the Charlevoix Inn, he made the statement that he had never before, in his long experience as a hotel man, observed so large an amount of money expanded in as economical and effective a manager as has been laid out under the direction of President and General Manager Frank H. Alfred of the Pere Marquette Railway company in the many recently completed improvements to the company's extensive and valuable property, which includes the Inn, the Inn Annex and its several cottages, as well as the new garage and the recreation pier leading from the shores of the park in front of the Inn station out into the waters of Pine Lake.

The Pine Lake bathing pavilion and the pier, as well as the beautiful park and grounds, are open to the public and children, as well as adults, are invited to enjoy them and the bathing beaches, which are a part of the Inn and Pere Marquette Railway company property.

The Inn was always a good hotel and now with its new electrically driven elevator, leading from the hall connecting the foyer and the beautiful dining room to the mezzanine and other floors above, the ladies' beauty parlor and hair dressing room and barber shop for gentlemen, the large Dutch room, the billiard room and sleeping rooms on the lower floor and many other minor improvements contributing to the comfort and convenience of its guests, it stands easily in the front rank of summer resort hostelries.

None other of its new and attractive features, possibly, has been the occasion of as much favorable comment as the electric elevator. The large resort hotel had disregarded the advantages of the electric passenger elevator until the growing demand that the top floor of the building have a closer and easier access to the large public rooms below brought about a change in sentiment on the part of the hotel management and established such an elevator among the necessary and indispensable equipment features of the modern hotel.

Many bathrooms have been added to the hotel, and right here it might be stated that two years ago the entire sewage disposal system of the big Inn property was turned into the channel, which carry the waste away from the shores of Pine lake, whose waters are now as pure as those of Lake Michigan.

Mr. Frank H. Alfred, whose training as civil engineer has eminently fitted him for the task, working in cooperation with Mr. Creamer, manager of the Inn and seeing the possibilities for the future, has planned the mechanical equipment of the big hotel with wise provision for expansion and emergency. Adequate boilers have been installed, furnishing steam heat and hot water at all times, thereby insuring that this important item of service which contributes so largely to the comfort of the guest shall never be wanting.

Outside of the building itself, plans for an extensive beautification of the already attractive grounds of the Inn have been or are in the process of being carried out. In addition to the fine golf links, at its door, the Inn this year has provided its guests with a polo field and a fine up-to-date garage. In fact, nothing has been left undone to make the stay of the summer visitor a constant delight and satisfaction.

Another successful year

Venetian filled with fun for all

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

As Venetian festivals come and go they are compared to years past and used as a measuring stick for future festivals in years to come.

The general consensus for this past week's seventy-third annual Venetian Festival is it was typical — typical, but good.

"We were pleased with the way this week's activities went," Venetian Board President Dan Barron said.

However, typical for the Venetian festival is very unconventional for most other festivals which do not include seven days of games, entertainment and music based on Charlevoix's small community appeal.

The streets and parks of Charlevoix were overtaken from July 20 to 27 with locals and visitors alike who Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said were generally family oriented and caused few problems. The crowd was estimated to be in the vicinity of 100,000 people over the course of the week.

Appletree building to be discussed

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Several Charlevoix residents have expressed their concern recently to city officials about the loss of the Appletree and, more importantly, part of Charlevoix's identity.

At a Downtown Development Authority meeting Monday, July 28, DDA members and residents talked about the demise of the old Earl Young office building, which cannot be saved now that it was bought by a private developer a few weeks ago.

DDA Chairman Hugh Mason said it is a shame that this building is only being considered now that there is a threat.

"If we wanted to save it, we should have bought it when it was up for sale three or four years ago," he said.

The Appletree will be a discussion item at the next city council meeting Aug. 4, located in the Coast Guard conference room under Bridge Park.

The Appletree building was recently bought by Elk Rapids developers after it sat on the market for years. They are proposing to tear down the building and turn it into a three-story structure with both retail and residential units.

"That's an Earl Young building. It would be a shame to see that go," Dave Miles, co-director of the historical society, said.

At a Charlevoix city council meeting, July 21, resident Jill Picha said she was bothered at the thought of losing a building that represents a man whose history is rooted in Charlevoix.

"He did a lot to beautify the town," she said.

"The most pictured things in Charlevoix are the Earl Young buildings. These are the things that create the uniqueness of Charlevoix," said DDA member Jeannine Wallace.

It may be too late to save the Appletree building from demolition, but DDA members spoke about the possibility of saving the rest of Charlevoix's historical and Earl Young buildings from meeting the same fate.

The fact that there is no historical district is partially causing alarm from Charlevoix citizens because a district would preserve what the city currently has.

"It's something that should have been started years ago," Mason said.

If there were buildings designated in downtown Charlevoix as historical, under state law they could not be torn down.

Vehicles vandalized

Sometime during the evening of Sunday, July 27, and the early morning of Monday, July 28, eleven vehicles were damaged while parked in the Charlevoix Middle School's parking lot.

According to the Charlevoix Police Department, the damage consists of broken windows and obscenities spray painted — in dark blue paint — on the vehicles.

The Charlevoix Middle School's parking lot is used, during the summer, as temporary parking for those who are visiting Beaver Island.

The Beaver Island Boat Company is offering a reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction of the person or persons who committed this crime.

Cruise ship to be in Charlevoix marina

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "This is the beginning of an opportunity that might blossom into more business."
> Jacqueline Merta,
> Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce president

The 183-foot passenger ship Grand Mariner will be arriving in Charlevoix's Round Lake Saturday to pick up passengers and leave Sunday for a cruise through the Great Lakes to Duluth, Minn.

This is the first of three scheduled visits to Charlevoix this ship will make.

"We are excited to see a cruise ship come to Charlevoix that can come into our port...it adds up to a good economy," Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta said. "This is the beginning of an opportunity that might blossom into more business."

The Grand Mariner is owned by the American Canadian Caribbean Line and was built by Captain Luther Blount in Warren, R.I., who also owns the cruise line, about five years ago. Blount is known on the Atlantic Coast as a ship builder of many ferries and small cruise ships.

The Grand Mariner can carry 100 passengers, has 50 cabins and a 6 foot draw. It flies under the United States flag.

The captain of the vessel is Roy Keith, whose first mate is his wife, Dixie Keith.

Keith said, while he has not been to Charlevoix, he has been sailing with the American Canadian Caribbean Line since 1979.

Marketing Director Maria Digati said Blount's company specializes in short trips to smaller ports that larger ships can not go to. It has been sailing on and off for the last 30 years on the Great Lakes and it chose Charlevoix and Duluth, Minn. as a starting and stopping ports due to the ports between the two cities.

Also, because of the ship's smaller size, Digati said it is going to be able to come into Round Lake and dock at the city marina.

Merta said the ship will be at one of the city docks near the middle of the marina.

The ship will be back in Charlevoix around Aug. 20 for an Aug. 21 departure for Duluth. Each cruise will take about eight nights and travel from Charlevoix, through the Straits of Mackinac, through the Soo Locks, across Lake Superior and arrive in Duluth, Minn. for a return trip to Charlevoix.

It arrives again in Charlevoix in September for a departure and return trip.

Digati said the company does not release information on the number of people aboard the ship to the media, but did say interest in the cruise has been high and at least 60 people have reserved tickets as of last week.

Charlevoix history could be destroyed

EDITORIAL

The history of any community is nothing to toss aside.

It acts as a guiding light for current and future residents of the community, showing them the path to success by showing what the past looked like. It is one of the most important tools for learning that there is.

But, in Charlevoix, that history is endangered.

Every year, if not month, the historical buildings of this community are threatened with destruction. With each brick that is torn from the walls of these structures, our past dies a little more.

In the last few years we have lost many buildings to the bulldozer, such as the Wharfside building, in the name of progress. And we have had many other buildings threatened with destruction, such as the old Charlevoix Middle School and the current Appletree Building.

Due to this rampant destruction of our past, our city has made it very difficult to even find a historical building.

But, we can do something as a community to switch to a new path. One that relishes the past, preserves it and learns from it.

This can simply be done through the creation of a historical district in Charlevoix. While it is strange that such a unique city as ours does not already have a district such as this, the creation of one will help protect our heritage for future generations.

This district should not only protect historic homes, such as the Earl Young homes, but it should also protect historic commercial buildings in the city.

The city of Charlevoix should not wait any longer in creating a historical district. If it does, there will be nothing left to save.

Haggard has a good season thanks to his mother's advice

Edith Gilbert

'Ear to the ground'

Jim Haggard's philosophy is: "When someone hands you a lemon, make lemonade!"

He learned this from his mother, who owned the Polly Kay Shop on Bridge Street. During the late 1940s the city installed parking meters downtown much to Polly Haggard's dismay. Her appeals to the council fell on deaf hears, so she set out a tray of nickels and dimes on the counter and instructed her staff to keep their eye on her customer's meters.

They laughingly called themselves "meter maids." This courtesy was greatly appreciated by Polly's customers and who stayed and stayed longer and longer to shop and buy!

When Haggard arrived in Charlevoix this year in June to open his store named "Garage Sale," located on Petoskey Avenue, he was told that the current, on-going road construction project would be finished by June 27. Consequently Haggard cleaned the store, put up his awning opened the doors on July 4 and found that everything became covered with a thick layer of cement dust.

Even the petunias along the road were wilting! What to do? First Haggard sealed the doors, took down the awning and watched while traffic backed up for 15 to 20 minutes in front of his store, all the way from the Sleep Inn Motel to the bridge.

Sales plummeted! Then he remembered his mother's words.

Phooey, he said, "I will start my own sidewalk sale early and place some merchandise outside the shop!"

Haggard knew full well this was against official city policy, but with such a short summer season what else could one do?

Out came a pair of large, yellow, 1940 porch chairs and much to Haggard's amazement his phone rang, and a man's voice says, "How much are those two chairs in front of your shop and will they hold a large man?"

"The chairs are $200 and they will hold me and I'm a big man," Haggard says.

"When did you see the chairs?" he asks.

"I'm sitting in my car in front of your store waiting for traffic. I'll give you my credit card number and pick up the chairs tomorrow," the buyer said.

Haggard authorized his credit card on the spot, completing the sale.

The next day a lady from New Mexico, who has a summer place here, was waiting in traffic and called Haggard on her car phone.

"Is that a bedpan leaning against the post?" she wanted to know.

"Yes, it's an English porcelain bedpan dated 1901, priced at $145," Haggard told her.

She said, "My daughter is a family doctor and I want to buy it for her as a gift."

Haggard found that such sales went on every day for weeks. He sold two oil paintings of hunt scenes, an old 1930 wooden sled, some 1950 TV trays as well as developed a string of new customers.

After being in business for 12 years, the road construction helped make this one of Jim's best seasons ever. So much for road rage!

Haggard will return to Hawaii this fall to complete an interior design job for a Japanese corporation of four very large homes that must be completed by Dec. 1. Haggard tried to retire as a professional from the design field in 1991 and live in Hawaii to do some serious snorkeling, but has found that his professional expertise is still in great demand.

Perhaps it's because he understands that the public likes to be around positive people, who are upbeat and like to make lemonade out of lemons.

Boaters need parking

Editor:

The owners of boats staying at the Charlevoix marina request that the marina dockmaster be granted the authority to issue parking permits for the parking close by the marina for boat owners staying at the marina.

The parking lot suggested two blocks away from the marina presents problems for any boat owner or their guest who have difficulty walking. Many owners are older with health problems, many of the younger owners have young children. In addition, this distant lot creates a great many problems for the safe and convenient transfer of supplies that have been purchased in town. Often groceries and other supplies need to be purchased in large quantities for several days use, though convenience or lack thereof may dictate which town is chosen for this activity.

Some owners stay in local hotels or motels and have a family member or friend drive a car to Charlevoix for use while visiting to be able to transport family and guests to points of interest, local restaurants and for shopping, supplies, repairs as well as to and from the boat with their and their guests' luggage. This parking lot is also very inconvenient for boaters who are out on the lakes for the day when the only close parking lot is metered and has a two hour limit.

We would like to point out that issuing parking permits would cost the city very little in lost revenue from the meters as not all boat owners would have a car here.

The owners of boats pay $1.52 per foot, per day, for dockage. Almost all owners, their family, and their guests go to local restaurants for many or all meals. Many purchase supplies from the local stores and have repair work done by local businesses. The boat owners' families spend a lot of time and money shopping in the downtown stores for gifts as well as fine art and clothes. Far more money is spent by the boaters than the casual tourist who drives to Charlevoix for a few hours.

Charlevoix is one of the few cities in Michigan, the Great Lakes, and the entire East Coast to not provide convenient parking for boat owners and guests as part of the dockage fee.

The metered parking that is located close to the marina could be used for marina boat owner parking very simply by providing a pass to hang in the car, the same as is presently being used for seasonal parking, with the addition of a cloth cover for the meter as is used to cover meters for special event parking. Both pass and cover to be returned to the dockmaster upon departure. This allows the parking to be used as metered parking unless needed by a boat owner.

I have been informed by the dockmaster, Hal Evans, that the future plan for the new marina will include two "golf cart" type vehicles to ferry marina customers from their boat to and from parking. I can see some major problems for this system. How will boat owners parking in this distant lot, with a car full of luggage, supplies, children, elderly, call the dockmaster to be picked up? This system would require a dock person to be on constant standby or a dock person operating as a bus line. It will take a very long time for the revenue gained by the meters to offset the cost of two golf carts. It may take an additional dock person to operate this system who must be paid.

Note: Not all boat owners will require a parking space. Very little revenue will be lost to the city by the above plan and a large sum of money saved for a better use.

The parking lot located a block West off the main shopping street on Clinton Street is about as far from shopping as is the metered parking adjacent to the marina. This location will not be an inconvenience to the driving shoppers; it is a great inconvenience to all boat owners who need a car to take themselves and guests to outlying places of interest around Charlevoix.

Why weren't fireworks simulcast?

Editor:

I would like to know if anyone has any idea or explanation as to why, for the second year in a row, the Friday night huge fireworks display have not been simulcast on 105.9 WKHQ (106KHQ) as they were clearly advertised on the Venetian festival web site.

It was advertised last year (2002) and again this year (2003). It states that anyone planning to view the fireworks are to bring their radio with them and tune into 105.9 WKHQ to hear music simulcast with the fireworks. I have also requested info on this situation from 106KHQ.

As previously stated, this is the second year in a row and personally I find it to be a huge disappointment as well as the fact that it puts forth a very poor image on the radio station and/or on the Venetian planning committee.

The blame of false advertising should be accepted by one of the two aforementioned and an explanation given to the many people seen viewing the fireworks on Ferry Beach with small radios that turned out to be not needed.

Thanks in advance for any help on this situation.

Brian MacDonald
Charlevoix

(Charlevoix Venetian Festival President Dan Barron responded: The logistics of having to coordinate through a radio station would not have worked because the fireworks needed to be moved up by 15 minutes due to threatening weather conditions this year and the radio station does not have the flexibility to accommodate such last minute changes in plans. We have also had logistical problems coordinating the simulcast in the past due to timing delays of radio, which create a 4 to 5 second delay between shell detonation and the music.Last year, the fireworks soundtrack was played at Ferry Beach on the sound system of the Up North Big Band. Due to the time change this year, the soundtrack was not played.)

'Fido' may not be welcome in East Park

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Part of next week's Charlevoix city council meeting agenda is going to the dogs.

The city council will spend part of the meeting discussing if man's best friend should be banned from East Park. At the last city council meeting, July 21, resident Jill Picha asked council members to consider banning all canines based on the fact that they create messes in the park and could be dangerous to children.

"I really think we should think strongly about allowing dogs in the park," she said.

Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell agrees with Picha. At the meeting, Campbell said he had received several comments from community members concerning dogs in the park and at large events.

"I think we're getting a little carried away with dogs at the events," he said.

Campbell said he saw at least 40 or 50 dogs at the Charlevoix Craft Show three weekends ago and worries about their presence at upcoming events.

"On sidewalk sales days, the dogs are around smelling people and its kind of annoying. If you're a person that has dogs you don't seem to care," he said.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said dogs pose the most threat in larger crowds when their behavior is unpredictable.

"We've had issues where the dogs snarled at people. When a dog is in a crowded environment they act differently and can cause problems even on a leash," he said.

Halverson said dogs are currently allowed in the park on leashes. But the owner must have something to clean up after the dog and must be able to present it when asked.

Picha expressed concern that the city could be liable if people trip over dog leashes or a dog attacks someone. But city attorney Jim Young said in those instances they city would not be liable.

While dogs have always been allowed in the park on leashes, this is not the first time city council members have had this issue brought to their attention. They talked about banning dogs four years ago when they adopted a resolution which disallowed dogs from the sandy portions of beaches from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

This is the only specific prohibition regarding dog restrictions.

"They've kind of been a periodic issue for forever," Halverson said.

Laura Dhaseleer of Charlevoix walks her two dogs, Bandit and Cola, almost everyday in the park. Last Wednesday, Dhaseleer, her daughter and three of her friends, were down in East Park playing with the two dogs.

Dhaseleer said she has never had an issue with her dogs or other dogs when she has been in East Park.

"As far as I know, people have been taking care of them," she said.

Dhaseleer, who had not heard of the possible banning, would like to continue bringing her dogs to the park.

"I don't think that's really fair. As long as people are being responsible, then I don't see anything wrong with it," she said. "I think it's too bad."

Other cities have found merit in banning dogs. Campbell said both Boyne City and Petoskey have dog-restricting ordinances.

"I really don't know where council wants to go. We'll just talk about it and find out," Campbell said.

Campbell said after discussion they will have some direction on the issue. If the rule were to change, he said, the council would first hold a public meeting, most likely the second week in August, to hear public comment.

The public is also welcome to attend and comment at the next city council meeting, Aug. 4 in the United States Coast Guard Training Room, next to the Beaver Island Boat Company office under Bridge Park.

Library to host works of local artist, Annis

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

His art is displayed in London pubs and Paris bistros and has been featured on national television.

He is Charlevoix artist Jim Annis and this August is his 80 birthday.

In honor of this event, the Charlevoix Public Library will be hosting an exhibit of his work called "An Artist and His Art," from 6 p.m.-8 p.m. on Aug. 19 and 10 a.m.-8 p.m. on Aug. 20.

On Aug. 19 , four works of art signed and numbered by the artist will be auctioned, the profits will be donated to Friends of the Library.

In addition to this recent donation, he has also given his work to the Charlevoix Historical Society for auction, with the proceeds going to the society.

Born in Detroit and raised in Chicago, Annis originally worked as a cabinet maker specializing in kitchen and office design after being discharged from the Navy in 1945.

Annis was a frequent visitor to Charlevoix and became a permanent resident in 1959, when he moved into the house built by his grandfather. He had used it as his summer home until that time.

As an artist, he started in woodcarving when he lived in Chicago, then began painting in 1960.

"I started as a Chicago artist; I was well-known in Chicago," Annis said.

He is most known for his baseball stadium series which depict Wrigley Field, Old Comisky Park, Briggs (Tiger) Stadium, Crosley Field and Ebbets Field (Brooklyn) during the 1945 World Series.

These paintings, along with his 1940s Chicago theater series, are what is known as nostalgia art.

"I don't want to compete against a camera," Annis said.

He paints images of the past because the present "is already vivid in people's minds."

Using his skills in design work, Annis consults historical records for his depictions of vehicles and architecture. He counts every brick, every artifice in order to paint structures accurately. His first painting was of the Charlevoix railway depot, set in the 1930s.

"You have to be nuts to be in this business. How far can you go in the art field? That's what you've got to worry about," Annis said.

He has gone further than most, as he has been able to live off the profits from his art work only 10 years after he painted his first picture.

A nature artist as well as a nostalgia artist, he has painted for the National Wildlife Federation and has had his work reproduced on stamps in the late 1980s.

"It was a challenge. They give a selection of five species and you have to pick which one to paint," Annis said.

He has also won several Trout Stamp competitions, his most recent being the Trout Stamp Competition of Nevada in 2002.

Some of his latest subject matter are Lake Michigan beach scenes and remembered images of the South Pacific, during his time in the Navy.

Nearly every painting reaches the limited or open edition print stage. His work is listed in the National Archives at Bowling Green State University, the Great Lakes Nautical Museum and the Milwaukee Public Library.

Campbell proposes parking structure plan

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Members of the DDA met with representatives from Walker Parking Consultants at 10 a.m. last Friday July 25 at the Weathervane Restaurant to discuss the possibility of creating a parking structure in downtown Charlevoix.

They met with the direction to discuss concerns and challenges regarding downtown parking in Charlevoix. Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Chairman John Campbell said this plan is in the very preliminary stages.

He presented DDA board members with a folder of materials from the company and asked them to let the idea sink in for a little while. There was no discussion by board members after the presentation by Campbell.

"It may be a terrible idea, but just let it run through your mind," DDA Chairman Hugh Mason said.

Mason said he was very skeptical of the idea at first, but after meeting with Walker representatives, the idea appealed to him more.

Campbell said creating a parking structure was discussed 30 years ago in Charlevoix, but fell by the wayside. With the discussion of a convention center, a need for 60 additional parking spaces for the new marina and a general parking problem in Charlevoix, he thought now was a good time to bring the idea back to the forefront of residents' minds.

Campbell encouraged DDA members to look beyond what Charlevoix needs today and look at what will bring people downtown in the future.

Campbell said a parking unit would solve several of the parking problems downtown. In the summer during peak festival seasons, parking downtown becomes next to impossible. If the convention center plan becomes a reality, a parking structure would create the necessary parking to house functions taking place at the center.

He said residents who live downtown would have a solution to their problems of finding available spots from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. By creating spots for downtown residents, he believes the downtown area could become a more desirable living location as well.

> "Any structure would relieve the parking lots and let the businesses come back in."
> Hugh Mason, DDA chair

Chamber orchestra to close series

The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra will have its finale concert of the Castle Farms Summer Series at 7 p.m. on Thursday, July 31, with a concert of orchestra favorites.

The concert will feature Rachael Bellairs, trumpeter, performing the second and third movements of the Haydn Trumpet Concerto in E-flat major.

Conducted by Glenn Klassen, associate conductor of the Battle Creek Symphony, the orchestra will also perform Bach's Brandenburg Concerto Number Three and Grieg's "Holberg" Suite.

Bellairs recently graduated from the Northwest Academy in Charlevoix and has accepted a scholarship to attend the prestigious New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. She has performed with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, the Up-North Big Band and the Grand Rapids Youth Orchestra.

Tickets for the Castle Farms Summer Series are available in Petoskey at the Horizon Books and the Crooked Tree Arts Center, in Charlevoix at the Bridge Street Book Shop and at the chamber of commerce offices in both Boyne City and East Jordan.

Tickets cost $12 for adults & $8 for students.

Three struck by vehicles during festival

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Three people were struck and injured by vehicles in two separate accidents last week on Bridge Street.

The last accident, and most serious, occurred around 12 a.m., Sunday near the intersection of Bridge Street and Hurlbut Street. In this accident, Michael Kniat, 24, of Charlevoix, and Heather Love, 28, of Gaylord, were struck by a vehicle traveling south on Bridge Street.

According to Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, Love had apparently started to cross the street, from the east side to the west, when Kniat tried to stop her. In the process, they were both struck by a vehicle driven by Richard Maser, 20, of Elmira.

Halverson said the driver of the vehicle was not traveling too fast and was not under the influence of alcohol.

After striking the two people, Halverson said the driver of the vehicle pulled into the 7-Eleven parking lot on Bridge Street and notified two Michigan State Police troopers who were standing there. The officers immediately ran to the scene and found Love lying in the road.

After an ambulance was called for Love, Halverson said it became apparent to rescue workers that Kniat had also been struck by the vehicle and another ambulance was needed.

Kniat and Love were treated and released that night at Charlevoix Area Hospital for their injuries.

The other pedestrian accident occurred when Carlee Schepeler, 11, of Lake Orion, was struck by a Comstock Construction Truck around 1 p.m., July 24 on Bridge Street near Mason Street.

Halverson said Schepeler saw the south side of the street was stopped for the bridge, but did not know the north side still had moving traffic on it, so she ran

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

across where there was no crosswalk. Luckily, the truck that hit her was moving at a very slow rate of speed and Schepeler only received minor injuries.

"In either one, if the vehicle was moving faster, it would have been much worse," Halverson said.

Halverson added these two accidents did not seem to be related, as in having any of the same contributing factors.

"I don't think the road had anything to do with it. Both drivers proceeded appropriately. Pedestrians must assume some responsibility when crossing that street (Bridge Street)," Halverson said.

He added, "A majority of drivers seem to be aware of the scenario downtown and most pedestrians cross cautiously. That is reflected in the minimal amount of accidents, I don't think you can identify a trend or a correlation."

Making the situation more unique than just Venetian Festival, Halverson said there were unusually large crowds in East Park from Tuesday night to Saturday. Usually, there are only large crowds on a few of the nights.

And since there is no parking on the east side of Bridge Street, near East Park, Halverson said, "all of those people have to come west at some point."

To control the direction of the crowd, Halverson said the city uses barrier tape on the east side of Bridge Street, near East Park. This pushes the crowd to the intersections where they can cross more safely.

He added there were some people who did not pay attention to the tape or the traffic signals.

"I did see people doing things I wouldn't have done," Halverson said.

Carey Cup golf results

The Charlevoix Golf Club has announced the results of the fifth annual Keith Carey Cup Tournament, as part of the annual Venetian Festival sporting activities.

The Carey Cup Tournament is named in honor of Keith Carey, who managed the Charlevoix Golf Club for 18 years and was a big contributor to local sports programs.

In the Men's Finals, David Shearer defeated Bud Klooster in the Championship Flight and Joe Battle defeated Warren Belding in the Men's First Flight Division.

In the Women's Finals, Katie Zbierajewski defeated Fran Marschner for the ladies title. Marschner had been the reigning Ladies Champion the past three years.

The turnout for this year's tournament was outstanding and is expected to continue next year with the addition of a new Men's and Women's Senior Division.

The Senior Division, which will be open to individuals age 60 and over, is anticipated to draw even more participants for 2004. Seniors will still be able to compete in all other flight divisions if they choose.

Further details will be announced next season.

Officials discuss creation of historical district

BUILDINGS

Congregational Church are the only three Charlevoix buildings designated as historic. The Harsha House and church are considered state landmarks and the Depot was given both state and national designation.

No businesses in downtown Charlevoix have this designation.

There are several stores downtown that were built in the early 1900s and some earlier. The building that houses the business Simple Things Make Simple Gifts was built in 1875 and is the oldest in Charlevoix. However, several of the buildings have been altered throughout the years making it more challenging to receive historical status.

"It would be very difficult to get downtown Charlevoix registered on a national registry hecause it has changed so much," City Planner Gerry Harsch said.

He said the city would have better luck getting US-31 classified as a heritage route on Michigan's registry to gain protection.

"It's going to take some kind of inventory to show there is some resource there," Mason said.

DDA members gave direction to Harsch and his staff to draft a resolution to city council regarding historical buildings in Charlevoix, which the DDA will then discuss at its next meeting.

"At the present time, we have a committee looking to designate historic buildings hut its not an easy process," historical society president Dave Garland said.

The society is composed of volunteers who give of their time when they can, so the lengthy process of designating a historical district is not something Garland said the volunteers have a lot of time to dedicate to.

In order to have a building dedicated as historic, it has to meet at least state qualifications and then the building owners have to agree to that designation.

While Garland said he would like to see Charlevoix's downtown protected as a historical district, he is not sure it is a realistic goal.

"It's pretty difficult to get something going on that in a community like this," he said. "You need a lot of cooperation."

Garland said merchants who currently occupy the stores downtown would be hesitant to designate their buildings as historic because it complicates the selling process.

DDA member Dan Barron agreed that the city would have to offer some sort of incentive to business owners who would see the value of their lots depreciate as a result of the historic status.

"They have the right to utilize that property. If you're going to take away half of those property rights you better be willing to pay for it," Dan Barron said.

Even though Charlevoix residents may want to keep older buildings downtown, the ultimate decision rests in the owner's power.

"Whoever goes into a commercial building can do whatever they want with it," Miles said. "(The historical society) can advise, we can recommend hut we can't tell people what to do."

Miles said the society hardly ever gets asked for their recommendation.

DDA members hoped that even if the developer chooses to build a completely new structure in the Appletree's place that some of the original building could still be saved. Members suggested taking the facade of the building and storing it in the city somewhere until they can find a use for it.

Another solution recommended was to try and incorporate some of the old design into the new building. Other buildings in town, like the Shop of the Gulls located off Bridge Street, have done this. That original structure was built in the early 1900s and even though the building has changed, the brick walls in the Shop of the Gulls basement are remnants from the original store.

Bicyclists to visit Charlevoix, stay at high school

A spirited band of road warriors known as The Biker Chick Gang will be rolling into Charlevoix on Aug. 1.

But they will be riding Treks and Schwinns and Gary Fishers, not Harleys and Kawasakis, and they will be clad in spandex shorts and colorful helmets and jerseys, not leather chaps, black helmets and Levis. And they will have traveled about 300 miles up the Lake Michigan coast to Charlevoix on the strength of their own legs, pedaling power and determination, not a roaring motorcycle engine.

The 10 members of The Biker Chick Gang will set up a tent city at Charlevoix High School on Friday along with the 440 or so other participants in The League of Michigan Bicyclists Shoreline West Tour, which takes riders on a scenic route from Spring Lake, Michigan (one mile east of Grand Haven) to Mackinaw City. The cyclists on the seven-day version of the West Tour began their journey on July 27 and will finish on Aug. 2 at Mackinaw City High School, with 350 to 410 miles added to their cyclometers.

Other overnight layovers include Montague, Ludington, Benzonia and Traverse City.

The seventeenth annual West Tour, which has been rated one of the top 10 bicycle tours in the country by various publications, is making its first overnight camp in Charlevoix this year.

"We stop in places that are interesting and welcoming and offer beautiful scenery and amenities for riders, and Charlevoix certainly fits the bill," said Lucinda Means, the executive director of the group.

The cyclists pedal an average of 55 miles a day and camp in tents overnight at schools along the route. Trucks haul their gear and support vehicles and bicycle mechanics follow them.

They eat breakfast and dinner together in the school cafeterias and gather at eateries for lunch in resort towns such as North Muskegon, Pentwater, Manistee and Glen Arbor.

Local father, son team up for boating wins

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "It's a real challenge to try to win these series and these championships. We can only win by being consistent."
> Don Voisin,
> Vince's father on boat racing

Vince Voisin's love for racing and speed was practically inherited in his DNA.

He earned his speedy competitive nature from his father, who also loves boat racing, and his grandfather, who was an avid car racer. It's these genes mixed with years of practice and lots of skill that combined to help him win the World Championships of protunnel boat racing in Bay City this year.

Don Voisin, Vince's dad and a Charlevoix resident, has raced as his son's crew chief for several years now and has learned how to carefully maneuver the thin barrier of blending family ties with racing lines.

"He's the boss. He makes the ultimate call as the driver. I don't," Don said.

Vince is a northern Michigan native who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1993. Don, who has lived in Charlevoix since 1974, said growing up with the availability of the surrounding lakes could have fostered his son's love of boat racing from an early age.

Outside of the racing circuit, both father and son enjoy a love of hunting and fishing.

Vince began racing at the age of 13 and has climbed the boating ranks over the years, starting in smaller classes and working his way up to the protunnel racing circuit.

"Boat racing is very hard to break into the top, but very family oriented," Don said.

Although the competitive nature does exist between father and son, he can admit who is the better racer.

"He is, by far," Don said.

As crew chief, Don's responsibilities include building the motor, equipping the boat and making sure it runs. However, his duties do not include driving the boat.

Don tried to give driving tips at a race five years ago, but was met with only silence on the other end of the headset. When Vince finished the race, he stepped out of the boat with his audio cord purposefully disconnected.

"I haven't given a driving tip in a while," Don said.

Vince lives in Atlanta, Ga. now working as a Senior Financial Analyst for Blue Cross Blue Shield. He and Don see one another about every two weeks at races, which keep them busy from May to October traveling across the country to compete.

Vince won the North American Championship for the SST-120 Powerboat races last weekend in Trenton, which proves to be a tough course based on its unpredictable choppy waters.

In the Trenton race, Vince was reaching speeds of 108 mph. Despite the high speeds, Don said he does not worry about his son's safety.

"That's the furthest thing from my mind," he said. "We have the safest equipment we can purchase."

The protunnel boats travel an upwards of 80 mph in a race on average and, when turning, the driver feels a force of over 3Gs on their body. All drivers are protected by sitting in a safety cell installed in the boat.

As an extra precautionary device, Vince was the first tunnel boat racer to began wearing a Hanz device, which restricts his head and neck movement in the event of an accident.

However Vince has not made his climb up the racing circuit unscathed. A few years ago, he received a concussion when he blew his boat over backwards.

Despite some accidents along the way, Vince has lived up to his racing team's name, Victory, by providing a consistency that his dad said makes all the difference.

Vince took 39 out of 45 podium finishes in races the past four years and placed in the top 3 at each of the 11 races he was in last year.

This year he is following the same path. He has taken a first place finish in all five races so far.

"It's a real challenge to try to win these series and these championships. We can only win by being consistent," Don said.

Don said there is prize money and sponsorship money to be won at the events, but the cash benefit does not outweigh the reason he and his son compete — they love to race.

DDA mulling parking structure

PARKING

A covered parking structure would also eliminate the need for plowing during winter months.

However Campbell sees the biggest beneficiaries to a downtown parking structure as business owners. By creating a single parking unit with several spots in a condensed area, many of the lots downtown could be converted back to commercial, residential or green space.

"Any structure would relieve the parking lots and let the businesses come back in," Mason said.

Campbell said the company uses a variety of building designs composed of more than just gray concrete. They recently built a structure in Marshall in the middle of a downtown historical district that blended with the existing buildings.

Walker Parking Consultants is a firm based out of Kalamazoo that has built 90 parking structures throughout the state of Michigan. They have completed large scale projects, such as the 7,000 space parking structure at Metro Detroit Airport and smaller structures, such as Oaklawn Hospital's structure in Marshall.

Downstate man injured in lake accident July 26

A 28-year-old Grand Blanc man was injured in a water accident around 2 p.m., July 26 on Lake Charlevoix, near Hemmingway Point within Eveline Township.

Jeffrey Lee White was cruising on his personal watercraft when it struck a wave, ejecting him from his vessel. Upon impact of the water, White suffered a dislocated shoulder that required medical attention.

White was taken to shore by the United States Coast Guard where he was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix EMS.

The accident was investigated by Charlevoix County Sheriff Marine Deputy Steve Speigl and Marine Deputy Jerry Meggison and remains under investigation.

Group to tour Lake Michigan on bicycles

BIKES

"I enjoy the scenery, being able to stop along the shoreline and step into Lake Michigan, the serenity of riding through small-town Michigan and the pure escapism of focusing on the road ahead, the next hill, the next meal and wondering how close the local pubs will be to camp that night," said Jim Shettel, one of the original members of the so-called Biker Chick Gang.

"The most rewarding aspect of rides like this is the camaraderie with the other cyclists; it feels like one big family and anyone would do anything to help out another," the 51-year-old Troy, Michigan resident added.

The League of Michigan Bicyclists is a non-profit organization of more than 2,000 members who work to make Michigan a more bicycle-friendly state.

The Shoreline West Tour, which has a two-day and four-day option, is one of four fund-raising tours sponsored by the group. For more information about the group and its Shoreline Tours, go to: www.LMB.org.

Planning already started for next year

"If you look at it in perspective of the numbers, the crowds were very well behaved," he said.

East Park was busting at the seams more so in years past which Halverson said was driven by the entertainment spanning five nights.

"The groups generated crowds over more nights than usual. We had name-brand entertainment Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday," he said.

To help maintain the crowds, officers with the city department, sheriff's department, state police, Boyne City and the coast guard were patrolling in excess each night. Halverson said his city officers alone worked a combined total of 68 overtime hours last week.

"It's a phenomenal team effort between the festival board, city officials and law enforcement," Barron said.

The increase in crowds also meant an increase in crowd related issues such as tickets, parking problems, accidents and alcohol-related incidents.

After dealing with the increase in police activity, Halverson said his department is taking a deep breath and clearing their heads this week.

"We're through it and we're letting the dust settle," he said.

Local businesses are also letting the dust settle after a hectic week.

Barron said restaurants, bars and hotels usually are the biggest beneficiaries of Venetian week.

"A number of businesses have been really pleased with the positive impact it has, especially in a year when business is down," he said.

Business owner Kirby Dipert said, despite the increased crowds, it did not result in skyrocketing sales throughout the week for his retail stores. He said they had a good sale day on Saturday, but it wasn't unlike any other summer Saturday.

"There's definitely a larger mass of people, but that doesn't necessarily indicate an increased amount of sales," he said. "It's not really better or worse than any summer week."

But a normal Venetian festival for most, still means utter chaos for some. Barron, who was already looking for his second wind of energy to hit by the second Venetian night, took this past Monday, July 28, off from work.

"Summer started Sunday for me," he said.

The start of Barron's summer means the beginning of next year's festival planning. He spent part of his day off attending to odds and ends for the seventy-fourth Venetian festival, scheduled, like always, for the third week in July, 2004.

> "We've just got to make sure it doesn't overwhelm us as a community because it has that potential."
> Dan Barron, Venetian Festival president

"Some things (for next year) are already planned," he said.

He and his board members will soon evaluate this year's festival to determine what changes they need to make.

But one item Barron is certain will be addressed is the size of the festival.

"We've just got to make sure it doesn't overwhelm us as a community because it has that potential," he said.

While 10 Venetian board members may be able to control the festival's size, they certainly cannot control the weather. Severe weather almost threatened to cancel two of Venetian's main events this year.

Parade participants and viewers were met with deluge type rains Saturday morning. Street parade organizers were five minutes away from calling the parade a wash out, something that has not happened in over 30 years.

Barron said it turns out it was a good decision they didn't.

"By the end of the parade, people downtown were lining the street six (people) deep," Barron said.

The parade was the second weather-related worry in less than 12 hours.

Friday night, Venetian organizers were tracking a storm cell located around Beaver Island which had the potential to create some very severe weather.

It was determined the cell was moving to the area just around 10:15 p.m., the start time for Friday's fireworks display.

Quick thinking and communication on behalf of the organizers moved the start time up 15 minutes.

Barron said they were able to coordinate the staging, fireworks and music in enough time and the crowd didn't even notice.

Fortunately, the storm never hit, Barron said.

"We attribute it all to divine intervention," he said.

While Barron did enjoy the entire week's activities, he was able to pick out his favorite 2003 Venetian moment.

"The last shell detonating on Saturday night to end the fireworks and festival — with a smile," he said.

The plans for the new Appletree building were sent by the Charlevoix City Council Monday, Aug. 4, back to the zoning board of appeals for further consideration.

Council member Shirley Gibson made a motion, which failed on its first vote, to review if a Bridge Street entrance was allowed for residential residents of the proposed building. The entrance may be in violation of ordinance 5.961 which stipulates entrances on Bridge Street in the Central Business District must be strictly for retail purposes.

Her motion also included a question about density requirements on the structure. But it was later learned that the proposed development did meet the density ordinance based on an amendment change earlier this year.

Councill member Bill Haggard made a second motion, without the density question, with support from council member Bill Bellows and all council members voted to send

Cement plant not in violation of ordinance

Cemex representatives and Charlevoix Township board members met July 30 to discuss if the cement company is in compliance with the township mining ordinance.

Company representatives provided proof of the legality of their operating procedures as the representatives from both organizations surveyed the ordinance practically line-by-line.

"I don't know what prior owners have done to the property, but since Cemex has been in the township, they have fulfilled what they needed to," township attorney Dick Joseph said.

"We thought the meeting went well," Michele Buckler, environmental manager for Cemex, said.

Joseph will give a full report at the next township meeting 7 p.m., Aug. 11 at the township hall, where he will present to the audience and board his opinion of what happened at the meeting.

Cemex's attorney, plant manager Bud McCormick, Buckler and Dan Heintz, vice president of environmental affairs, sat down for the closed meeting with Joseph and Charlevoix Township trustees Nancy Rajewski and Dale Glass.

"There were some areas that we agreed on that needed to be revised and changed," Joseph said.

Island Airways to be evicted from city hangars

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "We should look into the whole thing. We put a lot of trust in Island Airways and they violated it."
> Gabe Campbell,
> Charlevoix city mayor

Charlevoix City Council members voted unanimously Monday, Aug. 4, to pass a motion that would evict Island Airways from two hangers it currently rents from the city.

The motion, made by First Ward Bill Haggard, said the city will take appropriate legal action to terminate leases of anybody who is in breach of the airport contract in any form.

The action comes as a result of resident Dave Scott's allegations at a July 7 city council meeting that he unknowingly subleased a hangar from Island Airways for a higher price than what the city charges for hangar rental. Item six of the city leasing agreement, which Island Airways signed to obtain their city hangars, states "this lease may not be assigned and may not be sublet."

"I had no idea there was any violation. The only ones aware of the subletting situation were the city and Island Airways," Scott said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said since Island Airways knowingly violated the rules, the city may have to reconsider negotiating solely with the company for a new contract.

"If they violate the rules, we may have to put that up for bid. That's a very serious violation," Mayor Gabe Campbell said. "We should look into the whole thing. We put a lot of trust into Island Airways and they violated it."

The contract between the city and Island Airways expired earlier this year so both parties are currently operating under the old contract until a new one is created.

There are roughly a dozen people on the waiting list for city airport hangars with some having waited over seven years for a spot.

"They turn over very slowly. They are a premium piece of storage unit," Airport Manager Karen Brooks said.

City council members tried to decide the fairest way to reestablish the hangar waiting list based on Island Airways violations and the other third parties who sublet from the company.

"I don't think you should put Island Airways on the list. Obviously they don't need the hangar if they were subleasing," Campbell said.

Rachel Teague, general manager of Island Airways, said the company does need the extra hangars, but would not comment on how often they subleased the two units.

"We own a number of aircraft and having extra hangars is always a valuable thing," she said.

Council members voted to remove Island Airways from the list for a five year period where, if they chose to, they can reapply for a hangar at the bottom of the list when the time expires. Teague said she was unsure if the company was still on the waiting list for a hangar.

Teague, who had not heard Tuesday morning of city council's decision, said the company is no longer subleasing its hangars and stopped doing so when Scott began questioning the airport's hangar leasing practices.

Weisner said the fact that Island Airways was no longer leasing at the time of council's decision is immaterial.

"The direction I got from council was we would terminate the leases with Island Airways," he said.

City Attorney John Young said the third parties were as much at fault as Island Airways by virtue of a not exercising due diligence. He likened the hangar leasing process to buying a new home because there are no rules stating the purchaser must check the home's title, but it is good practice to do so anyway.

City Manager Mike Weisner said determining whether third parties to the lease were knowledgeable or not is insignificant.

"They can't sublease it at all by the contract because we have a waiting list," Weisner said.

Council members voted to take the two present subleasers and let them remain in their current positions on the waiting list.

"We shouldn't punish people who are victims. The true victim is the one that waited on the list," third ward Sherm Chamberlain said.

'Just a thought'

In case you missed it last week, a new idea to help a problem in Charlevoix is being floated to the Downtown Development Authority.

This plan addresses that issue we face in the summer with parking hy building a parking structure in the downtown area. Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board President John Campbell, who thought of the plan, wants us all to let the idea sink in a little while before making up our minds.

While I was letting the idea sink in a little while, I thought I would call the Traverse City Convention and Visitor's Bureau. Traverse City just built a parking deck in its downtown.

Jeff Haas, spokesperson for the bureau, said the city's parking deck had been in the making for about 10 years and it opened on July 4. It is a four story structure that is used by both visitors and businesses.

Deborah Knudson, president and CEO of the bureau, did add that a parking structure changes the community.

But, it seems that this parking deck is working for Traverse City so far.

Never mind the fact that Traverse City has a year-round population of 15,300 and a much larger downtown district that attracts year-round shoppers, while Charlevoix has a population just under 3,000 and a downtown district that has maybe five — at the most — stores open throughout the year.

Sure, it seems a parking structure in Charlevoix would sit empty most of the year and, sure, the only other town in northern Michigan to have one dwarfs our little city in size, but think of the benefits it would bring in the summer when our population swells.

Actually....the more I think about this idea, the more skeptical I am. To be fair to Campbell, at least he is thinking about possible solutions to long-time issues in Charlevoix.

But, let's not think too hard on this plan. And I hope we don't decide to start spending money on any studies in regard to it. It's a cute idea, but not for a town the size of Charlevoix.

All of this talk about a parking structure brought up another plan that was presented a while back that seems to think we are a much bigger city than we are. If you guessed conference center, you were right.

With summer winding down I am positive this issue will be coming up again. Remember, the city is studying the feasibility of building and owning a conference center in the downtown area, near one of the hotels on the north side of the bridge. I am adamantly opposed to this idea and I think the city government should not be getting into the conference center business, especially since it would be competing with current private business — such as Castle Farms and the Knights of Columbus.

But, the report should be out soon and some are saying those who want the conference center will not stop until they get it.

Since I was already talking with the Traverse City Convention and Visitor's Bureau the other day, I figured I would bring up a conference center in Charlevoix with Knudson — who has about 18 years experience in this field.

Knudson seemed surprised at Charlevoix's plan and skeptical that it would work in a town our size.

She strongly suggested the community do a lot of homework before building such a facility, because the debt load on them can be great. She said the facility must be filled throughout the year.

And since it would be owned by the taxpayers, the taxpayers would have to cover the debt load. This means, if the facility loses $40,000 a year, that $40,000 will probably come from the taxpayers.

Plus, the competition Charlevoix would face would be fierce.

Since a Charlevoix facility would probably be owned by taxpayers, that means we would probably charge rent on the meeting space. Knudson said our competition — private hotels (even Traverse City doesn't have government owned conference facilities) — would offer the meeting space for free. They can do this because the attendees will probably be staying at the hotel where the meeting is being hosted.

By adding up these facts (free rent and the fact we would be competing with Traverse City and Petoskey, both of which have a lot more entertainment options for attendees and their families) the chances seem great to me that this facility would lose money.

You know, all this talk about conference centers and parking structures are making me wonder: What city do these people think we live in? It is definitely not one with a population just under 3,000.

A new form of fishing off of Charlevoix's south pier

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

It is no secret to the anglers in Charlevoix that fishing has been, as they say, "slow."

I have spoken to serious fishermen who complain that they have yet to catch a trout of any sort this year. The salmon seem to be arriving somewhere near on schedule, so there is hope. For myself, all I have to remember for an unmeasured number of hours on the waters of Lake Charlevoix and the "Big Lake" are a number of immature, illegitimate Lake Trout, who swam away with my blessing.

Fishing can have many benefits, not all of which are gustatorial. (I am by the way a catch-and-eat fisherman. The idea of returning to the water a legally caught fish almost never occurs to me.) One of the non-fishy rewards of the angling enterprise is social. And since I haven't been catching fish for consumption anyway, I have taken to hanging out on the South Pier of the channel. Simply standing out there, while it is certainly pleasant, will eventually cause people to wonder. If, however, you stand on the South Pier next to a bucket of lake water for hours while holding a spinning rod, your actions seem to be considered perfectly normal, even if mostly futile.

The joys of this sort of fishing are almost always related to the visitors, often in Charlevoix for the first time, who wander out on the pier to be near the lake. A simple friendly glance will almost always begin a conversation about who is from where and how did they happen to find themselves in the beautiful community. Some of the visitors are small children with parents and a new Mickey Mouse Special Complete Fishing System from Kmart, who can benefit from some friendly advice.

The conversation often hegins with the question, "Any luck?" I invite the visitor to look around and decide for themselves whether or not they and I are indeed lucky, fish or no fish. If they ask what I am fishing for I sometimes tell them I am not really fishing, but am the South Pier representative of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, put there to answer any questions they may have. They always have questions and we both forget about the line in the water for a time. This has resulted in the loss of line and tackle that wanders into the rocks while I am explaining the difference between a draw bridge and bascule bridge and how often it opens. I hope they do not ask for the derivation of the word "bascule," but you could look it up.

Catching and releasing the occasional small bass can be most entertaining for any children present and if the bass are not cooperative, a piece of worm on a small hook is guaranteed to catch a goby and nearly everyone enjoys watching as the ever vigilant seagulls dive down, pick up and swallow whole a goby of almost any size.

All of this is not about bringing home anything for dinner. It is more like trolling for people and helping them understand why those of us who get to live here consider ourselves extraordinarily lucky, even if the fishing could be described as "slow."

Letters to the editor

Keep Charlevoix unique

Editor:

I was appalled when I saw in the Courier that the Appletree building would be torn down and a three-story "new" building erected. That's fine if that is what Charlevoix wants, but to have this modern looking, streamlined building certainly doesn't fit Charlevoix.

Shirley Gibson is correct to want some of the original building facade incorporated into the new building. However, Charlevoix is known for its unique buildings built by Earl Young and over the years thousands of people have admired the unusual stone houses Young designed. That's Charlevoix. Why destroy a building that was once Young's office?

Hopefully, when I return next summer, I'll be pleasantly surprised. Right now I wish Rutter and Zager were more sensible in keeping Charlevoix beautiful. Architect Michael Pattulo stated it loud and clear, "A commercial store front you would see in any other northern Michigan town."

Petoskey is "any other northern Michigan town," not Charlevoix. Why is it a handful of people can decide such an important issue as changing the unique look of a beautiful, unusual looking area? It's all about money and the change, even a bad one will be around for a long time.

Writer gets response from KHQ

Editor:

In regard to the July 30 issue "Letters to the Editor" section of the Charlevoix Courier about the Venetian fireworks not being simulcast on 105.9 WKHQ radio, the reply from Dan Barron is totally different than the reason given by the radio station's Ron Pritchard.

Pritchard's reply to this matter was that there were two reasons for the fireworks not being simulcast. First was, logistically due to the large listening area of 106 KHQ and they cannot allow sole airtime for just one community event and the small listening area it will cater to for the fireworks viewing.

Second was that over the past years of Venetian Festival, 106 KHQ was the sole sponsoring radio station and this year, Venetian chose to allow different radio stations to take part in sponsoring on different days.

As for the original question about why the Venetian web site advertised simulcast fireworks on KHQ, I still do not feel that the question was answered. It seems to me, that between these two replies, that Venetian advertised a simulcast that was never a done deal and I truly hope that this is an issue that will not come about in the many years to come of Charlevoix's finest festival.

Thank you

Editor:

Thanks for another successful Venetian Festival.

We are amazed how the Venetian Committee improves upon the Venetian Festival each year. They had such a wide variety of music available this year that we noticed a definite increase in the number of people who came to watch the concerts in the park.

Kids Day was amazing to say the least. We have never seen so many people having fun in the park with all the different activities going on simultaneously! The Heritage Day on Friday afternoon was interesting and informative to all who attended.

We would like to thank all the volunteers who made this year's Venetian Festival the best ever with a special thanks to Dan Barron for his tireless work and support of our troop.

We had a very successful fundraiser during Venetian Festival this year. This success was due in part to the hard work done by the parents and family members of the scout troop who put in many hours of time setting up, working and taking down the booth and helping behind the scenes.

Thanks also to all of the public who supported our booth during the Festival.

Ragamuffin theater group to join church for musical

Ragamuffin Children's Theatre and Choir and New Hope Community Church of Traverse City present the powerfully inspiring musical drama, "Prince of Egypt."

Forty-five Ragamuffins from Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs, will join Traverse City area youth to present a professionally choreographed show for all ages. The production of Prince of Egypt will follow a week long Fine Arts Day Camp offered to area youth ages 7-18, who are interested in receiving training in the performing arts.

Participants in the Fine Arts Day camp will then be given the opportunity to perform with the trained members of Ragamuffin Theatre at New Hope as they present Prince of Egypt at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9 and at 4 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 10. The Fine Arts Day camp will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., beginning Monday, Aug. 4 and continue through Saturday, culminating with the final performance on Sunday afternoon.

Registration for the Day Camp has already begun and those interested are encouraged to call New Hope Community Church, at (231) 938-8056 or contact Ragamuffin Theatre at (231) 237-9686. The cost is $25 and includes costumes, meals and any other items needed for the show.

Ragamuffin Children's Theatre and Choir is a non-profit organization.

Director Kathleen Whittaker believes in the potential of every willing child and devotes herself to the enrichment of their lives through the development of their talents and gifts.

"We are expanding by the minute," said Whittaker, who began the theater troupe just under three years ago.

She added, "I have members carpooling from both the Petoskey and Harbor area, and in the fall will offer classes in Petoskey for the many others who are interested in joining. It's been so much fun watching these young artists experience the joy that comes from discovering the gifts God gave them, while learning the skill needed to perfect their craft. We are excited to work with Traverse City area youth and look forward to providing many more performance opportunities in the future."

For those interested in finding out more about Ragamuffin Theatre, visit its web site at www.RagamuffinTheatre.com or log on to New Hope's site at www.newhope.cc for information about location and other events. Admission for Prince of Egypt will be free of charge.

George Earl Renton, Jr.: April 7, 1918 - July 26, 2003

George Earl Renton, Jr., D.O., 85, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, July 26, 2003, at his home in Charlevoix.

A memorial service was Friday, Aug. 2, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Mary Willis officiated.

Internment took place at White Chapel Columbarium in Troy.

George was born April 7, 1918, in Detroit, the son of George E. and Mary Katherine (Fisher) Renton. He graduated from Royal Oak High School in 1936, then graduated in 1940, from the College of Osteopathic Medicine, Kirksville, Mo. He began private practice in Clawsen in 1942, then moved his practice to Royal Oak.

He was a Member of Staff at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital, past chairman Department of General Practice at Bicounty Hospital in Warren. He served as team physician of Kimball High School for 23 years, and was Associate Professor at Michigan State College of Osteopathic Medicine in general practice.

He was a life member of Michigan Osteopathic Association of Physicians and Surgeons, and of the American Osteopathic Association.

On Dec. 19, 1942, he married the former Dorothy Evelyn Mick. George and Dorothy had four children: Stephen A. (Donna) Renton of Troy, Kimberly Ann (James) Noe of Flushing, G. Scott (Astrid) Renton, D.O. of Spring Lake and Grand Rapids, and Glenn E. (JoAnne) Renton of Manassas, Va. Also surviving are nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Dorothy preceded George in death. George then married Ruth Betty W. Wonser in 1980, and is survived by Betty, her children and grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Patrick Quinn Shanahan: July 25, 1955 - Aug. 2, 2003

Patrick Quinn Shanahan, 48, died on Aug. 2.

He was the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. (Mary Lou) Robert E. Shanahan, formerly of Petoskey.

Patrick was born on July 25, 1955 in Charlevoix where his paternal grandparents and great-grandparents lived most of their lives.

His early schooling occurred in Ann Arbor where his father was attending medical school, and later serving a surgical residency.

His family moved to Petoskey in 1963 and he graduated from Petoskey High School in 1973. He was a member of the wrestling team and played clarinet in the Petoskey High School band.

He met his wife-to-be, Mary Sobleski, when both were attending North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Later, he earned an associate degree in electronics from Ferris State College and subsequently worked for Circuit Control Corporation mainly as an installer of automated hospital delivery systems all across the country. It was during this same period that Mary was working toward a master's degree in dietetics at Case Western Reserve University.

They were married at St. Francis Church in Petoskey on Oct. 17, 1987.

They later moved to Painesdale where Mary was the chief dietitian at Portage View Hospital and Patrick worked toward a degree in Chemical engineering at Michigan Tech University. He graduated Cum Laude in May, 2000. After graduation he went to work for the United States Steel Corporation in Gary, Ind.

His wife, Mary and their two children survive him: Elizabeth, 9, and Trevor, 6. His adult son, Nigel Martin, lives in Charlevoix. Also surviving are his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Shanahan of Sylvania, Ohio; four siblings, Kim (Michael) Pagels of Hampstead, Md., Edward (Nancy) of Toledo, Ohio, Robert (Debra) of Canton and Kathleen (Cornel) Van Gorp of Amarillo, Texas. He also had aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and close cousins on both sides of the family.

We will all miss him terribly, not only for his admirable ability to fix nearly anything mechanical or electronic, but also for his offbeat sense of humor, his ready smile, and his loving ways. He was a wonderful father to his children and a fine uncle to his nieces and nephews.

Visitation will be at St. Mary's Church from 10 a.m. to noon Friday Aug. 8. A funeral mass will follow and interment will be at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that contributions be sent to the Polycystic Kidney Disease Foundation, at 4901 Main Street, Suite 200, Kansas City, MO 64112.

Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling funeral arrangements.

Housing project to start on May Street soon

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Construction on an affordable housing development located on May Street may begin sometime this fall, now that the developer has received a loan from the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

The development, located just south of Hampton Road on the east side of May Street, is expected to be a 24-unit apartment complex with 12 one bedroom units and 12 two bedroom units. Rent on the complex is controlled, meaning the owners would have to get state approval for any price increases.

Amenities will include dishwashers, central air conditioning, individual washers and dryers and balconies or patios on 16 units.

"We are pushing for before winter. We want to start construction before the snow starts flying," said developer Robert Brooks. "There is a huge need for this."

Brooks said the complex will rent to people based on their income and based on the qualifications by the federal housing organization HUD.

"This project was designed for families," he said.

According to the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, two of Brooks' units will be targeted to extremely low-income households. An additional three units will be available to lower income households and the remaining units will be made available to tenants with incomes at or below 60 percent of the area median.

Brooks said that does not mean a person or family has to have no income in order to live in his development. Under HUD regulations, Brooks said a three person family can make up to $25,000 and live in his housing complex.

Brooks said there has been some interest in this project by possible tenants already. He expects interest to increase once the project gets underway.

"Once we start construction, we will start advertising and get the word out that there are apartments available," he said.

This development has been planned for this location since 1991. The developer brought his site plan before the city in 1999, but before he could start construction, the Charlevoix City Council voted against it in 1999, saying the land had reverted back to its zoning designation before 1991 because the developer took so long in bringing a site plan to the city. At the time, City Attorney Jim Young advised the council against this action, saying the ordinance allowing the council to make this claim may be unconstitutional.

A judge agreed with Young and Brooks in early 2000 and Brooks was allowed to build his development.

Brooks said it has taken awhile to get all the necessary items together for the development, such as the governmental loans he needed and work out the court settlement with the city.

As part of the settlement, Brooks' housing complex will get a tax abatement. He said this abatement was needed in order for him to qualify for certain federal loans to create affordable housing complexes.

He said he submitted the paperwork on the project to the state housing authority in the summer of 2002.

"I knew it was going to take time for these things to happen," he said.

According to the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, Brooks has been granted a loan for $963,000 to build the development. Additionally, a federal HOME assistance has been granted in the amount of $381,000.

Brooks also owns a low-income apartment complex in Boyne City, called Park View Apartments, and is planning on building another 24-unit complex in Boyne City after the Charlevoix project is complete.

Edith Gilbert Gallery to open Aug. 11

The Crooked Tree Arts Center will debut the Edith Gilbert Gallery in the newly restored arts center facility.

The visual arts exhibition, Jean Gumpper Wood-cut Block Prints, will open Monday, Aug. 11, with a reception at 7 p.m. The artist will be in attendance and will give some brief remarks.

The show runs through Saturday, Sept. 13.

Gumpper, born in Hawaii, and raised in Michigan, now resides in Chipita Park, Colo. with her family. She is a graduate of University of Michigan, B.F.A. and University of Wisconsin, M.A. and M.F.A., with an impressive list of exhibitions, collections and reviews.

Most recently she was selected for the Boston Printmakers 2003 Biennial Exhibition. Her work can be found in the collection of the Cranbrook Academy of Art, Rocky Mountain National Park and the University of Pennsylvania.

Gumpper reflects on her work in an artist statement: "In my work as an artist and printmaker, I respond to landscape as a visual metaphor for emotions and experiences. Being alone in nature helps me to listen to my intuition and to have the patience necessary to really see. I seek to integrate the memory of the experience of being in the landscape into the making of the print.

The carving of the woodblock and the layering of ink, for me, echo natural processes such as the laying of leaves, water, rocks, trees and light. Making the print is a way to re-live an experience and to share it with others."

The public is invited to attend the opening and refreshments will be served.

For more information, please call the arts center at 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in Petoskey.

Library needs public input

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees are asking the public to attend the first of three design workshops this week to form beginning plans for the new library.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said the two days of design planning and collaboration, taking place on Aug. 6 and 7, will be very intensive.

"It's going to be fun though. We're looking forward to it," she said.

The team of professionals, composed of interior designer Alycc Reimenschneider, architect Bill Williams of Engberg-Anderson Design Partnerships, construction manager Duane Wixson from Clarke Construction and Meyerson, will meet Wednesday, Aug. 6, to get acquainted and tour the old middle school.

They will then sit down as a whole group and go over page-by-page the building project prepared by George Lawson, who took a needs analysis of the project earlier on.

Members of the community are invited to share their input during the public portion of the day, beginning at 7 p.m. in the lower level of the old library located at 109 West Clinton Street. The community is welcome to visit and talk with the professional team.

There will be a brief presentation based on the outcome of the professionals meeting and then the public will be asked for their comments.

"The public will have a chance to say, 'We really want this. We really want that.' It's kind of a brainstorming session for the public. What do you want your library to be?" Meyerson said.

The following day, Aug. 7, will consist of more professional team collaboration and a presentation to the public at 7 p.m again in the library basement. Community members are invited back to look at sketches by the professional team based on the results of the previous day's input.

The public will be allowed to comment on the preliminary sketches and pick certain design elements of some sketches over others. The professional team will take those suggestions to formulate the next set of plans.

"We will talk about the input that the public gave to help guide the professional team for the following workshops," Meyerson said.

Meyerson said she and the professional team will wrap up the workshop either Thursday night or the following morning. The entire team will return again for workshop two where they will once again collaborate and narrow down design sketches.

Endangered birds hatch at local state park

This small piping plover chick is similar to the ones that have hatched recently at Fisherman's Island State Park on the closed section of beach. (Photo by Dave Kenyon of the Michigan DNR)

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Three endangered piping plover chicks hatched from their eggs recently in the closed area of the beach at Fisherman's Island State Park.

The small section of the park's southern beach has been closed to the public for the birds since early summer, as has been the case in past summers.

Jennifer Stucker, research fellow at the University of Michigan Biological Station, said the birds are important to the area in that they are a sign of a healthy beach and a healthy ecosystem around the beach.

"Where there are great beaches, these birds are there," she said.

Stucker added, "These birds are real cool. They migrate down to Texas every winter and return in the summer within meters of where they nested the year before. To share the shoreline with them for 60 days out of the summer is an easy thing to do."

The piping plovers are 5-and-a-half to 6 inches tall, with a very light white color and a darker back. Their bill and legs are orange. It is related to another shorebird, the killdeer.

The bird eats insects, such as mayflies, midges and mosquito larva.

Its chicks will take flight in about 20 days. They nest exclusively on big dunes in the Great Lakes area.

The bird's population has declined over the years to about 13 pairs in the 1980s in the Great Lakes due to development and use of beaches and chemicals in the water.

Stucker said the bird is making a major comeback in Michigan and there are now 50 known pairs in the Great Lakes. At Fisherman's Island, officials were keeping an eye on a pair of the birds who have now produced the three chicks.

Pool to have its annual auction Sunday, sneak peek on Saturday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool's major yearly fundraiser, the Pool Auction, will be at 6 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 10 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

All benefits from this auction will go to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Bidders can purchase one of many items at the auction, such as a Segway personal transportation vehicle, a trip to Hawaii and a tea party for children.

Also, new this year will be a silent auction preview from 4 to 8 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 9 at the Charlevoix Country Club. At this preview, people can make silent bids on items in the auction without attending the auction itself.

According to Charlevoix Pool Board Member Bruce MacArthur, this is perfect for people who will be out of town for the actual auction, have plans on that day or those who do not want to take part in the dinner before the auction on Sunday.

The final silent auction bidding will be during the auction dinner on Sunday.

For dinner reservations, call 547-4077. Seats are almost sold out, but the club may still be able to accommodate you.

Also, to donate an item, please call Sue Herzog at 547-4077.

Dentist celebrates 20 years in Charlevoix

Dr. John Merrill

The month of July marked 20 years of practice for Charlevoix's Dr. John A. Merrill, D.D.S.

During the last two decades Merrill has dedicated himself to providing cosmetic and reconstructive dentistry to his patients.

His commitment to his field was recently honored as he was appointed Ethics Chairperson of the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry.

Following graduation from the University of Michigan Dental School in 1983, Dr. Merrill, a native of Lansing, and his wife, Janet, moved to the area to be closer to family and the pristine waters of Lake Michigan.

According to Merrill, the technical advancements in cosmetic dentistry have allowed him to focus on the "artistry" of his practice.

"Our smiles say a lot about who we are and how we feel about ourselves," Merrill said. "Cosmetic and reconstruction procedures have opened the doors for a lot of individuals who may never have felt the confidence to grin from ear-to-ear."

Merrill not only serves his patients via his practice, he also serves the community by donating his time to a variety of service and charitable organizations in northern Michigan, including the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, Straits Area Emmaus Board of Directors and the Keryx Prison Ministry.

"I've been blessed to live and work in a community I truly cherish," Merrill said.

Merrill's practice is located on M-66 across from Kmart.

He can be contacted at 547-9141.

Officials find no record of rumored 'ordinance'

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "We've searched it over the years and were unable to find anything in the archives."
> Mike Weisner, Charlevoix City Manager

A rumor regarding the reconstruction of buildings along the east side of Bridge Street has generated discussion in the Charlevoix community by city officials and residents recently.

At a Charlevoix City Council meeting July 21, residents questioned the legality of reconstructing a building in place of the Appletree if the old Earl Young office is demolished. In their reasoning, they cited the ordinance, which several community members have heard of, but no one can prove its existence.

The ordinance is believed to prohibit reconstruction of any building that is destroyed along the east side of Bridge Street between Belvedere Avenue and the bridge. Board members discussed the law, which City Manager Mike Weisner said he could not find anywhere within Charlevoix's ordinance.

Weisner and a city clerk searched the codes and city ordinances over 10 years ago and found nothing relating to the ordinance in question.

"We've searched it over the years and were unable to find anything in the archives," he said.

No ordinance on rebuilding structures near park

RUMOR

side house some of the oldest structures in the city, with many dating back to the early 1900s. The Crouter building, which houses the store Simple Things, dates back to 1875. It is the oldest building in Charlevoix and the only one remaining from pioneer days.

Virginia Olsen, daughter of Earl Young, spoke on behalf of her actions to sell her father's building at the city council meeting Aug. 4.

Olsen said she and her four sisters sold the building thinking the ordinance was in existence. But she now regrets doing so based on the residential and commercial plans for what will be constructed in the Appletree's place.

"We never would have sold the building if we thought something horrible like this was going to happen," she said.

When the city codes were redone in 1978, Weisner said it would have voided out any past ordinances. Even if the code was in existence before then, it is eliminated now.

"We went through all the rules and regulations. I'm not saying it wasn't there, we just couldn't find anything," he said.

Weisner was unsure when or why residents believe the ordinance exists.

Co-director of the historical society Dave Miles said he could not find anything in the Charlevoix historical files either, but may have an idea where the alleged ordinance came from.

"When Charlevoix Hotel burned down in June of 1935, the city wanted the whole east side of Bridge Street from Belvedere Avenue to the bridge for park space," he said.

City officials at that time saw the view of Round Lake from the street and decided they would rather have a park overlooking the lake than another building lining the street. The park space seemed like a good plan to combat the poor condition many of the existing buildings along Bridge Street were in at that time.

"Buildings were beginning to deteriorate and disappear in the early 1930s," Miles said.

Although Charlevoix was in the midst of the Great Depression, the city managed to buy much of the property along the east side of Bridge Street and began building East Park in 1936.

However the city could not extend the park as far as it wanted because there were two buildings that flanked East Park at both ends. Also several businesses on the east side of the street, which remain today, refused to sell.

Miles suspects that it was then, in the early 1940s, that a law could have been created stating if a building burned down or was torn down another could not be constructed in its place in order for the city to gain the park space they desired.

However, no one is able to find proof of the suspected ordinance today.

City Planner Gerry Harsch said the ordinance was never legislated, but most likely considered more of a community goal.

"It was a commonly accepted policy that the city would try to actively acquire the property when it became available," he said. "As a policy back then, when a building was destroyed in that area, they were going to go after it."

Women now have a new hysterectomy option

Dr. James Jeakle

Until a few years ago, a woman undergoing a hysterectomy could count on major abdominal surgery, a 4- to 6-inch incision, a few days in the hospital and several weeks of recovery. But a new type of procedure offered at Charlevoix Area Hospital is changing the surgery for the better.

James Jeakle, M.D., a Charlevoix specialist in obstetrics and gynecology, began performing a minimally invasive type of surgery called laparoscopic supracervical hysterectomy, or LSH, about two years ago — and his patients report good results.

Developed to reduce pain, lessen scarring and shorten recovery time, LSH can be done on an outpatient basis, under general or regional anesthesia. Unlike a traditional or "open" hysterectomy that typically involves a 3 – 6 day hospital stay and up to six weeks of recovery, the procedure requires only a day in the hospital, and most patients are back to normal activities within a week.

During the procedure, a thin, lighted telescope called a laparoscope is inserted through a tiny abdominal incision, while small surgical instruments are introduced through two other incisions.

The surgical tools remove only the top portion of the uterus, leaving the cervix intact.

"Omitting a larger abdominal incision and leaving the cervix, helps to minimize pain and trauma to the body, promoting a speedier recovery," Dr. Jeakle said.

"More and more physicians are recognizing the benefits of laparoscopic hysterectomy and our patients have responded very well to this new option. Many women are back to work, family life, and routine activity in just a few days."

According to Jeakle, fibroid growths, fallopian tubes and ovaries may also be removed through the laparoscopic incisions, making LSH an appropriate choice for most women. Only those with very large or numerous fibroids may not be able to undergo the laparoscopic option.

Jeakle stresses that women must continue to have an annual pap examination to check for cervical cancer after LSH.

"In many cases, fibroids and other uterine problems can be managed without hysterectomy. But if a woman and her physician have explored options and decided that a hysterectomy is recommended, this laparoscopic approach can be an excellent solution," Jeakle said.

More information about LSH is available by contacting Jeakle, located at 14700 Park Avenue in Charlevoix, by calling (231) 547-4477.

Township to make changes to ordinance

Based on the changes township officials and Cemex representatives discussed, Joseph has begun to draft a new ordinance.

"Creating the new ordinance will take a while. It's going to take several months before we can put it to bed," he said.

Noise, dust and water pollution were some of the township residents biggest concerns. However Cemex proved to be in compliance with the township mining ordinance on all three concerns.

"We took them through the ordinance line-by-line and showed them we were in compliance with all the elements of the ordinance," Buckler said.

With regard to noise, Joseph said a mining expert measured sound blasts and found they were well below the level allowed by the ordinance.

Joseph said, while the plant is in compliance with all state and federal laws, the township still has the ability to enforce stricter mining requirements. However he does not foresee the township creating any such regulations.

"I doubt we could come up with anything stricter than what the state or Cemex did. It seems like they are doing everything they need to do," Joseph said. "If we adopted environmental conditions that were so strict they put Cemex out of business, then we would have problems."

He said the biggest changes they will make in the new ordinance are the increased reclamation bond fee and changes and clarifications to the annual reporting procedures listed in Article 9 of the ordinance.

"I asked them to look into the requirements and costs to obtaining a (reclamation) amount of $1 million," he said. "Unless that amount is a ridiculous amount, that would probably be the number we would use."

The final fee still has to be determined by a final approval from the township board. Joseph said the figure was not based on any concrete information, so he is having Cemex officials look into the number as well before it is approved.

It also was set that March 31 will be the official date for the annual report.

"The ordinance calls for an annual plan to be submitted around March or as operations accommodate. We committed to do it by March 31," Buckler said.

It will include a detailed summary of what has happened over the past year and what the plant proposes to do in the coming year.

"We've told them the new ordinance will require them to update those plans on an annual basis to make sure there aren't any significant changes," Joseph said.

"The ordinance requires we notify (the township) if we make changes," she said.

Buckler said the plant's operations really have not changed for several years.

Joseph said while there will be stricter annual reporting on their part, Cemex will not need permission on an annual basis to continue operating.

"There's been some discussion that Cemex needs to submit an annual permit from us. It doesn't occur at all in the present ordinance and I don't see a need to put it in there," he said.

Lions to have annual White Cane Safety Days

On Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8 and 9, the Charlevoix Lions will be out and about Charlevoix for their annual "White Cane Safety Days" Fund Drive.

The red-banded white cane is recognized worldwide for identifying and protecting those with little or no vision while they are crossing streets and otherwise moving about. As a symbolic reminder to the public, each Lion collecting contributions will be carrying an official "White Cane."

Donations to the Lions help support the Michigan Eye Bank and Transplant Center, the Michigan Leader Dog Training Center and Puppy Search and Development Program and the Welcome Home for the Blind in Grand Rapids.

Locally, the Lions Club helps support the low-vision reading center at the Charlevoix Public Library and pays for glasses for needy individuals with special eye problems. Lions Walt Hufford and Bruce Herbert are co-chairing this year's fund-raiser.

The Lions also take in used eyeglasses for distribution in third world countries. Currently, used glasses can be dropped off at the Charlevoix library, Charlevoix State Bank, Dr. Steve Voci's office at 103 Clinton and Dr. Reed Freidinger's office at 14730 Park Avenue.

This year citizens have already donated over 500 pairs.

contest that framed a larger story. Joe Battle and Warren "Jeep" Belding, 40 year friends, Charlevoix residents and regular Sunday links warriors vied for the cup — an occurrence that nearly came to fruition three years earlier except for fate.

I regularly golf with Joe and Jeep and an assorted additional crew of would-be links champions at the Charlevoix "Muny" every Sunday all summer long. I am from Grand Blanc and have had the good fortune to come to know this cast of local characters and they have graciously let me in on many local events, including the Sunday golf match, which has cost me numerable quarters.

Well three years ago Joe had won his semi-final match of the Carey and Jeep was about to play his. The prospect of the two buddies meeting eye-to-eye in the final seemed imminent. All of the friends of each looked forward to it. Then, on a subsequent Sunday when I arrived for our regular game someone said Joe wouldn't be golfing that day, he was in the hospital with multiple bypass surgery. All of a sudden the Carey and our regular game didn't seem so important. My wife and I visited Joe in the hospital and we gave him a dozen new golf balls that we sure hoped he would be able to use. Joe was out of commission nearly all summer and of course missed the Carey Final.

But, as everyone knows, Joe got better and worked hard to get his golf game back in shape. Of course we all had lots of tips for him. We helped him a lot and he got better. Maybe there could be another Carey with Joe and Jeep in the final.

Then, two winters ago, I made a phone call to Florida, where Jeep and his wife Suzanne "Z" spend the winter. I just wanted to touch base and chit-chat. Z informed me that Jeep was going to have to have surgery to have a lung removed. Life throws these curve balls at you and at your friends.

When Jeep came north that following spring, I watched him first struggle to swing a club, then to hit the ball and then to walk a nine hole golf course. The other guys gladly split up carrying Jeep's clubs until he got better and stronger. One of Jeep's favorite quotes is Jimmy Valvano's, "Never, never, never give up." That's just what has happened.

Fast forward to this summer and both Joe and Jeep have come a long way. They'd be the first to tell you how much better they used to be, but they're back taking my quarters most of the time. They've survived and they play with an unsympathetic group. I remember the laughs when Jeep said one Sunday that people with missing body parts should get extra strokes. Nah, not from us.

So it was with a sense of history that myself, friend Bob Galen and my son-in-law, Mike Snyder, walked with Joe and Jeep as they played the Carey Final July 27. A match they were fated to have. Jeep won the first two holes, Joe won the next three and Jeep won number six to be tied. Jeep remarked, "Everything's OK, we're dead even and we've both thrown up." My son-in-law, Bob and I ducked into Giuseppe's for a cold one. We couldn't catch the rest of the match due to previous dinner arrangements, but it didn't matter to us who won. We had seen two champions out there.

Art fair gives back to the community

Against the backdrop of a harbor scene painted in summer colors, the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair will mark its forty-fifth year of bringing top artists from all over the country to the area this weekend.

This exhibition is noted as being one of the foremost art shows in the midwest and is given annually the second weekend in August in Charlevoix's East Park. Unique in that it is a non-profit organization and staffed by community volunteers, The Charlevoix Council for the Arts and the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair maintains its focus on bringing fine art to area students.

Proceeds from the event are returned to the community by bringing a variety of artists, performing troops, musicians and authors to the schools throughout the year. In addition, there is an annual scholarship awarded to aspiring young artists. This year's "eddi Award," established by the Crooked Tree Arts Center in honor of eddi Offield, an accomplished artist, benefactor and advocate for the arts in northern Michigan, was presented to the Charlevoix Council for the Arts/Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair in recognition of their mission "To provide inspiration and an opportunity for aspiring young local artists and to foster appreciation for the arts."

Art fair features many talented artists

ART

It's artists like Stephen Kostyshyn that make the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair what it is today, and what it has been for 45 years.

The artists for this annual waterfront exhibition are carefully juried for both quality and variety of media. Kostyshyn is one local artist who makes the Art Fair proud by association. A long-time participant in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, Kostyshyn likes to show where the "emphasis is on the artist...where the money goes back into the community," as it does in this non-profit exhibition. As an exhibitor, Kostyshyn appreciates the art fair staff that is on hand to assist artists with information and a smile the day of the show, and make the event run smoothly.

Receiving numerous awards for his work over the last several years, Kostyshyn's most recent accomplishment was being one of the 120 American artists and craftsmen chosen (out of 1,500 applicants) to exhibit at the twenty-first annual Smithsonian Craft Show in Washington, D.C. last April.

This very prestigious exhibition takes place in twelve media: Basketry, ceramics, decorative fiber, furniture, glass, jewelry, leather, metal, mixed media, paper, wearable art and wood. Kostyshyn was selected in the mixed media category for his clay, fiber and wood basket vessels.

Kostyshyn presents, in this most recent work, a blending of pottery and weaving. The technique of combining natural materials in a unique way creates a very innovative and artistically pleasing product.

Kostyshyn has been a potter for 27 years. His craft has evolved as a study in media. Working with porcelain from 1981-1993, Majolica-influenced stoneware from 1993-1997 and most recently, in the last five years, the mixed media combining clay, fiber and wood, Kostyshyn has created a new form.

"Fascinated by the beautiful shapes of Greek amphora pottery, I have been continually inspired to work with the vessel as a form. Breaking the clay-only vessel and exploring the endless possibilities afforded by basketry as an art form, has allowed me to explore shapes and textures that were unattainable to me in the past."

Kostyshyn admits that the process of his new technique takes an incredible amount of time. However, if one were to visit him in his studio nestled away in the 18 acre woodland parcel overlooking Lake Bellaire, one would think that time was an insignificant detail, and that the process was paramount.

Kostyshyn shares his craft, the toil and the reverie, with his wife and fellow potter, Lynn Fisher.

Modeled after the old Methodist meeting houses of the turn of the century, the Kostyshyns carefully designed and constructed three 12 foot by 24 foot studios to fit the individual needs of each artist.

Kostyshyn's studio is slightly larger than Fisher's and houses the kiln, which during firing reaches temperatures up to 2,400 degrees. The third structure holds finished pieces that are ready to show.

Visitors to the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair will be able to view his work, and that of 125-130 other fine artisans and craftsmen from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9, in Charlevoix's East Park.

> "Breaking the clay-only vessel and exploring the endless possibilities afforded by basketry as an art form has allowed me to explore shapes and textures that were unattainable to me in the past."

AUG 2003

Lou Orlowski golf tournament to be Aug. 24

The Charlevoix Knights of Columbus will be sponsoring the Lou Orlowski Open Memorial Golf Tourney on Sunday, Aug. 24.

The event will begin at 1 p.m. at the Charlevoix Golf Club with a shotgun start and will feature nine holes of golf in a four person scramble format. It will conclude with a dinner at the Knights Building on Bell's Bay Road featuring Bill Stevens World Famous Swiss Steak Dinner.

Lou Orlowski was one of the community's most supportive Charlevoix residents and was very active in civic, community, school and church functions — primarily at St. Mary's Parish. He designed numerous area buildings and structures and continued his community design work as a hobby up until his passing in March of this year.

One of Orlowski 's passions was to focus on improving the quality of life for Charlevoix youth. He was extremely supportive of all school functions and was generous in making sure no one went without.

The Charlevoix Knights benefits from Orlowski 's role in starting the council in 1978 and continues as one of our most dedicated leader. The organization has chosen to remember Orlowski in the community by sponsoring this golf event — which was also one of his passions — and using the proceeds to sponsor scholarships for St. Mary's school students.

As a special feature of this event, Orlowski's spouse, Rita Orlowski, has dusted off her golf clubs and will be present as a participant.

Who: Charlevoix Knights of Columbus
What: A memorial golf tournament
When: 1 p.m., Aug. 24
Where: Charlevoix Gold Club

The extended Orlowski family will travel from downstate for the event and bring many friends.

There will be several special events during the day, such as a longest-drive and closest to the pin contest for both men and women, winning score prizes for men, women and mixed teams, straightest drive for all, longest putt and special par three contests.

The tournament is open to all area golfers.

Sign-up sheet has been posted in area golf courses or St. Mary's Office on Bridge Street.

Auction to help fund Mariners

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Lake Charlevoix Mariners are giving more people a chance to become boaters on the Charlevoix area lakes, as well as raise money for its own organizational needs.

The Mariners, a organization that offers sailing lessons to Charlevoix area residents, will be having a boat auction at 9 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 9 at Irish Boat Shop near Ferry Beach.

"It is a real win-win situation," said Linda Orlow, a volunteer with the group. The person donating their boat to the auction gets a tax deduction for it, the person buying the boat gets a good price and the Lake Charlevoix Mariners get needed funding.

Orlow said the boats donated to this auction vary in condition, but she said this does not deter many people from bidding.

"A lot of people really like fixing up boats, especially if they get it for not much," she said.

While it is not known how many boats have been donated this year so far, Orlow said last year 42 boats of various brand names were donated.

And to sweeten the pot a little more for bidders, there is no minimum on the bidding. This means if a winning bid is $1, then that person who made that bid gets that boat for $1.

While the auction does not start until Aug. 9, Orlow said there is a "sneak-peak" and pre-registration from 3 to 5 p.m., Friday, Aug. 8, at the boat shop.

The Lake Charlevoix Mariners is a sailing school that has been giving lessons to children and adults for the last 13 years.

Classes in the school are a week long and are three hours a day. People can sign up for as many classes as they like. Classes are in Boyne City and at Depot Beach in Charlevoix.

In late summer, they are at Depot Beach.

The cost is $65 per student. Orlow said the auction helps keep the price down.

"We are trying to make it very affordable for anyone with an interest," she said.

For more information on the auction, or the Mariners, call Orlow at (231) 838-4484.

Thursday night concert

This week's Thursday night concert at 8 p.m. sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau will be Chris Martin.

Chris Martin has been a successful live and studio musician for over 25 years. He has appeared live on the big stage opening for name acts in country music. His guitar and song style has been compared with that of Willie Nelson. His broad experience adds to his mix of oldies, rock and country.

Open house

Maplewood Llama and Alpaca Farm Open House will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 9. There will be tours, 4-H presentations, food, fun and an all new farm store for browsing. All are invited to come support the 4-H "A Pac A Llama Llovers" club. The cost is $3 for children under 12 and $5 for children over 12. Children must be accompanied by an adult. It is located off Boyne City Road in Charlevoix near Horton Bay.

Bridge tournament

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild is sponsoring the winter home and home contract bridge tournament. Those interested in playing should contact Dave Fowler at 547-9314 before Sept. 1. The games begin in September and continue through April. In May a dessert party is given at the hospital where prizes for the winners are handed out. Cost of the series is a one-time donation of $15 per person. There will be a daytime and an evening flight for women. There are also two flights for couples. If you are a single player and need a partner, call Fowler and he will attempt to match one for you. If you plan to be away a few months in the winter, scheduling games can be arranged.

Diving into the Past

In a joint meeting with the Norwood Historical Society, the Charlevoix Historical Society will feature a program on area and other shipwrecks entitled "Diving into the Past" conducted by State Archaeologist John Halsey.

This topic is of great interest to many in northern Michigan, with world interest having focused on Charlevoix during the Bradley tragedy off Beaver Island in 1958, and the wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald in Lake Superior in the 1970s.

Join the historical society for what should prove to be an especially interesting historical evening, at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Aug. 8, at The Depot.

Maritime exhibit

Now in progress from 1 to 4 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays at The Depot is a Maritime Exhibit. This is an opportunity to see and enjoy one of the best exhibits the historical society has ever mounted — ship models, original paintings, lighthouse models, historic photos and maritime artifacts.

Art sale

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild Art Sale will have gallery quality framed art by Readers Digest from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Aug. 7, and from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m., Aug. 8, located in the Solarium of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

New golf date

The new date for the Charlevoix Lions Ninth Annual Charity Golf Tournament is Wednesday, Aug. 20.

After a run of eight years of weather favorable to golf, an all day rain forced the postponement of this year's event.

The 12:30 p.m. check-in, the 2:30 starting time and all other event schedules remain the same. For information please call Lion Jeff Rizzo at 547-5117.

Appletree plan sent to zoning board

Who: Charlevoix City Council and a developer who wants to tear down the Appletree building to build a new one.
When: Monday night
What now: The plan needs to go back to the Zoning Board of Appeals, after which it will come back to the council for further review.

APPLETREE

the plans back, with the exception of council member Sherm Chamberlain.

City Manger Mike Weisner said although council agreed to send the plans back to the zoning board, he did not think it was progress in the right direction.

"The motion doesn't address other concerns like the aesthetics of the building. It's not going to stop the project," he said. "You're going to be right where you are in a few weeks."

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he thought it was a necessary step. Campbell said he wanted to resolve the ordinance issue first and then possibly form a committee to develop a preservation plan.

Mike Pattullo of North Star Design of Petoskey represented Elk Rapids developers Jerry Rutter and Scott Zager, who bought the Appletree a few weeks ago and are now proposing to construct a three story commercial and residential unit in its place. He was available at the meeting to answer questions from the standing-room-only audience about the proposed building.

Several residents expressed their distaste for the building's design and made suggestions that would enhance the aesthetic beauty of its exterior such as adding French doors, potted plants and statues.

"We want to make this aesthetically pleasing. We don't want to make it too contemporary," Pattullo said of the French inspired design.

Some residents in the audience questioned the building's design of being a "cookie cutter" mold by the developer. They likened the design of this building to another building being constructed in Elk Rapids by the same developer.

"It is purely accidental that it matches the building in Elk Rapids," Pattullo said. "It's purely coincidental."

Joan Chudak, who has a master's degree in historical preservation, said it would be a shame to see the Appletree building go because it is vital to the character of Charlevoix. She said if another building is constructed it needs to be in keeping with the character of Charlevoix.

"We're losing character building by building. I don't want this to be another rubber stamp town. I want something that is uniquely Charlevoix," Chudak said.

However residents had a hard time nailing down what it is that makes Charlevoix unique. Most residents didn't like the design of the proposed building, but were unable to decide on specifics of what makes the city unique.

"We need to get more specifics and write those specifics in. It's a wake up call for us if we want a say in what our community looks like," resident John Winn said.

While some residents were looking to modify the proposed building's exterior, some residents were still intent on keeping the old structure intact.

"My interest is in saving an Earl Young structure," resident Larry Freedman said.

Freedman said the city in the past has been very competent in finding funds to save and purchase older Charlevoix buildings such as the Depot, historical society, Wharfside and Parkside buildings.

"I'm hoping there's a creative way funds can be found," he said. "I don't think we should give up so fast on something that is so unique to Charlevoix."

He was hoping the developer could consider tabling the demolition of the Appletree until the community can come up with a viable plan to save it.

Pattullo said the developer does not have any interest in tearing down the structure for the sake of tearing it down. He suggested the city could keep it permitting they have a place to store the structure.

However it is uncertain what the building could be used for because the Appletree is in need of major repair at this point.

Chamberlain said Earl Young himself, if he were still alive, wouldn't be using the structure as it stands now.

"I know darn well if Earl Young were here today there would be a three story building there, but it would be a lot prettier (than the proposed building)," he said.

The Appletree building is being sold by its owners, Amick Lakeside Realtors. It is being leased by Mike Holmes, who runs the Appletree business, but has no say on who the building is sold to.

Dog ban being debated in parks

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Joan Wagner has raised, bred and trained Labrador retrievers for the past 20 years in Charlevoix and said it is an ideal place to teach her pooches good behavior.

She said the mixture of crowds, noise and traffic provide an excellent environment to train her dogs to stay alert and obedient. However, she and her dogs may soon be banned from entering any parks in the city during festival times if the Charlevoix City Council passes a resolution it is currently writing.

The proposed change comes as a result of citizen comments at a July 21 Charlevoix City Council meeting. Resident Jill Picha asked the council to consider banning dogs from East Park based on safety and sanitary reasons.

"Charlevoix is a wonderful place to train your dog. I would hate to see a park ban," Wagner said at the last city council meeting, Aug. 4.

The council decided at the last meeting to draft a resolution banning dogs during festival times only. It will have a public hearing on the ordinance change at the next

New library plans discussed

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Charlevoix library's professional design team last week was able to nail down some of the community's desires for its new library after two nights of presentation and discussion.

The professional design team consisting of representatives from Clarke Construction, Engberg-Anderson Design Partnerships and Reimenschneider Designs spent Wednesday, Aug. 6, and Thursday, Aug. 7, laying down a foundation for the basic plans of the new library.

At the first workshop night, Aug. 6, community members offered suggestions and recommendations for the new library adding a book drop off, an updated media room and a separate children's area with access to an outside garden.

The biggest request by library board members and staff was an expansive ground floor to provide easier access and usability.

"The idea is to get as much of the public service area on the first level as possible," Bill Williams, Engberg-Anderson's lead architect for the project, said.

Developing a plan with the majority of library services and materials on the ground floor proved to be impossible without creating additions. The old middle school's ground level is roughly 18,000 square feet. The library program, which predicts the library's growth for the next 20 years, calls for a 22,000 square foot building.

The first plan presented Thursday, Aug. 7, by Williams featured two additions to the first floor, totaling roughly 3,600 square feet. It also utilized part of the second floor as maintenance, office and storage space.

Residents of the community questioned the need for such a large building space which more than triples the size of the current library. Charlevoix Township resident Dale Boss said the library has to convince the public the space is needed.

"You can make all the plans

Annual car show to be this weekend

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix will be taken back to the fifties this weekend with classic cars galore cruising the streets and 50s music flowing from East Park.

This Saturday, Aug. 16, and Sunday, Aug. 17, the eleventh annual Charlevoix Street Legends Car Show will take place in various locations in Charlevoix.

The cruise starts at 4:30 p.m., Saturday in Shanahan Field. The cars will split up and cruise around Lake Charlevoix with one group driving through Boyne City and the other through East Jordan.

The will all end in East Park where the early 1950s rock music act Footloose, featuring Buddy Holly, will perform from 6 to 10 p.m. There is no guarantee, but Elvis may even make an appearance, Street Legends President Les Lugibihl said.

The following day, Sunday, the car show will take place in Shanahan Field. Cars begin lining up as early as 8 a.m. and the show is over at 4 p.m.

There are 32 categories for the classic cars to enter. There are prizes for the top three cars in each category as well as a prize for Best of Cruise.

There are prizes both nights of the show as well, with giveaways in the park Saturday and prizes on Sunday.

A live auction will take place at 1 p.m. where attendees can bid on dinners at The Inn in Bay Harbor and leather vests autographed by drag racers.

All proceeds from the show will be donated to various charities at the end of the year. Lugibihl said they raised $3,250 last year and have given away $29,500 over the last 10 years.

Lugibihl said in the past there has been anywhere from 50 to 100 cars entered, but they never know how many they will get. He said it all depends on the weather.

Corrections

Due to a reporting error, in a story Aug. 6 titled "Council stalls Appletree plan" on page one should have identified Joan Chodak as a source.

Also, an assumed name in "On the Record" on page two should have been spelled Builders North, by Bruce Beaudoin.

And a cutline for a picture on page 17 should have said the children in it were competing in the Venetian Soccer Tournament. They were not competing for first place.

A great way to get the citizens involved

EDITORIAL

Many times in this city's history people have been in the midst of a debate.

Usually it was because some plan or idea came before some government body, who passed it. And once the public found out about the plan's details, they became angry and protested the measure.

We had the debate over the railings on the bridge, the new high school, East Park and the marina. Every big issue that comes before our city has faced and will face some sort of debate.

In reality, Charlevoix is not unlike any other small city in this regard. The people of small communities, or any community for that matter, want to make sure every decision is made in the best interests of the future of that community.

But, then along comes a simple idea that maybe will stem controversy about a big project. Talking to the community about a project right from the start is a technique that is being used by the Charlevoix Public Library.

Sure this was done in a way by the city when we were discussing the marina. But, if you remember, the city came up with a monster-sized plan before those meetings even took place.

But, the library has started out from scratch with the public by hosting two meetings last week seeking public input on the designs for a new library. After the first night, designers listened to the public and the library board about their thoughts on what the new library should have and then they created a preliminary design which they brought to the public for a second meeting.

They used this second meeting to further refine the design. And there are more of these meetings planned before a final design is created.

What a great way to create something that the community wants. The Charlevoix Library Board, the designers and Library Director Valerie Meyerson should be commended for creating a way to get the community involved in a project that is going to need community support.

Their leadership in this area should serve as an example for other governmental bodies not only in Charlevoix, but other communities around the state.

Column correction

In a column in last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, written by Editor Jeremy McBain, it should have stated there are at least 20 year-round businesses in downtown Charlevoix, not five.

Charlevoix resident proud owner of champion feline

'Behind the news'

Kris Vanderbeek, of Charlevoix, and her champion cat, Peacemaker. (Courtesy photo)

"Never in my wildest dreams did I ever expect to become the owner of the world's grand champion Persian cat!" confided Kris Vanderbeek of Charlevoix.

But that is exactly what happened when her 5-year-old neutered, red male named Peacemaker won the title at the International Cat Show in Kansas City, in November 2001. He competed with 1,300 entries from all over the world and won the best of show, hands down.

"It was an unbelievable experience," recalls Kris. "I had only hoped he would be classified in the top 10. I was so excited that I missed my flight home. We were invited to Washington D.C. through the courtesy of the Animal Health Institute and for two days we had a limousine at our disposal. There was a big reception where we met numerous congressmen and senators. The prize was a year's supply of Iams cat food, a crystal trophy from Tiffany and a 4 ft long decoration."

Peacemaker now lives on a farm, nestled on the top of a rolling green hill south of Charlevoix, in the middle of unpaved seasonal roads. I visited the "cattery" (as in kennel) that Kris runs. She also keeps 25 head of beef cattle and a couple of quarter horses along with an uncounted number of Persian cats and kittens — white kittens, 7 weeks old; black kittens, 10 weeks old and tortoiseshell kittens, 12 weeks old.

It wasn't easy to tear myself away from these tiny, friendly creatures and sit down at the kitchen table to take notes, especially since one of the red Persians kept pushing my hand across the page while purring to get my attention.

I asked Kris how she got started showing Persian cats and she laughed saying that her husband, Rick, gave her a Himalayan cat nine years ago on their first anniversary. She started to attend cat shows and learned what a show cat was supposed to look like.

For instance, a Persian cat should have a big round head, large round, deep copper colored eyes, a nose set between the eyes, small ears and a short "cobby" body with a beautiful long coat of fur. Kris admits that her cats are an expensive hobby. They are registered with the Cat Fanciers Association (CFA) and a pet quality kitten today ranges between $300 and $600.

A grown male tortoise cat may run over $3,000.

Kris' cats never go outside. They are bred to be inside lap cats. There is always food, water and an automatic litter box available to them. People bring their cats to be bathed and groomed in the cattery called "Stunning Persians," located on Klooster Road.

Letters to the editor

Help save Charlevoix's history

Editor:

Let me start this letter about Charlevoix present with a story about my Charlevoix past. Like many people who enjoy the beauty of Charlevoix, my family has made annual pilgrimages to our favorite spots in the community. I've returned regularly since the year I was born.

Our family ties to the area are strong. My grandfather was born in Charlevoix in 1892 and raised on State Street along with his four siblings. We heard many stories of old Charlevoix on our trips as children, told mostly by my grandmother after my grandfather died. She told of his love of the lakes, the fresh Charlevoix air, the water tower that he climbed as a young man to take pictures of Lake Michigan sunsets.

The water tower is gone now, among many Charlevoix treasures that have been torn down because of lack of money or disuse or problems that made them too burdensome to keep.

One treasure was saved, however, and that was the house in which my grandfather, H. Paul Harsha, was raised. It nearly wasn't so. The Harsha House, a formerly expansive Victorian home built by my great-grandparents in 1891, had become a sagging rooming house by the 1970s. Rumors were that a nearby bank wanted the land to expand a parking lot.

My father's cousin and house owner, Anne Harsha, unfortunately died in her 50s in 1978. But she left a legacy. She willed the home and its contents to The Charlevoix Historical Society. Historical society members showed incredible vision and dedication to preservation of history and restored the home room by room. It is now one of three buildings in Charlevoix designated as a historic site.

I feel especially lucky that a group of committed, caring people stepped forward to save and preserve the home. And I'm proud that The Harsha House museum celebrates the heritage of Charlevoix. In its rooms are wonderful displays of the lifestyles and legacies of Charlevoix area residents through the decades.

And so it was with bittersweet sadness that I read of the plans to demolish the stone-fronted former office of Earl Young on Bridge Street. And I was sadder still to learn that few rules preserving historic buildings and sites are in place in Charlevoix.

Earl Young designed incredibly crafted stone and boulder buildings and homes that are an integral part of Charlevoix's heritage. He also married my grandfather's sister, Irene, the artist. Copies of her stunning maps of northern Michigan hang proudly in my home.

My greatest hope is that town planners and others who can make a difference take the vital steps now to preserve the buildings, the places, the things that make Charlevoix unique and special.

I am lucky. I can take my children into the former home of my great-grandparents and point to their pictures and belongings while I'm telling stories of their lives. That's because someone else cared enough to preserve an important piece of Charlevoix history.

Remember, The Harsha House might have been razed to make room for a bank parking lot.

The office in which Earl Young drew plans for Boulder Park, The Weathervane and so much more will be replaced by a modern two-story building with apartments facing Round Lake.

It may be easy to tear down old buildings and rusty water towers to make room for the present. It is so much harder to bring back the glory of the past when the buildings are gone.

Thank you

Editor:

Recently, the class of 2006 was given a hefty donation from the Venetian Committee.

The donation was a reward for the 26 participants who volunteered their time towards the concerts, Heritage Day and Kid's Day. These young individuals showed up to work every day of Venetian and I never heard a complaint from any one of them.

The truth is that most of the kids said that they had a good time working for a couple of well worth it hours.

My name is Michael Greyerbiehl and I'm the president of this year's sophomore class. I am writing this letter to say thank you to all of the people who worked for this.

Most importantly I want to thank Dan Barron and the rest of the Venetian Committee for handing us this magnificent opportunity.

Thank you all.

Corps of Engineers warn boaters about shoaling

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

The Army Corps of Engineers is warning boaters to take caution when proceeding through Charlevoix's water channels because of increased shoaling levels.

Shoaling is silt or sand materials located at the bottom of the channel that have shifted to form sand bars below the surface. Lynn Duerod, spokesperson for Army Corps of Engineers Detroit District, said the piles should be taken into consideration but will not prohibit boaters from using the channels.

"It's just enough to notice, not enough to block shipping," she said.

In the channel leading from Lake Michigan to Round Lake there are four shoaling areas. One is located 17.6 feet below the water in the middle of the channel just to the east of the lighthouse. There are three shoaling areas located at the mouth of the channel when entering Lake Charlevoix from Round Lake which are 17.6, 15.1 and 17.8 feet below the surface.

The Army Corps does sound testing about once a year in the Charlevoix area. The shoaling this year is at a one foot increase from June of last year.

Duerod said shoaling is created from the shifting of sand and materials at the bottom. Boats passing through the channel and motion changes of the water stir up the sand and create shoaling.

But, there is no way of preventing it from occurring and no way of destroying it. Duerod said shoaling levels rise and fall like the surface of the water above them.

"It probably has receded and decreased over time. It's just a natural occurrence," she said.

The only prevention is awareness. Duerod urged boaters to be cautious in the two areas and be mindful of their equipment. She said water levels will determine where boaters should go.

Coast Guard ship Acacia to be in Wisconsin

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The United States Coast Guard buoy tender Acacia will be missing from its Charlevoix dock until early October.

Acacia executive officer Dave Wilhelm said the ship and its crew traveled to Bay Ship Builders in Sturgeon Bay, Wis. on Sunday. Once there, the ship will be dry docked while crews perform routine maintenance.

In dry dock, the ship is taken out of the water and the hull will be inspected. This allows workers the ability to make sure the ship is in top condition and there are no problems, such as unknown dents and the thickness of the hull is still good.

Wilhelm said this is done every four years. The ship will probably be out of the water for about six weeks and then in the water for testing for two weeks before it returns to its Charlevoix dock.

It is expected to be back in Charlevoix on Oct. 6.

While the ship is dry docked, the crew will be able to catch up on some training and a few of them will be on leave for vacations. Wilhelm said the crew will be able to visit family and friends in Charlevoix during this time.

Wilhelm also said there will be a lot of activities in Wisconsin for the crew to take part in, such as bicycling. He added he has gotten memberships at the local YMCA for the crew to use during those two months.

"It should be fun for the guys," he said.

The Acacia was commissioned in 1944 and has a crew of 51 people. Of those, eight are officers. Wilhelm said there have never been any problems with the ship that he is aware of.

The ship did undergo a major renovation in 1975.

Scientist investigating ancient mine

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

In search of ancient civilizations, Captain Luke Clyburn of the Great Lake Exploration/Research vessel "Pride of Michigan" has been paying close attention to the waters and coastline in the area of Norwood.

From approximately 10,000 B.C. to the early 1700s A.D., chert was manufactured by Native Americans on the beach of Fisherman's Island State Park in Norwood Township.

It is the only evidence of early civilization on Lake Michigan's northwest coast.

The present beach and the lake bed beneath the surface is made up of thousands of broken pieces of chert that were leftover from the manufacture of Native American spearheads, arrow points, knives and drills.

After the discovery of the chert quarry, Clyburn's crew of U.S. Naval Sea Cadets on the Pride of Michigan has been looking for artifacts in other areas of the Lake Michigan coastline.

Clyburn's missions have caught the interest of several scientists around the Detroit area who are helping to fund the project. Marine biologist Dr. Elliot Smith of VSCI, Dr. Hunter of Oakland University and geologist Dr. Michael Stafford of Cranbrook depend on the research from the vessel to further their studies on evidence of ancient civilizations in and around the Great Lakes.

The crew has found evidence of an ancient waterfall and ancient forests near the straights of Mackinac, but with the exception of Norwood, no other human artifacts.

"So little is known about that time. We work in a field of a lot of unknowns," Clyburn said.

The crew will continue to concentrate on Norwood.

The captain is attempting to make further dives and perform "camera drops" to photograph the lake bed around Norwood. He is waiting for the grant that will allow him to explore the area further next year.

"There's three to four miles coming out of Norwood that need to be covered," Clyburn said.

One of the first goals of next year's exploration would be to find the original beach.

The challenge in underwater exploration of the area is that the chert site is 10 miles from any docking facility. Exploration can only be done a little at a time.

The chert quarry is approximately 2 miles north of Norwood in Fisherman's Island State Park. The site has been on the National Register of Historic Places since the 1960s.

BUSINESS

Salon adds massage therapy to its services

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

At J. Marie's Salon and Beyond, now after you get a haircut and tan in one of its booths, you can treat yourself to a relaxing massage.

The local business, which will celebrate its first birthday in September, had already expanded its services to include massage from one of its two trained therapists, Amy Bartling and Josie Wardin — Josie is the co-owner of J. Marie, with her sister Jenny. Both Bartling and Josie live in Charlevoix.

"I've always wanted to get into it since I have owned this shop," Josie said. "It will help turn this place into a full service spa."

Bartling said she also has had an interest in massage therapy for some time. Additionally, Bartling has a background in health care as a certified athletic trainer and a certified personal trainer.

Both Bartling and Josie graduated from Blue Heron Academy of Healing Arts for massage therapy on July 7. They met while attending classes there and decided to team up at J. Marie Salon and Beyond.

Josie said J. Marie Salon and Beyond offers its customers stone therapy, Swedish massage and medical massage in one of two private and comfortable rooms. Each room is designed to maximize relaxation, thus allowing the therapists to further reduce their patient's stress.

Bartling said eventually they would like to add other spa services, such as facelift massage and body polishing.

J. Marie Salon and Beyond offers 30 minute massages for $35 and 60 minute massages for $60. Stone therapy is $75 and medical massages are $35.

The business is located at 1516 Bridge Street, across from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

Massages can be scheduled by appointment.

To contact J. Marie Salon and Beyond, call (231) 547-5555 or e-mail jmariel90@carthlink.net.

Church to present next perfomance of concerts

At 4 p.m., on Sunday, Aug. 17, the "Sundays at Four" series will present its August concert at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Bonnietta Benn, flute soloist; Elizabeth Humphrey, piano; Bing Farar, string bass and Bob Bellairs, drum, will perform the "Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano" by Claude Bolling. Some flute and piano solos will be presented also.

Dr. David Sly of Marshall will preside at an organ sing-along, reminiscent of the days of the "bouncing ball."

There is no admission charge, but a free-will donation will be gratefully accepted.

A reception honoring the artists will follow the concert.

Couple bring nature to your living room

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Roy and Cindee Wynkoop call themselves "artists by nature," giving their new store in Ellsworth the same name.

The couple, along with Cindee's mother Vanja Aronson, create what is called "rustic furniture." Made entirely of wood and usually created from lumber scraps, the wood remains in its natural state with no sanding, minimal polish and no stain.

"We need to build our own dreams," Roy said.

After working for years in propane with the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange and his wife managing a party store, the two decided they wanted something more. They found what they were looking for when Cindee read a book on creating rustic furniture and the couple discovered it was something that appealed to both of them.

"I like creating things; I like turning a table into a piece of art," Roy said.

They started with one chair and liked how it turned out and created a few more pieces.

From there, they started taking what they made to local stores. The first store they visited wasn't interested, but the second one bought every piece they had. After the initial visit, they would regularly sell five or six loads of furniture at a time to the same store.

Ellsworth business uses natural wood for furniture

When four years passed of successful sales, the Wynkoops opened their own store that they feel meets their unique art-form.

"We get into a lot of wood that nobody else does," Roy said.

They get the lumber from family property, powerline cuttings and demolition sites. And since the wood is kept in its natural state, the size and shape determines what can be created.

Scraps from a demolished Victorian-era home across the street from their store created a hutch with lumber dating from 1885.

From several branches Roy created a dream catcher headboard.

Cindee is considered the "birch bark master." She creates all the birch bark furniture, mostly making lampshades.

In addition to furniture, Cindee sells belt charms. Her mother Vanja specializes in quilt design, making pads for some of their chairs and bedspreads to go with the bed frames. She also makes picture quilts that can be hung on the wall.

The "Artists by Nature" store is considered an artist co-op, allowing artists from various studios to sell their work in addition to the furniture.

Artists from Al Swan's Studios, Pioneering Glass Design, Mind Design and Lyn Del's Oils sell their blownglass, tile work and oil paintings at the store.

"Artists by Nature" is located at Center Street in Ellsworth, east of C-65. It has been open a little over a year. The Wynkoops have been residents of Ellsworth since 1980.

Pool auction breaks records with $102,000 raised

The annual auction for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool broke some records Sunday night by raising around $102,000 for the pool — an all time high.

According to Sue Herzog, who coordinated this year's auction, this number trumps last year's total of $70,000.

"I'm pretty proud. The pool needs it. It is a lean year," she said.

On top of this total, Charlevoix resident Bill Schuiling made the highest bid in pool history with $30,000. His total donation on two items he bid for and won, a cruise and a trip to Mackinac Island, was $32,500.

"We are lucky to have him," Herzog said.

Al Gooch, pool director, said the money raised will be used for operational costs and repairs at the pool.

He said the pool needs some work on its ceiling and will be shutting down for that. The pool has set aside $10,000 a year for the next three years to help pay for it.

Gooch added, "I was very grateful (Sunday) that there was so much community support."

Tour of the new library's building

Library board members and designers toured the old Charlevoix Middle School last week to see what shape the building is in first-hand. (Left) The new 22,000 square foot Charlevoix Public Library will be a vast size improvement from the old middle school library, pictured here.

Local man wins culinary award

Adam Kline of Charlevoix is a member of the Schoolcraft College's Culinary Arts salon team that won the national hot food cooking competition in Washington, D.C., July 27.

The annual student competition is sponsored by the American Culinary Federation.

The salon team, made up of four student chefs and an alternate, prepared a four-course meal with the time limit of one-and-a-half hours to complete the dishes and 15 minutes to plate and serve them.

Kline, 21, was responsible for preparing the salad, using thinly sliced heirloom tomatoes to frame organic microgreens, a cucumber vinaigrette, with a fried goat cheese medallion.

Other dishes in the first-place meal included:

- Poached rainbow trout with watercress mousseline and crayfish-filled crepe, garnished with baby zucchini, summer squash and fresh hand-peeled peas as the appetizer.
- Duck breast, duck liver dumpling, duck skin pizelle, duck sausage, roasted beets and puree of potatoes and corn for the entrée.
- Peach cobbler with raspberry ice cream, a pate choux butterfly and cream anglaise as the dessert.

Each student developed his own dish, using seasonal fruits and vegetables.

The Schoolcraft team had won the state and regional competitions earlier this year and competed against other regional winners from New York, Seattle and Asheville, N.C.

This is the second time in three years Schoolcraft College's student team has won the hot food national championship.

Schoolcraft's knowledge bowl team also took national honors.

The salon team is coached by Certified Master Chef Kevin Gawronski.

The scholar's team is coached by Executive Chef Chris Misiak.

Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads in Northville.

Venetian cottage croquet tournament results

The popular Venetian Games event, cottage croquet, drew a record number of entries despite a threatening sky.

The event's highlight was the local service club playoff where the two time defending champions, Kiwanis team was upset by the duo representing Zonta's. It was a squeeker, but, Jean Buday and Suzanne Tyrrell were not to be denied and rallied at the end for the victory.

In the adult flight, it was a father and daughter act as John Prescott and his talented daughter, Madison bested the field for the championship.

In the youth division Kevin Greyerbiehl and Dustin Dibble emerged victorious.

In the celebrity division, the Charlevoix Courier saw it's undefeated streak come to an end. The out-of-town media team of Lisa Hayes of the Petoskey News -Review and Jim Bovin from the Traverse City Record Eagle beat Amy Sayre and Stefanie Carano, who carried the colors of the Charlevoix Courier.

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department won a forfeit from the Charlevoix Firefighters when they failed to show after the brief rain shower. As a result of the win the township fire trucks were placed ahead of the city's truck in the street parade.

(Above) Suzanne Tyrrell, left, and Joan Buday of the Zonta's Club were the service club winners of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival Cottage Croquet Tournament. (Right) John Prescott and his daughter Madison were the adult winners in the tournament. (Courtesy photos)

Braun pledges 100 holes in one day

Golf professional Steve Braun, from Charlevoix's Belvedere Golf Club, has played a lot of golf in his many years as a teaching golf professional both in Flint and more recently in Charlevoix.

But what he plans to do soon — tentatively set for Tuesday, Aug. 19, is even beyond his golf appetite. He will play 100 holes of golf starting at dawn and going to dusk.

Braun quickly points out he's not trying to get into the Guinness Book of Records, but he is simply bringing attention to the 200 youngsters enrolled in the Charlevoix Area Junior Golf program. By taking pledges from others interested in seeing that youngsters have the opportunity to learn golf at an early age, the money raised goes toward scholarships to the Ferris State University week long Golf Academy, purchasing new clubs, carts and bags to loan out to those that need them and to create an atmosphere of enjoyment for area junior golfers.

Braun has done this for the past several years and as in the past, this year's event is a 100 hole golf marathon and pledges are taken for each hole he plays.

Braun has been one of the local professionals that has volunteered time to teach in the highly successful Charlevoix County program.

He said, "We have one of the finest programs in the country and have, in our eight years of existence, introduced many kids to golf who would otherwise, literally never be able to afford the game. I'm proud to be a part of it and to be able to provide some additional funds to enable our program to continue to grow and excel."

Braun has been pleased with the generous pledges from the Belvedere members and some of the local residents. He hopes others interested in area youngsters will contact him at 547-2611.

"A pledge for so much a hole is all we're asking and the cause is a great one," he said.

Dean Davenport, who organized and directs the local Junior Golf Program, was elated regarding the event.

"Steve (Braun) has been a tremendous asset to our program. He was involved for 10 years in the Flint Junior Golf Association which won the Golf Digest's award as National Community Program of the Year, and he was awarded the American Junior Golf Association's National Digger Smith Award for his dedicated service. He continues to give leadership to our program here in Northern Michigan."

Davenport identified the specific program needs.

"We have many youngsters needing clubs, so our loaner sets are in great demand. We borrowed a trailer this summer which allowed us to store and move our clubs and equipment from course to course. We need to purchase our own used trailer. We have been able to send 42 of our older students, eight this summer, to a week golf camp based on their golf potential over these past eight years, and we'd like to continue offering these scholarships," he said.

Plans are being organized to provide Braun with a caddy/cart driver for each nine or 18 holes he plays in order to conserve his energy. Some of the older Junior Golfers have volunteered, but more are needed.

Interested adults may call Davenport at 547-6433 to help Braun play his 100 holes on Aug. 19.

Also anyone wishing to support the Junior Golf Program with pledges may do so by calling Braun at the Belvedere Golf Club.

Boyne City man injured in two boat accident

A 73-year-old Boyne City man was injured in a two boat accident around 11:30 p.m., Aug. 5 on Lake Charlevoix near Two Mile Point in Marion Township.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the man received injuries to his hand, shin and forehead when the 16-foot Sea Nymph he was operating struck a 24 foot Baja broadside. The operator of the Baja was a 36-year-old Waterford man and he was not injured.

The operator of the Sea Nymph refused EMS and he was able to drive his boat to Boyne City.

It received extensive damage to it's front end and the Baja was damaged on its port side. It was taken to East Jordan under its own power.

Man injured in roll-over

A 33-year-old Petoskey man was injured in a roll-over accident around 7 a.m., Aug. 7 on South Shore Drive near Shadow Trails Road.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office the crash was reported by two joggers who had discovered the vehicle which had gone over a steep embankment, rolling over and coming to rest on its wheels. Trent E. Delancy of Petoskey was trapped in the vehicle.

It took Melrose Township Fire and Rescue over 30 minutes to extract the him. Delancy was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital. Numerous injuries at the scene indicated possible neck and back injury.

Preliminary investigation by deputies at the scene indicate alcohol and speed were a factor in the crash. A neighbor reported hearing a loud noise at approximately 2 a.m., Aug. 7. Deputies believe Delancy may have been trapped in the vehicle from that time until his rescue.

The crash remains under investigation.

Citizen ideas incorporated into plan

LIBRARY

you want, but if you can't sell it, it's useless," he said.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said the library's usage has exceeded the program's predicted expectations this year.

"Our statistics are going through the roof in this building," she said.

There were two other plans presented which featured a two story public structural plan. However the children's section was located in the upstairs portion with the adult section on the lower level.

"To get the children's area on the first floor we have to put on additions," interior designer Alyce Reimenschneider said. "Most parents will appreciate some proximity in the two collections."

The entire first floor will have to be remodeled as well regardless of the design. As the building stands now, there are over 14 floor levels at the old middle school.

The biggest discrepancy is the gym floor, which is envisioned to house the fiction and nonfiction sections of the library collection, with a 4 foot raise above ground level.

Williams said it will have to be removed in order to level and stabilize the floor. The floors in the old middle school allow for a 40 pound per square foot weight maximum, but current library standards call for a minimum of 150 pounds per foot.

"The existing floor will not carry the weight of the materials," Williams said.

This means any space on the second floor will have to be restricted to offices and meeting rooms unless that floor can be rebuilt as well.

One of the proposed additions was a program room with storage and a kitchen located off it. The room is envisioned to be a place for large gatherings and could be open to the public even when the library is not.

"There seemed to be a lot of demand and a lot of need for meeting spaces," Williams said.

The second addition would be an activity room located in the children's wing which could open up to a fenced in garden area for the children too.

The design team stressed that none of the plans presented at the meetings were final. The team used public comments as direction and will have more detailed plans to present at the next design workshop to take place in about three weeks.

Williams feels the plans are on the right track though.

"We are planning and we're confident we've met the program needs for the next 20 years," he said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Dog ban debated at city council meeting meeting Aug. 18 and then most likely vote at the following meeting.

DOGS

If the ordinance vote passes, the earliest the change could take effect is September of this year.

The current ordinance bans dogs from the sandy portions of Lake Michigan, Ferry and Depot beaches, but makes no conditions anywhere else in the city provided the dogs are on leashes and picked up after by the owner.

Charlevoix officials are looking to model their ordinance after Boyne City's or Harbor Spring's. In Boyne City, dogs are prohibited from public parks during the day or evening when a special event is taking place.

City Manager Mike Weisner is checking out how the ban has worked in the two cities to help determine if it would be beneficial in Charlevoix.

Resident Ralph Doan agreed with the council. He said conditions in the park during festival times are hot and cramped.

"To expose your animals to an atmosphere like that is criminal," he said.

Resident Becky Doan said although she is a dog owner herself, she saw merit in the dog ban.

"I think it's too much and frankly sometimes my children are scared," she said.

Venetian Board President John Winn said a dog ban was discussed a year ago because festival organizers experienced multiple problems as the result of dog fights.

However, banning dogs may also mean turning away their families as well.

Resident Bill Dupont spoke on behalf of the boating community's interests.

He said when boaters pull into Round Lake they need somewhere to let their dogs off and, if the ban takes effect, dogs could not enter the park if it's a festival time.

Charlevoix Harbormaster Hal Evans said half of the boaters in the harbor have dogs on their boats.

Dupont said word of the dog banning would spread fast in the boating community and cautioned the council not to ban dogs without at least taking boaters into consideration.

"You'll create animosity not only with a boater, but a boating community," he said.

Dupont said Michigan's dog bite statute places almost all blame on the dog owner, making it almost impossible to sue city entities even if the accident happens on city property.

"I don't think you can make a health and safety issue out of this," he said.

Council agreed that whatever decision is made, boaters and dog owners with special needs should be taken into consideration.

Resident Larry Freedman urged the council to make a decision and stick by it.

"Whatever you do, be prepared to enforce it," he said.

Council member Shirley Gibson suggested that increasing the signs in parks posting the current ordinance rules could help to curb current enforcement issues.

SCRAPBOOK

Close call brings back memories of past escapes

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

As often is the case; our family was sitting around one day this week, rehashing old stories about close calls, because our son, Bo came very close to death last week.

He and his son, Beau, had been at our house for a couple of hours and they got in his convertible to head home. They went up State Street heading south, at a very leisurely pace, following a Chevy pickup.

They luckily didn't have the radio on and when they crossed the intersection of State and Lincoln streets, Bo heard a terrific crack. He jammed the brakes on and one third of a huge maple tree came crashing to the ground in front of him.

The outer limbs were right up to the grill of his car. The tree branches fell completely across the street, taking down branches of another tree on the other side. It was so close, they felt the moisture from the leaves hit them. The man in the Chevy pickup just barely got out of the way and he figured that anyone in the convertible behind him was probably dead.

At the same time, Bo figured the man must have been hit and killed. As the tree fell, it knocked down an electric power line, which was snapping and cracking. Bo put the car in reverse, and began yelling at bystanders who were coming near the lines to get away. He then called 911 from his cell phone and the fire department and police department came and roped the area off until the electric crew and the street crew with a big dump truck and loader arrived to clear the street.

There wasn't a breath of wind that caused it, only the fact that the tree was split years ago, and decided at that very second to let loose and come down. If they had been riding in an enclosed car, they wouldn't have had a chance because the tree was so heavy. They also might not have heard it if the radio had been on.

A few years ago, my husband Dale was helping our friends with their new home. The basement was dug and Dale had a load of cement blocks on the old GMC dump truck. He was backing the truck up toward the hole, when the edge gave way and the truck went into the hole backwards. It was right on its end and Dale was looking up at the sky through the windshield.

He rolled down the window and crawled out, trying not to disturb the truck. He made it, and didn't have a scratch on him. I ran over and took pictures and it certainly looked funny. It was a big job to pick up all the blocks which had tumbled out and pull the truck out of the hole.

Another story concerned a boy we knew (unnamed, of course) who was 15, and didn't have his driver's license yet. He was riding his motorcycle north on Bridge Street, when he came to the bridge. He was carrying a bottle of pop and snack between his legs as he crossed.

He wondered why all the cars were passing him in the outer lane, not seeing a big pile of dirt which was in front of the Edgewater Inn. Alas, too late, he went up over the pile of dirt, jumped the hole, and landed in another pile of dirt on the other side. He was so embarrassed and people ran over to see if he was OK, asking if he was hurt.

He jumped up and said he was fine and quickly left the scene. He was sore for two weeks afterward, but never broke the bottle of pop.

Our daughter, Sharon told of an incident that happened about four years ago. She and her family were cleaning out a bunch of junk, for they were in the process of moving.

They filled their little pickup one morning and drove to the landfill. You had to drive up a ramp and back the vehicle in. There was a large 40 yard dumpster below the ramp, which looked like a railroad car with the top off.

Sharon, her husband, Chuck, and sons, Jordan and Adam, began picking up things off the truck to throw into the dumpster. Sharon went over the edge of the pit to see where to throw everything. The dumpster was empty except for a mattress and box springs which were stacked vertically along the side.

As she looked, she lost her balance and fell head first into the dumpster.

Her thoughts were that she would be killed or all her teeth broken. Chuck was getting ready to toss a metal bed rail in, and happened to look down, and seeing only her hair, thought there was an animal in there.

He stopped, looking farther, and thought "That's not an animal! What is Sharon doing down there?"

His next feeling was that she was after something, because she is such a "pack rat." Her youngest boy was so shocked, he couldn't speak and thought to himself, "What is mom doing?"

Then, they all realized just what had happened, and came to her rescue.

Chuck had to lean way over the edge to grab her hand and they helped her crawl out over the mattress and up the side. She was completely covered in dust and had a little cut on her head which bled profusely.

The most embarrassing part of it all was explaining to her doctor what had happened. This story gives dumpster diving a whole new meaning.

Next time, I will continue to tell of some of the silly and dangerous things that we have encountered. We have such fun reminiscing about our family and friends experiences through the years and hope you will enjoy them, too.

ARTS AND CRAFTS SHOW WAS A HUGE SUCCESS.

There were many compliments on our Arts and Crafts show. It was a very rainy time for us at the Chamber of Commerce to get the flags set up but we are thankful the weather cleared up and the exhibitors had a very successful show. We thank Island Airways for allowing the artists and crafters to park at the airport.

TEMPORARY VISITOR'S RESTROOMS

John Campbell, chairman of the Board of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, along with Hugh Mason, Chairman of the Downtown Development Authority, gets a seal of approval from Edith Gilbert on the new, temporary toilets in downtown Charlevoix. John Campbell is instrumental in getting the temporary solution to a great need in Charlevoix. Installing the building and wonderful landscaping was provided by Site Planning, of which Campbell is CEO. The USCG Acacia had many volunteers help bring this project all together. The toilets were funded by the DDA and were approved by the City of Charlevoix. There have been numerous "positive" comments from visitors who truly appreciate this new addition to our beautiful city.

ROAD WORK COMPLETED

According to MDOT, Michigan Department of Transportation, there were only a handful of complaints about the road work north of Charlevoix. We truly expected many more complaints but are happy with only a few. They completed their work August 11 and the community is very thankful for a good road.

100 TICKETS AVAILABLE ON FORD MUSTANG

There are only 100 tickets still available (out of a total of 400 tickets) for a chance to win the new hot-looking torch red Mustang convertible with an interior of dark charcoal leather. The raffle number is 72123. This is our yearly fund-raiser. The drawing will be at the Belvedere Casino on September 12 from 6-10pm. This will be a "fun evening" for all who attend. So, if you haven't purchased your ticket please stop by the Chamber and get yours soon.

Council member's residence questioned

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

First ward Norm "Boogie" Carlson addressed at the Charlevoix City Council meeting Aug. 18 why he has not lived within his council district for the past five weeks.

Carlson moved out of his primary residence earlier this summer and has been back and forth from it for parts of July and August. Carlson said he has rented out his primary residence at 209 West Hurlbut street on a weekly basis and has been staying at several different locations the past five weeks, some not within his district.

"It's no different than going on vacation," he said. "I just happen to be on vacation at my other home."

City code states a ward must live in the district they represent, but since Carlson's primary residence is still within the first ward district his temporary relocation is OK. Carlson said the current renters are leaving Sunday and he plans to move back to his primary residence then.

Carlson approached city attorney Jim Young before he moved out to make sure what he was doing was legal.

Young said as long as Carlson planned to move back to his primary residence, his actions were allowed. Young said since his actions were completely legal there was no need

An ordinance allowing assisted living facilities in Charlevoix neighborhoods is getting closer to being a reality.

Recently, the Charlevoix Planning Commission passed a resolution that would allow assisted living facilities to be placed in neighborhoods of single family homes. And on Monday night, the Charlevoix City Council set up a public hearing on the new ordinance for Sept. 2.

But, despite the approval of the planning commission, residents in the city of Charlevoix continue to debate the need for assisted living.

If ultimately approved by the city council, the amendment would permit senior assisted living and adult foster care in R-1 and R-2 residential zones.

The amendment would also regulate the size of the structure, property and parking facilities.

Representatives from the health care community spoke their concerns about the lack of senior housing in Charlevoix. They feel assisted living facilities are very much needed in the city.

"There is a huge gap in senior housing," said Sue Bergmann, registered nurse and director of the Commission on Aging for Charlevoix County. "People are leaving Charlevoix to find assisted living in Petoskey or Traverse City and the families are moving with them."

In mid-April of this year, Diane Gillete, co-owner of Sunnybank Retirement Community in Petoskey, came to the commission with a proposal to develop a 36,000 square foot facility on land that fronts Petoskey Avenue, near Division Street.

At that time, it was pointed out that the current zoning ordinance does not accommodate assisted living complexes. Since then, the

Mancelona man injured in accident Aug. 13

A 46-year-old Mancelona man was injured in a rollover accident on Aug. 13 on the Boyne City/Charlevoix Road in Bay Township near Horton Bay.

The 1996 Chevrolet Blazer driven by Ricky Dale Watkins was traveling west on the Boyne City/Charlevoix Road. As the vehicle was coming around the curve the wheels went off the right side of the road and partially onto the edge of an embankment.

The driver attempted to steer back onto the road. A witness saw the vehicle roll over twice and the car came to a stop back on its wheels on the roadway.

Boyne City Fire Department and the Charlevoix County Sheriff Department were dispatched to the accident. The Boyne City Ambulance transported the driver to Northern Michigan Hospital to be treated for his injuries.

It appeared the driver had been wearing his seatbelt. He said he had leaned over to adjust the radio when he had lost control of his vehicle.

The accident is still under investigation. No citations have been issued at this time.

From the water to your plate — A fish tale

Skip Duhamel has one phrase that sums up his life's work — live to fish and fish to live.

It is a trade that was passed down from his father to him. Duhamel, a Beaver Island resident for the past four years, has been fishing the Great Lakes since he was a young boy with his dad. He is one of several people who make a living off the profits of catching and selling whitefish in the Charlevoix area.

Whitefish are native to the Great Lakes area and their preference for the waters near Beaver Island have made them an important factor of the area's economy for several generations.

Commercial fishing in the Beaver Island waters can be traced back to the 1830s. The area was known for its abundance of whitefish and as ships passed through the Great Lakes from Chicago and Buffalo, they stopped on the island to pick up fresh catches of whitefish.

From the 1870s to 1930s, Beaver Island boomed with both fishing and logging production. At that time, the entire harbor was rigged with docks set only a few feet apart.

The industry has had several changes in regulations and technology since its heyday almost a century ago, but the fish have remained a constant inhabitant.

These fish are native to the area, with their favorite local hangout being the Beaver Island archipelagos. They swim in and around the various shoal depths surrounding the chain of seven islands.

Local fisherman know this because they have been studying and observing the migratory patterns of the fish long before modern fishing technology was invented.

Duhamel and his fishing partner Jimmy Kenwabikise have carried on their fathers' tradition of hunting and catching whitefish for several years using the trial and error method. They set some of their nets in areas which proved to be profitable for their fathers in the past.

"Our dads were doing this. You get a feel for it," Duhamel said.

While whitefish populations may fluctuate in the waters, one thing that has remained nearly the same is the price. Whitefish currently sells for about $4 to $5 a pound with very little price difference in the past 25 years.

While the pay for fishing does not equal the labor intensive work, Duhamel and Kenwabikise said they love their job.

Last Thursday, Aug. 14, Kenwabikise left on his boat at 9 a.m. and didn't return until 2:30 p.m. Both men returned home with over 700 pounds of fish and a little less clothing.

The 86 degree day was a harsh one on the waters, so Kenwabikise cut his jeans into shorts and

Correction

In a story on an ancient mine on page 10 of last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, it should have been written that the mine was in operation from 8,000 B.C. to the 1700s A.D. It should have also stated that this mine is not the only evidence of early civilization on Lake Michigan's northwest coast, but is the only known evidence of a surface chert mining site. Also, it should have said Dr. Michael Stafford of Cranbrook uses the research from the Pride of Michigan to further his studies on evidence of ancient civilizations around the Great Lakes.

Get more practice talking, turn off the TV

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

I am trying to limit my television time, especially television news.

Television news, mostly 24-hour channels, seems to focus on the negatives: the crime, the scandals and the other dirt of society. Plus, when it comes to actual positive news or useful government news, many news channels — again, especially the 24-hour ones — have started giving viewers their opinions and not really much more.

Therefore, I prefer to forgo most television news for newspapers or magazines — and this is not just because I am the editor of a newspaper....well, maybe a little. But, even better, I like to get my local news by talking to people around me.

Through simple chats with people sitting on a park bench or even a child on a swing, I have learned more about what is going on in Charlevoix than any other source — except the Courier, of course. In fact, that is where the staff of the Courier get most news ideas; by talking to people around the community, not by watching television to see what they are reporting.

But, talking and listening have become rare gifts in our society anymore. I have met many young reporters who do not understand what it takes to have a real conversation anymore and that talking is the best way to get information.

The television and television news has engraved itself so much into our minds, that we now talk in short bursts, also called "sound bites" or "catch phrases." Many times in interviews with sources for stories, I find them trying to perk up their comments, rather than tell me the information that is important or even really answer my questions.

How many times have you noticed yourself in the middle of a conversation that has been nothing but catch phrases? Have you ever repeated a line from a television show or movie to make your point on a subject?

Conversation is even getting to be a lost form in the home and sometimes results in tragedy. How often have you heard of a teenager who commits a crime and their parents could have easily found out about it before it was done if they only questioned their child more? But, they didn't because they were too busy relaxing in front of a glowing tube with pictures on it.

However, it is getting harder to avoid the tube and talk to people, even in places that normally are gathering spots for conversation-minded individuals.

Many times I have found myself sitting in the local bar or pub, watching as people stare mindlessly at whatever news channel is on a television above the bar and not saying a thing to each other.

And the dirt spewing from the television is usually so strange and twisted, I am surprised people aren't laughing at its content more. Instead they are using this news that is based on catch phrases and some anchor's opinion as their source of discussion — only when commercials are on though.

I hear it all the time.

"Hey, did you watch the O'Shannon Report on HOUND News last night? Ya didn't. Well, the liberals are trying to make us all wear purple clogs because they say it is safer for the environment. Can ya believe that?"

No, I can't. Later I find out from reading a newspaper what actually happened was an environmental group released a study saying the chemicals used in making red dye in tennis shoes had a possibility of polluting the air. Nothing about purple clogs, that was just the "news personality's" spin.

By the way, that was just a hypothetical story. I don't know if red dye does anything to the environment, so don't send me any letters pointing this out.

Perhaps it is time we all come to our senses and stop letting the television and television news rule our lives. Perhaps it is time to turn off that tube, let the talking heads spew their opinions to the darkness and listen to the opinions of others around us — who I am sure are much smarter and more open-minded than any "news personality."

As for getting your news, just by listening to your neighbors you learn a lot more about your community than any television news program can tell you. Plus, you don't have to sit through any commercials, unless your neighbor is a salesperson.

While listening to your neighbors you will also be taking part in the oldest form of information sharing known to man, conversation. Plus, you may even find out that a sentence does not have to have a "sound bite" in it to be important.

Hasta La Vista.

Vegetable gardens always give new lessons in food

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

I almost always learn something from my vegetable garden each year.

Some things I learn again every year. Among the latter is just how difficult it is to get the right number of tomato and zucchini plants.

I seldom freeze or preserve the vegetables and try to plan things so that we will have exactly the right amount of the seasonal plants to supply our ongoing needs. I have yet to gain anything but minimal success in this planning. I could blame some of the bad timing and unfortunate amounts of produce on the weather, but not most of it.

The long cool spring turned out to be fine for the greens. We have had more than enough of at least four or five distinct kinds of lettuces, Arugula, and some kind of red-leafed, slightly bitter plant that has come up as a volunteer for the last four years. I must have originally planted it way back when, but I no longer know what to call it. It is great in salads.

Among the persistent weeds in our particular patch of ground is an annual early growth of Goosefoot or Chenopodium. I leave a small corner unplanted and harvest the Goosefoot leaves when the plants are about a foot tall. They make a nutritious cooked green early in the growing season.

This year we tried Turnip greens — never again.

With each year I hoe around a few of the volunteer vegetable plants that come up. There are always some young, recognizable plants of squash. All the squashes cross with one another and if you let seeds of last year's Butternut squash grow there is little guarantee that the offspring squashes will be recognizable.

Mostly the products are inedible or nearly so, but they have interesting shapes and colors. This year there is a volunteer Fennel plant from one that went to seed last year. And of course there is always Dill. Once you have planted Dill you need to regard it as a weed.

Some new tastes among the usual bunch

Completely new among this year's vegetables is a dozen plants of Cardoon. Cardoon means thistle, and it is clearly a thistle relative, more at home in California than in Michigan. The leaves are like giant fuzzy dandelions; silvery gray with a suede-like covering of fine hairs. One eats the celery-like leaf stalks, although when the plant flowers the bud looks much like a small but inedible artichoke.

I tried the first Cardoon leaf last week. Raw it has a forbiddingly bitter taste and is stringier than the toughest celery. I am told that long cooking (about an hour in two changes of water) removes much of the bitterness and the strings can be peeled off.

My references indicate that Italians love Cardoons, as do the French. I can only wait and see. Maybe the Cardoons will mellow with the cool of autumn. If not, any homesick Italians or southern Frenchmen may contact me. They are perennial and may need more than one growing season to mature to proper eating size and taste.

And of course, if anyone needs or wants zucchini or tomatoes. It looks as though I overestimated our needs for the umpteenth year.

Article response

Editor:

In your Aug. 6 issue of the Charlevoix Courier there was an article regarding the Charlevoix City Council meeting and citizens' concerns about the building at 224 Bridge Street being razed and a three-story building put on the site.

The article quoted Sherman Chamberlain as someone who knew Earl Young and stating that if Earl Young were alive today he would tear the building down and build a three-story building there himself.

Earl Young was our father and we are very disturbed that Mr. Chamberlain would presume to think he knew what Earl Young would do today. We feel certain he would never build a three-story building in downtown Charlevoix.

The lovely waterfront East Park exists in Charlevoix today because Earl Young and Robert Bridge, long-time president of the Charlevoix County Bank, saw the potential of a park and as buildings were torn down or condemned these two men collected funds to assist the City of Charlevoix in acquiring the properties. If memory serves us correctly, this started when the Charlevoix Hotel burned in the 1930's. Their vision was to have the whole east side of downtown Bridge Street become a waterfront park. Buildings have been renovated through the years but no new buildings have been built in the east side of downtown Bridge Street.

Thank you

Editor:

On behalf of the Hospice of Northwest Michigan (formerly Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc.) Board of Directors and Volunteers I want to thank the wonderful group of people who arranged the Third Annual Helen Open on Sunday, Aug. 17, in memory of that very special lady Helen Weislik.

Thank you Rochelle Whippo, chairperson, Kelly Scholey and Vivian Mettler. You ladies did a great job of organizing this event and the weather certainly did cooperate.

Thank you to all the golfers who participated and all who attended the auction, your generosity is much appreciated! I know that Helen is smiling down on all of you, and also saying, "Thanks!"

We do not charge for our services — volunteer, bereavement and community outreach — and the money raised will be put to good use helping those in our communities.

Great job with fish

Editor:

Did you ever in your life see such beautiful, oh so exquisite fish? We owe as many "thank-you's" as we have designer one-of-a-kind fish to Nancy Porter of the American Red Cross for her inspiration and chutzpah that brought 78 beautiful fish sculptures to Northern Michigan this summer!

The auction to find pride-filled "catchers" of the fish will be Saturday, August 23, 7:00 p.m. in Bay Harbor. Unfortunately, I will be in Florida.

If there are any fish left homeless, I'll help care for them!

Former Charlevoix sheriff Sumner passes away at 82

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Former Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo Sumner passed away Aug. 18 at the Charlevoix Hospital.

He was 82 years of age.

Sumner served as Charlevoix County Sheriff from 1966 to 1976 and was living in Boyne City at the time of his death.

Current Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater served with Sumner for some time. He said Sumner was a good man who took his job very seriously.

"He was a well respected and honorable man. He did the best he could at the county sheriff," he said.

Aside from sheriff, he also served as deputy sheriff, undersheriff and a Boyne City Police Officer. After he left the sheriff's position, he became the manager of Whitings Park.

A visitation will be given from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 20 at the Stackus Funeral Home in Boyne City.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m., Thursday, Aug. 21, at the Walloon Lake Community Church. The burial will be held immediately following the funeral service at the Evangeline Township Cemetery on Clute Road with a luncheon at the church following burial services.

Memorial fund donations may be left at Stackus Funeral Home or the Walloon Lake Community Church.

Law enforcement officers planning to attend the service are asked to contact Undersheriff W.D. Schneider at 547-4461.

Searchers look for missing boat

Coast Guard units from both sides of Lake Michigan are conducting a search for the missing boat Balance.

It is a 32 foot sailboat, white with black trim, white sails and a smiley face on the mainsail.

Aboard the Balance are Jay Rzechula, 43 from Oaklawn, Ill., and his four children, Harley, 13; Margie, 12; Casey, 10; and Ahhey, 8. All of the children live with their mother in Alsip, Ill.

Balance was last heard from on Aug. 11, when one of the children called home to speak with their mother. Their boat was heading home to the Jackson Park Yacht Club from Mackinac Island.

Coast Guard search and rescue boats and aircraft from both sides of the lake and a C-130 search plane from Clearwater, Fla., have been focusing their search between Manistee and Chicago, Ill.

If anyone has seen the Balance, please contact your closest Coast Guard unit.

No more golf carts, ATVs on island roads

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Campbell will be expanding enforcement of state laws concerning the operation of golf carts, ATVs, mopeds and scooters on Beaver Island.

Campbell, who is the deputy assigned to the island, said this move is in response to increasing traffic on the island and increasing complaints regarding these motor vehicles. Specifically, Campbell said golf carts and ATVs cannot be operated on the roadway and riders of mopeds and scooters must have helmets on.

"It is just getting to be a little bit of a problem. This (Beaver Island) is Michigan and we have the same laws over here," he said.

Campbell said he has received complaints from both island residents and visitors about golf carts and ATVs in the roadway and being overloaded with people.

He added he had to arrest a golf cart driver in July for drunk driving, after the driver rolled his cart because it had too many people on it. One person was injured in this accident and had to be flown off the island for treatment.

Campbell said, in a letter, "In the past, the sheriff's office has handled complaints directed toward these vehicles by issuing verbal warnings to the operators. From this point on, the sheriff's office will respond to this type of complaint by first writing a warning citation and following up with Uniform Traffic Violations for repeated infractions."

He added there is one exception for golf cart use.

"Anyone who can demonstrate a need to use a golf cart for transportation will be issued a permit by their township. Sheriff Lasater is presently working with your township official to develop language for an ordinance to regulate this use of golf carts," Campbell said.

Along with enforcing laws on golf carts and ATVs, Campbell will also be setting his sights on operators of mopeds and scooters.

"Anyone under the age of 18 is required to wear a helmet while operating a moped or scooter. Please remember, a moped is a two or three wheeled vehicle with an engine displacement of 50cc or less. A dirt bike with an engine displacement of 50cc (or more) must be registered and have proper safety equipment, including head lights, brake light, turn signals and front and rear brakes," Campbell said in a letter.

He added he will also be reminding people who have vehicles on the island that they must have license plates on them, not have expired plates and have insurance on their vehicles.

"He (Lasater) pretty much told us to enforce all traffic laws as if we were on the mainland," Campbell said.

County seeks input on raising road money

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Commission Chair W. Randolph Frykberg wants to know what you think the county should do to raise money to repair its ailing roads.

Specifically, Frykberg and the rest of the commission are seeking public comment on raising the county millage to bring in more road money or creating a hotel/motel tax.

"We have had a lot of complaints about the road conditions. In analyzing the situation, I don't think we are going to get any more funding through the gas tax," Frykberg said.

"Does the community think it is important to pay a little more taxes as long as they are clearly earmarked for roads?"

Frykberg stressed he and the commission are just gathering information and nothing is final.

As for the idea of raising the millage, Frykberg said the county does have the ability to raise the current millage very slightly, but that would probably not be enough to bring in enough money to fix the roads.

Frykberg added the going rate for paving roads currently is about $250,000 a mile.

He said because of this high cost, a millage increase is being considered that will be put before the voters in 2004.

But, he added, even that would be tough because there will be several millage renewals on that ballot.

As for the motel tax, Frykberg said, it would be a way visitors to the area could help pay for some of the county roads they use.

Frykberg said county residents can write or call their county commissioners or e-mail the county clerk on these topics. The county clerk's e-mail is clerk@charlevoixcounty.org.

Road funding will also be discussed at future county commission meetings.

They are at 3 p.m. on the second Wednesday of the month and at 7 p.m. on the fourth Wednesday of the month in the County Commission Room at the Charlevoix County Building in Charlevoix.

A deadline for a decision has not heen made.

"We will certainly take a little while to see if there is support of this," he said.

Frykherg can be contacted by calling (231) 582-3160. Other commissioners and their contact numbers are:

- Dennis Jason — (231) 547-6759.
- Victor Patrick — (231) 536-0212.

- Shirley J. Roloff — (231) 547-6169.
- Valerie Snyder — (231) 547-2122.

Roloff and Snyder represent the city of Charlevoix and its immediate surrounding townships, including Beaver Island.

Islanders release CD of local folk music

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Much of Beaver Island's history was passed down orally through generations and Barry Pischner is helping to keep that tradition alive.

Pischner just released his third CD this summer with his music partner Rich Scripps and daughter Tammy McDonough titled "Sailing On..." Some of the songs are covers of other songs Pischner has picked up over the years and others are tales of Beaver Island's distant and recent past.

"It's obviously a very localized thing," Pischner said.

In Charlevoix, their CD is selling at the Bridge Street Book Shop, Koucky Gallery and the Beaver Island Boat Company for $15.

It features a collection of 15 ballads both new and old with several sea-faring songs. While the CD does feature a few Irish folk ballads, Pischner said there is a wide variety of music on the CD.

The song "This Emerald Isle" was written by Pischner and tells of the Emerald Isle's trek from its creation in Maine to the boat's stormy ride in Lake Ontario to home.

He dedicates the song to the people of Beaver Island and their lovely Emerald Isle.

The music is an eclectic mix of ballads with Pischner on lead vocals and acoustic guitar for most songs and Scripps singing harmony and playing keyboard and various other arrangements.

The two have had an agreeable musical relationship for several years with one exception.

"We never could agree on what to call (ourselves)," Pischner said.

But on the Island, a band name is not necessary. They are simply known as Barry and Rich.

While Pischner and Scripps always play together, Pischner tries to have his daughter sing on his CDs as often as possible. McDonough, who has directed the Holy Cross choir for 18 years, sings lead vocals on the song Bright Blue Rose.

"I'm very proud to have her on there," Pischner said.

McDonough has sung with her father for many years and played the guitar since she was a teenager. She enjoys making music with her father although their tastes have not always harmonized together.

"Her music style was a little different from mine when she was a teenager," Pischner said.

Pischner's children could not help but catch his music bug. He raised his three daughters in much the same manner his father did — with music surrounding them.

"My dad had a very good voice. He did a lot of singing," he said.

But, Pischner said it was his uncle who provided his inspiration to pursue music. His first CD, titled "My Music Man," Pischner wrote and dedicated to his uncle.

While his home environment encouraged his musical side growing up, it wasn't until the early 1990s that Lori Sommers, then a folklorist at Michigan State University, approached Pischner about recording a CD.

He recorded his first CD, "Beaver Island House Party," which is a throwback to the 1940s on Beaver Island, when the Islanders would congregate in one another's homes and entertain themselves through song and dance.

Pischner's music has earned him recognition both on and off the Island, but in some ways he never expected.

He was contacted by the Winchester Funeral Home not too long ago because the funeral parlor wanted more copies of his CD.

Pischner was told his CD has become the most popular one played at funerals, especially for Beaver Island residents.

"You know that movie "The Wedding Singer"? Well I think I've just become the funeral singer," he joked.

Charlevoix Manufacturing to expand

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company is looking to expand upon their facility, bringing 20 new jobs to the area.

Located on Martin Road, the company produces cylinder brake pistons and does aluminum casting work for General Motors and Delphi.

Charlevoix Manufacturing's parent company, the family-owned Hater Industries, plans on closing its Cincinnati manufacturing facility. Expansion plans include adding 17,000 square feet onto the back of the facility and transferring manufacturing equipment from Cincinnati.

"We've been consolidating our manufacturing for over a year," said Jim Hater, manager of Charlevoix Manufacturing.

Hater said the addition to the building will create more workspace and allow more air into the building. The temperature within the current structure can get up to 120 degrees.

Plans to expand were first discussed approximately three years ago.

Tom Johnson, economic program administrator of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, based in Boyne City, had brought the idea to the attention of Charlevoix Manufacturing.

"We talked about a variety of tools for expansion," Johnson said.

nesses grow and expand in northern Michigan. He does not take credit, however, for Charlevoix Manufacturing's expansion.

Johnson said it had been a long time since he talked with anyone at Charlevoix Manufacturing, but was happy to hear about the improvements they were making.

"We've got a great workforce up here. We're reliable and dependable," Johnson said.

Charlevoix Manufacturing just passed certification for industrial quality standard TS-16949 — a rigid set of standards for international automotive manufacturing facilities.

"I'm really proud of the entire organization here, it speaks highly for the internal operations of our company," Hater said.

He credits the expansion in Charlevoix to better efficiency among the Charlevoix workforce.

Future of disc golf being debated

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Disc golf enthusiasts are looking for a place to lob their discs within the city of Charlevoix after their course was removed last fall.

In the summer of 2001 a disc golf course was installed on Mount McSauha Ski Hill and it remained there until last fall when ski hill manager Bo Boss pulled the baskets because of several disc golf related complaints.

City Manager Mike Weisner said the city had received several complaints from other users of the ski hill who felt disc golfers were abusing Mount McSauha. The police department received three complaints on average nearly every two weeks in relation to disc golfers actions he said.

Because of this, founder of the Charlevoix Area Disc Golf Club Ric Evans has met with city officials several times regarding the reinstallation of the course and not received the answers he was looking for. He brought his case to city council Monday, Aug. 18.

In a memo to Weisner, Recreation Director Ike Boss cited 10 reasons why he chose to remove the course including ground erosion, danger to walkers and illegal drug use on the course.

Weisner said if the course were reinstalled, at the very least, it would have to be removed during the eight week day-camp period and during the winter months.

Both summers the course was in place, Boss claims golfers were intimidating to both the children and counselors at the summer Day Camp programs at Mount McSauha.

Third Ward Shirley Gihson said she was concerned the disc golfers would ruin the hill, which she called one of the jewels of Charlevoix.

Evans said while there was some destruction to the hill in the past, he did not think it could be blamed solely on the disc golfers. Golfers cleaned and filled trash bags full of beer cans from the ski hill which Evans said had clearly been around for several years.

"People have been partying up there long before disc golfers came along. It certainly did not start with disc golfers," he said.

Weisner did not rule out reinstalling a disc golf facility, but said there needs to be a mutual understanding between the city staff and golfers. He agreed to set up a meeting with Evans so they could lay ground rules both parties could agree on.

Second Ward Bill Bellows said he hoped some agreement could be reached between the two parties.

"It seems like it would be an asset to Mount McSauba if we could get it worked out," he said.

> "People have been partying up there long before disc golfers came along. It certainly did not start with disc golfers."
> Ric Evans,
> Founder of Charlevoix's disc golf course

Disc golfers are also being allowed the use of a facility over by the high school, but Evans said they prefer the changing topography and scenic views McSauba provides. A course at the high school could only be offered at specific times, as well, due to the school season and high school sporting events.

Evans said the sport has the potential to make money for the city through tournament play while allowing for little maintenance.

"Once you install, there's virtually no maintenance," he said.

The course equipment, which includes catching baskets and tee markers, is valued at over $10,000 and was loaned to the course by a disc golf enthusiast from East Jordan. It currently sits in storage waiting for reinstallation.

Installation of the course in 2001 was almost cost free as well. It was designed and installed in 2001 by volunteer help.

Despite the fact that disc golf is one of the three fastest growing sports in the world, Evans said he's been met with a lot of resistance because people do not understand what the game is.

Many involved in bringing fish to your plate

FISH

Duhamel admitted he was fishing in his underwear at one point.

The men were their own captain and crew that day with each taking out their own boats to bring in the miles of trap and gill nets that collect their catches.

In some ways, the fishing tradition is still being passed on by the two fishermen. After their long day of fishing, Duhamel's and Kenwabikise's daughters, Desire and Clairessa, took the fresh catch and scaled it to make a few extra dollars.

Clairessa, with an upper torso covered in fish scales, said she doesn't mind removing the shiny scales, but doesn't like filleting because of the blood and guts.

Whitefish have become more than just an odd job for some. It's a way of life, even across Lake Michigan to Charlevoix.

The Cross family has made their living off whitefish for several years. Cross John Fisheries has been in operation in their current building off Belvedere Avenue since 1945 and is one of the oldest businesses in Charlevoix.

As partial owner of the family business, Jack Cross sometimes takes in over 4,000 pounds of fish a day. What is not snacked on by Cross and his workers during the cleaning and preparation process is sold to local restaurants, big city markets and individual customers.

Duhamel has been selling fish to Cross John Fisheries for 25 years and will ship the fish from Beaver Island to Charlevoix in cargo boxes. Once they arrive at the store, the fish are weighed, cleaned, pin boned, gutted and filleted.

If the catch is less than 1,000 pounds, Jack and his nine workers, most immediate family members, will prepare the fish by hand using their sharp knives as opposed to machines. Jack filleted his first fish at the age of 13 and said he has never had any injury worse than a few nicks or cuts.

The Cross family's fishing heritage can be traced back at least four generations. Cross' great-grandfather settled on Beaver Island from Ireland and took up a life of fishing there.

"All of my relatives; basically they were all seamen," he said.

Had Cross' grandfather and his eight brothers combined boats, at one time they would have been the largest fishing fleet in the Great Lakes.

While the waters off Charlevoix are limited to only certain types of fish, Cross John Fisheries sells almost any kind of aquatic catch. And, any they do not have, Cross said they can have at the store within a few days of ordering.

Their most popular item by far is the whitefish, be it smoked or the pate, made by a secret family recipe.

In the winter months, Cross said groups will rent charter flights, come up for the day and buy $300 worth of whitefish at a time. However, they are by far the busiest in the summer from July 4 to Labor Day when Cross said he sometimes will work seven days a week.

"I can't help it. I try not to," he said. "Usually when everyone's on holiday, we're working."

As the Charlevoix crowds influx, so does the company's sales. The stores busiest weekend took place during the Charlevoix Art Fair when crowds were filling East Park and the downtown restaurants which feature Cross' whitefish as a menu item.

Whitefish is also the most popular item at Nina's Restaurant located in the Beaver Island Lodge.

Chef Michael L. Bailey said their six different whitefish entree's constitute 50 percent of the menu sales at the restaurant.

Sometimes they sell an upwards of 50 pounds a day.

Bailey has been the head chef at Nina's Restaurant for 25 years. He has always bought his whitefish locally to get the freshest catch and currently buys from Duhamel.

When the fish arrive at the restaurant they are sized, cleaned and then prepared in a variety of ways including the ever popular whitefish with crab stuffing in a Champaign sauce.

However some people don't need all the fancy trimmings with their whitefish — just as the men that brought it to the restaurants.

While walking around his store, Cross sometimes munches on smoked whitefish.

"I eat it every day, sometimes even for breakfast," he said.

And, despite slugging around in the dead fish on their boat decks, Duhamel and Kenwabikise cannot help but continue eating their fresh catches.

When they returned home Thursday from their day on the water, they feasted on whitefish and crackers.

Jack Cross fillets a whitefish by hand. If they receive a shipment of over 1000 pounds of fish, the employees opt to fillet by machine instead of by hand that day. (Photo by Amy Sayre)

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf program concluded its eighth summer of providing golf lessons and competition for the youth of Northern Michigan. The Belvedere Club hosted the final event of the year, the awards and picture day.

One hundred and ninety-two youth registered, with the majority from Charlevoix, but a good number came from Petoskey and Boyne City. Also represented were Harbor Springs, Alanson, East Jordan and Ellsworth.

"Our mentor program had over 35 adults that committed to attending each session and that allowed for a safe teaching and playing environment. Both the Belvedere and the Charlevoix Country Club provided incentives which rewarded our mentors, and as a result, our program continues to improve," he said.

Both courses allow mentors special golfing dates.

Davenport also cited the teaching professionals who donated their time.

"Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere, Joan Waha from Ye Olde Nyne Holles, Scott Blechel from the Municipal Course and Steve Good and Chet Wheeler from the Country Club. Kasey Davenport and Katie Zblerjewski served as teaching assistants," he said.

"In addition, all these courses plus Antrim Dells provide course time for teaching and playing sessions even during the busy summer time. The Charlevoix Recreation Department and Director Ike Boss have provided us with administrative help which has enabled us to handle the tremendous amount of paper work associated with having 192 golfers."

Davenport added, "The secret to our success is simple, caring adult mentors, devoted teaching professionals and local courses willing to set aside prime time for youngsters, all have combined for an outstanding Junior program, one for which Charlevoix can be proud."

A few juniors did not pick up their colored, framed picture during the award day and can now pick them up at Aartvark Studio and Gallery on Bridge Street in Charlevoix. There is no charge.

The Charlevoix Country Club will salute the Junior Golf Mentors by hosting them to a morning of golf and a brunch on Thursday, Aug. 21.

Those planning to attend are asked to call 547-6433 to make a reservation.

Rotary to host golf tourney Sept. 4

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host its annual golf tournament Thursday, Sept. 4 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

Billed as "The Affordable Golf Tournament," the entry fee is only $35 per person, the same as last year.

"Once again, despite increasing pressure, we are holding the line on the entry fee," said tournament chairman Tim Petrosky. "We want this to be a tournament that everyone can afford to play."

The event is a four-person scramble. The entry fee includes golf, a dinner buffet at Giuseppe's, and a tournament trademark — oodles of prizes. Prizes will be awarded based on skill, luck and random draw, and to teams that finish first, last and right in the middle.

"It is due to the generosity of area businesses and residents, who donate prizes for the event, that makes the tournament so much fun for everyone," Petrosky said.

Registration forms are available at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course pro shop. The event is limited to the first 20 teams that register.

An optional skins game and "mulligans" will also be available to teams.

The shotgun start is at 4:30 p.m. Dinner follows at 6:30 p.m.

Rotary uses proceeds from the event to benefit the community with an emphasis on area youth.

Carlson was out of his city ward temporarily

CARLSON

publicize the information.

Carlson said city staff knew about his relocation, but council members were not informed.

"My intent was not to slip behind anybody. In hindsight, I should have brought it to the council's attention," he said. "I didn't think it was the people's business."

But, at least one city resident disagrees.

Jill Picha, of Charlevoix, said at the council meeting Monday night, "I do think when you sit on council, it becomes the people's business."

Even though Mayor Gabe Campbell has known for the past two weeks about Carlson's temporary change of residence, he does not plan on taking any action.

"His intention is to move back, so it's cool with me," he said. "I called him up to ask him what was going on and he told me."

However, Campbell said the appropriate thing would have been for Young to send a memo to council.

Carlson got the idea from previous council members who took extended vacations while still maintaining their position on council.

"I'm not the first one to have ever done it," he said.

This past winter, Second Ward Bill Bellows stayed in South Carolina for six weeks and past council member A.J. Witthoeft previously rented his home out in the same fashion Carlson has.

Carlson has still kept his constituents in mind because they can still reach him with any of his phone numbers.

"They can call on my cell phone. It's always answered by me," he said. Carlson's cell phone number is (231) 437-1938.

Carlson said it is important to have the different wards each represented within the council though he doesn't necessarily base his decision with only his constituents' opinions in mind.

"When I vote on something I don't think about just the people in that ward, I think of the city as a whole," he said.

Campbell said summer is usually a time when most members take vacation and many cities have trouble making quorum, but the current city council had been exceptional with attendance.

"It's kind of unusual that people attended the meetings so regularly this summer. I think all and all, the (council members) we have take it pretty seriously," he said.

City council seeking input on new ordinance

COUNCIL

commission has been trying to develop ordinances that would do so.

Within the amendment, section 5.124 (1)(c) would permit one parking space per unit for an independent housing facility (senior apartments) and one per three units for an assisted living facility.

Sunnybank Retirement Community would provide one parking space for three to six seniors and one parking space for two staff members.

Many Charlevoix residents who live beside the Petoskey Avenue site were concerned about the traffic that would be brought into the area and whether the facility would provide adequate parking space.

Resident Becky Doan is concerned that a senior housing facility might bring excessive traffic to her street. She proposed that the senior housing should be in a different residential zone, believing they would be more appropriately placed in an R-4 zone, which allows for structures such as apartment complexes.

Resident John Hess is against additional senior housing altogether.

"We can only do so much in each little town," he said. "This type of facility is inconsistent with a residential setting. You have cooks, staff, visitors. It creates a tremendous amount of traffic."

Charlevoix resident Dave Phillips and employee of the only senior living facility in Charlevoix, Boulder Park Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, doesn't believe parking or traffic would be a problem.

"You'll find that our parking lot is very much vacant," Phillips said.

Whether or not any assisted living facilities will come to Charlevoix has yet to be determined, as the issue will go on to the Charlevoix City Council.

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Loeb Farms will cease operation

Announcement made public by Ernest G. Loeb

Disposition of live stock, machinery and property will be made in near future

According to an announcement just made public, Charlevoix in all probabilities will lose what has been one of its chief show places for a number of years past. The following letter received by the Courier from Ernest Loeb, manager of the Loeb Farms, covers the situation as it now stands:

"We have decided to cease operation of the farm this fall." Ernest G. Loeb, the present manager, is leaving Charlevoix this winter because of business in Chicago which will require his entire time and attention. Before he goes the complete herd of pure-bred Holstein cattle, Belgian horses, Duroc Jersey hogs and all of the farm machinery will be sold at public auction some time late in September or October. The date and details of this auction sale will be announced in this paper at a future date.

"The farm buildings and acreage is now for sale, including all the Loeb property except the houses of Mrs. A.H. Loeb and Ernest G. Loeb, which will be retained as summer homes. The Loeb family intends to summer in Charlevoix in the future the same as in the past."

This announcement comes as a considerable surprise to the Courier as well as Charlevoix citizens. The Loeb Farms have been an established institution in Charlevoix back to the year 1917, when construction work on the large house was begun. The barns were built in the next year. 1918, and each year since that time, work has progressed to beautify the property. The fame and beauty of Loeb Farms has spread over the entire country during these years and it has been visited annually by thousands upon thousands of tourists. An extensive mail order business in farm products has been established and produce of various kinds has been shipped all over the country.

It is not known at this time in just what manner the property will be disposed of, whether complete or in lots. The one fact remains, however, that the farm contains four miles of the most beautiful frontage on Lake Charlevoix, which should be very attractive to seekers of summer home sites.

Realizing the great attraction the Loeb Farms have been to Charlevoix it is with great regret that we make this announcement public. It is our sincere hope that disposition of the property will result in as much of an asset to the community as Loeb Farms have in the past.

French broke course record

Visiting professional scored 66 on par 71 course

Annual caddy excursion looked forward to as event of coming week

A new record on the Charlevoix Golf Course was established last Saturday, when Emmett French, the well known golf professional who has charge of the Southern Pines Golf Club at Southern Pines, N.C., shot a 66 on the par 71 eighteen hole course.

Mr. French, who is a guest of A. I. Creamer, manager of The Inn made his record score while playing a twosome with R.B. Wilkinson before a large gallery. His score on each nine was 33, bettering the course record of 68. He played the par 4 first hole in two and his brilliant game throughout the entire eighteen won hearty applause and admiration from the large gallery.

Negotiations are now under way to bring either Al Waltrous or Walter Hagen, both well known professional golfers, to Charlevoix this week for exhibition matches on both the Belvedere and Charlevoix Golf Club course.

The Charlevoix Golf Club is said to be this year in the best condition since it was built. James Gaskin, caretaker, deserves great credit for the fine condition in which he keeps the course. There were over 200 players in one day last week and the average number per day has been up to the standard for the season. The Belvedere Golf course has also attracted a great many players, both local and visitors, and in another year will have no equal in Northern Michigan.

The annual caddy excursion, which each year is provided for the boys by players at the Charlevoix Golf Club, is an event of the coming week. The boys will leave Charlevoix at 6 am. Monday morning in automobiles for Mackinaw City. The forenoon will be spent in sports such as baseball, horse shoe pitching and other forms of amusement. It is planned to visit the former site of the old Fort at Mackinaw City after lunch and then the boys will either make a trip to Mackinac Island or St. Ignace aboard one of the ferries.

Appletree may have a buyer

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

A dollar may be all it takes to save the Appletree if the building's current owners agree to sell it to interested private residents.

Steven and Annemarie Roby of Bloomfield Hills have expressed interest in purchasing the old Earl Young office and relocating it to their private residence on the north-side of Charlevoix.

"We've always loved his homes, so I said to my wife, 'I just can't stand to see that torn down.' We're part of a throw-away society," Steven said.

While Steven has spoken with both Jerry Rutter, who recently purchased the building, and Carol Amick, the current owner of the Appletree building, no formal agreement has been reached.

"The next step from our perspective is to enter into a contract for the acquisition of the building for the sum of $1 and with the obligation to move it from its current site to the proposed site," the Robys' attorney Dan Barron said.

Roby said all parties involved are aware of their interest to purchase the building. He has received a "definite maybe" from the builder in regard to purchasing the old building.

"Mr. Rutter said he would donate

Charlevoix hardware to close downtown

By JEREMY MCBAIN

For the first time since around 1909, downtown Charlevoix will be without a hardware store in the near future.

Mark Greyerbiehl, owner of the Ace Hardware in downtown Charlevoix and the Ace Hardware on M-66, said after careful thought he will be combining his two stores into one location on M-66 sometime this fall or winter.

"That is going to bug me, not being there," Greyerbiehl said of his decision to move out of the downtown. "It is a loss for the downtown, but I can't stay there just for that."

Greyerbiehl said when he originally opened the new Ace Hardware location on M-66 last spring, he did not anticipate closing his downtown store. The plan all along was to have two stores — one on M-66 and one downtown — that were run independently, had different items and were both successful.

However, Greyerbiehl said he began to notice the downtown store was losing money, while the M-66 store was doing well, thanks partly to its larger selection and better parking.

Plus, when he began to contemplate the future, Greyerbiehl said he realized most of the items at his downtown location would be similar to what a Wal-Mart would sell. And with rumors — which had been confirmed by a Charlevoix

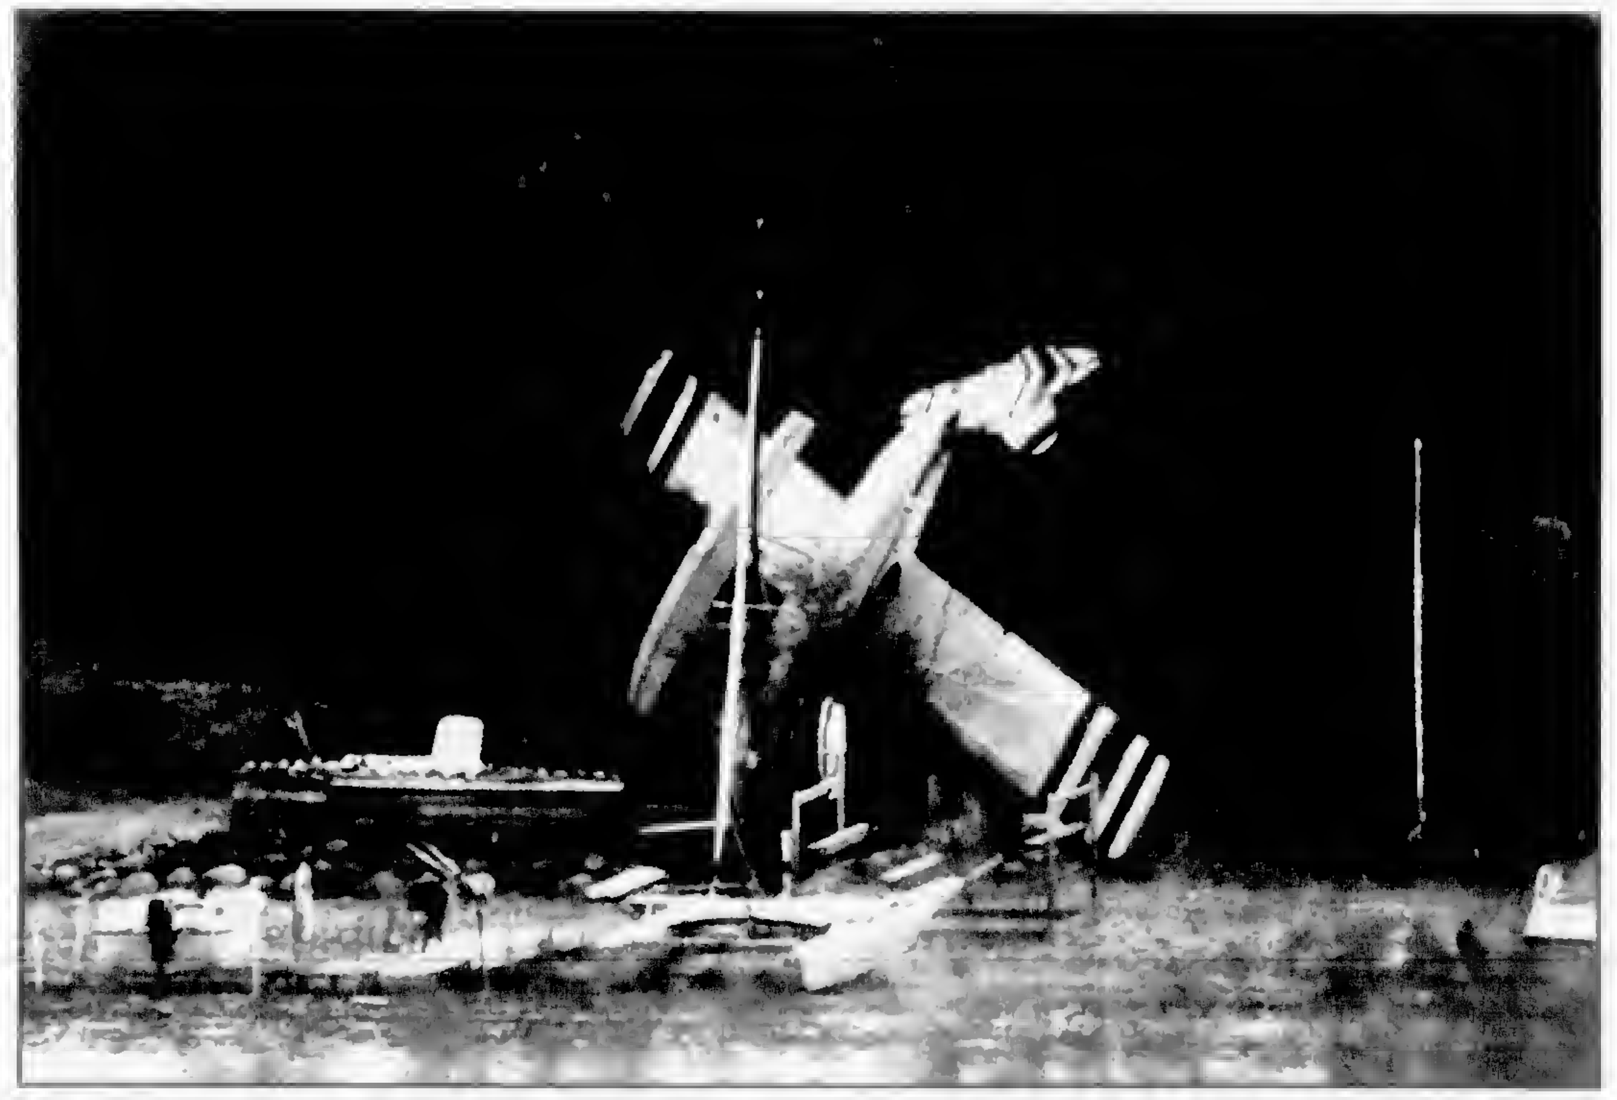
Wild, windy weather



High winds lifted this floating plane from the water and sent it into the trees Tuesday morning near Ironton. The winds were part of a nasty thunderstorm that struck the area. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Strong winds from a thunderstorm Tuesday morning left many Charlevoix residents cleaning limbs and trees from their yards.

John Boris, meteorologist with the National Weather Service, said 64 mph wind gusts were clocked at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport during the storm around 7 a.m., Tuesday. The storm moved through the area at about 55 mph.

Boris said the wind was the most damaging factor of this storm. He added the weather service received many reports of downed power lines, tree limbs and trees as a result.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said deputies were kept busy Tuesday morning due to many downed trees and power lines in the Charlevoix area. No injuries were reported as a result of the storm.

The storm developed Monday along a cold front in upper Minnesota and moved south to northern Michigan where it reached the Charlevoix area around 7 a.m.

As of Tuesday afternoon, there was still a risk of a few thunderstorms forming in the front.

However, the cold front which produced this storm will also bring some chilly weather to Charlevoix for the Labor Day weekend.

Boris said starting on Thursday and lasting through the weekend, residents and visitors can expect a chance of rain and highs in the 60s. A warm-up has not been forecast for the near future.

"Tuesday was the last really warm and humid day for a while," he said.

Council votes to let dogs stay in East Park

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

After three weeks of discussion the Charlevoix City Council has decided to let sleeping dogs lie, even if they are in East Park.

The city council discussed the possibility of writing an ordinance at their last meeting, Aug. 18, that would ban dogs from East Park during festival times. It ultimately was decided that the ordinance would not be easily enforced and therefore was voted down by the council.

"It would be most difficult to come up with an effective ordinance all the time," Third Ward Sherm Chamberlain said.

After some discussion at the meeting, Third Ward Shirley Gibson made a motion asking staff to write a resolution banning dogs from East Park during festival times while making accommodations for boaters. It was seconded by Second Ward Karen Campbell.

The motion failed by a four to two vote with only Gibson and Campbell voting in favor of drafting an ordinance.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson cited several reasons in a memo to City Manager Mike Weisner as to why the on-again, off-again ordinance would not be in the city's best interest.

He said if they decided to ban dogs only during festival times it would be difficult to enforce because festival visitors would most likely not be informed about the rule. Also many of the event participants, such as the art dealers, bring their dogs and would have no where to keep them.

It was agreed that exceptions would have to be made for boaters' dogs given their proximity to the park. Halverson said it was this type of "selective enforcement" that would make it difficult to implement the ban.

"It would be impossible to put together a fair and enforceable ordinance that would be easily understood, easily applied and easily complied with," he said.

Halverson said the officials he spoke with in Boyne City said their dog ban, which Charlevoix would model its after, was one of the worst ordinances they have ever created. He said city officials felt like they were "swimming up stream" trying to spread the word about the ordinance.

Resident Jill Picha first brought the dog issue to council's attention at the July 21 city council meeting. She again spoke at the last meeting saying her concern was not the other parks within Charlevoix, only East Park because of its family atmosphere.

"Dogs should be banned from East Park, period," Picha said.

She said dogs cause messes for children playing in the park and can frighten the elderly who have concerns with tripping over leashes.

Second Ward Bill Bellows said he voted against the resolution because the research Halverson found proved the dog ban would be unenforceable. He still would like to see dogs banned, but felt this ordinance was not going to be the solution to the city's problem.

City to plant trees along street for residents again

The cooling effect of Charlevoix's city street trees is an important part of getting the community through summer with the greatest comfort.

To help this, the city of Charlevoix will provide streetside trees to homes and businesses at no cost. All you need to do is call 547-3270 before mid-September, give your address and choose any of seven varieties of trees. The trees will be planted in the fall.

The success of this planting program shows in Charlevoix's selection by the Arbor Day Foundation as "Tree City USA" for each of the past eleven years.

If shade trees were planted by your home or business in the past few years, please make sure they are watered during the dryness of August and early September.

Young trees need extra water during this critical time. Keep weed-killer applications away from young trees and nourish them with a little all-purpose fertilizer.

The money from sales for shirts is going to the Charlevoix Community Pool. Donations are welcome. (File photo)

What does the future hold for the intern?

Amy Sayre

Staff writer

My car has not heen running so well these days.

Ever since I drove it to Mount Pleasant for my college graduation three weeks ago, almost completely depleted of both coolant and motor oil, it hasn't been the same. It sputters when it runs, overheats when I drive it and makes these horrible clicking sounds right before the engine turns over. Yes, my little Dodge Shadow has certainly seen its day.

If it was a horse, I would have shot it by now.

My car has become a huge source of stress in my life since that weekend at CMU. I liken driving the Shadow to a game of Russian Roulette. Not knowing when or where my car is going to give out hrings a whole new meaning to the phrase "proceed with caution."

But as much anxiety as my car is causing me, I have far greater worries. I finish my internship at the Courier this Friday and officially embark on my journey into the "real world."

That means the end of college, the end of my steady summer job, the end of my parents' health insurance and the beginning of major decision making. My future within the past few weeks, much like my car, has become very unpredictable.

My graduation from college brought me a lot of joy because it meant the end of tests and 8 a.m. lectures about the migratory patterns of Dutch settlers to the United States. However, a few weeks later, euphoria gave way to realism. I now was a college graduate with all the decisions that come with that title.

High school graduation was easy. It meant the start of college and living away from home. And even though I may not have known what I wanted to major in or where I wanted to study, my choices were narrowed down to one path. College was mandatory in my family.

However as I found four years later, college graduation is much more confusing. There are no guarantees and no one is leading me down a certain path, steadily guiding my future. For the first time, I am in complete control. I am standing at the great crossroads of life staring wide-eyed in amazement at the plethora of choices before me.

I have options upon decisions upon choices to make, none of which seem to present clear cut answers guaranteeing my success. Every decision I make has a myriad of others that leave my head spinning. As my mother can attest, I am the most indecisive person in the world, so my brain is on overdrive.

Should I move back home and try to save some money? Can I get a joh in this terrible market? If I do, should I try to stay in Michigan? Do I really want to be tied down to a full time "grown-up" job? Should I scrap the job thing and try to pursue my other interests? What should I do with my ailing car? If I get a new car, does that mean I am tied down to car payments, 1.9 percent financing and a steady job for at least 36 months?

I always thought before I finished school, the plan was to graduate from college, get a real job, get married, have kids and start a savings account in preparation of my future children's education, therefore perpetuating the cycle.

Well, I graduated. But, as for the marriage, job, kids and savings account, I am far from them. Several of my friends are getting engaged, but, being 22-years-old and freshly smacked in the face by reality, I don't think a lifetime commitment will help me gain the insight I'm looking for.

I stand on the brink of great possibilities right now, both a little scared and a little excited about what my future holds. I know I need to get over the sheer volume of choices before me and just sprint in any direction and figure it out as I go.

One direction I know I will be going is back to my home in Westland this weekend. However, I will be leaving one friend behind. Being that I live in the Detroit area, I know my poor Shadow will not make it home again. If it can't handle a trip to Petoskey, I cannot ask it to drag itself downstate.

So I guess that's the difference between my car and me. Come September I know its permanent residence will be in Charlevoix. As for me, I'm still working on it.

Eisendrath's party featured in two large daily newspapers

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

After reading about Julia and Charles Eisendrath's party featured in the New York Times (July 30) and the Detroit Free Press (Aug. 19), I would be remiss if I didn't write about it for the Charlevoix Courier!

In their old blue and white farmhouse in East Jordan set between a cherry orchard and a butterfly field, the culinary cognizenti of northern Michigan mingled with assorted guests who arrived driving BMWs and Lincoln Continentals. The cookout started at 6 p.m. and ended early because everyone had to make the Ironton ferry on Lake Charlevoix before it stops running at 10 p.m.

Guests were served quail, duck, speckled-bellied goose, caribou and caribou sausage, which were cooked over a cherrywood fire on a specially designed grill by Eisendrath, still readily available on the market. We were seated at numerous picnic tables — no placecards.

The New York Times calls up north a "Flavorful vacationland, where the living is tasty."

How true! Last year, I wrote that this area ought to be more renowned than it is for the fine dining cuisine that we enjoy.

In the Introduction to my latest book "Easy Entertaining" I listed — according to the date of their establishment — the Rowe Inn, Tapawingo, Walloon Lake Inn, Andante, Chandler's, Latitude and now Garret's One Water Street. Under "Sources of Supply," I mention American Spoon. I would like to add Charlevoix's new hot spot, Esperance on the north side of town, where one finds a large collection of cheeses from around the world.

Scooping the New York Times article, by R. W. Apple, Jr., I wrote, "With our fine restaurants on the one hand and our woodsy ski and shore environment on the other hand, we have the best of both worlds! Deer wander through our back yards and flocks of wild turkeys circle the golf courses, while we dine par excellence!"

Like a lot of people, Charles Eisendrath summered "Up North" his whole life. I first met him when he was a child and lived with his St. Louis grandmother, Mrs.

Charles Rice on 415 Michigan Avenue in Charlevoix. As a matter of fact, I am in possession of some of Mrs. Rice's recipes, because there was a time when I was first married that I was blessed by inheriting her former cook, Marie Black.

I recall that a soup recipe suggests we go to the store and ask the butcher for 25 cents worth of soup meat! Not a great start.

Today Eisendrath runs the Knight-Wallace Fellows Journalism program at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. In the summer he likes to hunt, fish and invite friends to the farm to enjoy a gourmet cookout. Julia Eisendrath's warm smile makes everyone feel welcome. Even though people from the east and west coasts are not aware of the advantages of living "Up North," and local folks like to keep it that way, occasionally a newcomer from some distant place is welcomed into the circle and this adds to the spice of life!

Let student speak

Editor:

On Monday, Aug. 11, I went to my first school board meeting at the Charlevoix High School. I attended in order to be supportive of a young lady named Zeta Anderson, who I don't even know.

Zeta had written a letter to the board concerning her eighth grade social studies teacher, Eric Herbert, who would not be returning to teach next year. Many rumors have been flying around Charlevoix as to why he was leaving since he seems to be very well liked by many of the students. Zeta felt the school would be losing a great asset and she wanted them to be aware of that. Zeta sat in the front row and was surrounded by about 15 students and parents. They were all there for the same reasons, to support Zeta and support her portrayal of Mr. Herbert.

Her letter was mentioned directly after a moment of silence and the meeting being called to order. The leader of the meeting had a microphone sitting directly in front of him, as did the other members of the board and yet it was never very clear that we were to the section labeled public comment. When we became aware that the board had moved on, Zeta's father stood up and addressed the board to try and bring them back to Zeta's letter. The board chose not to and continued with other husiness.

I have never been so upset with a bunch of adults in all my life. Never did they acknowledge Zeta's presence at the meeting or invite her or the other students to express themselves. It was the least they could have done. These are the kids that they as a board are supposed to be looking out for and encouraging. No invitation was made in the direction of the students or parents. I feel that at a minimum, these kids need to each receive an apology from the board and an invitation to come back and be given the time to speak as they should have been at the Aug. 11 meeting.

Do not let this be politics as usual here in Charlevoix. I urge the board to do what is right so these young people will be encouraged to stand up in the future for what they believe in and not be afraid. Do not let them believe no one is listening or that no one cares what they think.

Thank you

Editor:

I want to acknowledge and thank Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix for hosting an American Red Cross blood drive for donors with "O" type blood. The blood drive was on July 10. Edith Dale did a first-rate job of coordinating the event.

The members of Bethany Lutheran supplied great refreshments and volunteered their time to work at the drive in several capacities. Since late spring, the blood supply has been extremely low. The 34 pints collected on July 10 filled a critical need.

On July 24 an American Red Cross blood drive in Charlevoix was sponsored by the Venetian Festival, at the Community Reformed Church.

I want to thank Marilyn Boss for distributing the posters around town. I also want to express my appreciation for the Lions Club members who worked double duty that day at Venetian Festival events and the drive. The volunteer bakers came through again with delicious treats. Many volunteers spent a beautiful summer day working at the blood drive. Thank you ! The Red Cross collected 50 pints on July 24 from 59 donors. A big thanks to all of the donors.

The blood supply continues to be dangerously low. I want to encourage people to call (800) GIVE-LIFE for information on location and time for the next opportunity to donate blood. The next community American Red Cross blood drive in Charlevoix is on Sept. 18 from noon until 5:45 p.m. at the Community Reformed Church. Please mark your calendars. Let's make the results outstanding.

Fund having an impact on the health of area youths

It's been just three years since Chicago Club members created Quick Action for Kids, its fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation that's dedicated to promoting healthy youngsters and meeting the healthcare needs of Charlevoix school children.

But the fund is already making its mark.

To date, more than $17,000 from the fund has been distributed throughout the community, helping school kids stay fit, healthy and ready to learn. Grants have helped pay for urgent dental and medical expenses for financially needy children, water safety classes and family swim nights at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, and — most recently — Fit Kids, a fitness and health screening program that reached all the area's fifth graders.

"We know that many area families work seasonally and may lack health insurance or resources to meet unexpected health expenses," Tim Ives, a Chicago Club member who helped spearhead the fund, said. "Our fund is designed to provide immediate assistance for a variety of minor medical needs that otherwise might go unmet and to provide the kinds of programs and services that can make a positive difference for children."

Ives says swim lessons and projects like Fit Kids — which screened area students for hypertension, cholesterol, cardiovascular fitness, diabetes and obesity — can have a significant impact on children's health.

"We hope that making a modest investment in health prevention at an early age will pay off for area kids in the long run," he said.

The Chicago Club was established in 1880, and, today, many descendants of its founding families continue to maintain cottages in the association. Although most members are summer residents of Charlevoix, community foundation president Bob Tambellini said the club has a long history of supporting local causes.

"This is such a wonderful expression of the Chicago Club's connection to Charlevoix," Tambellini said. "We're very grateful they've chosen to focus on children and help out in this way."

As its name suggests, Quick Action for Kids is designed to be a rapid-response fund, with speedy turnaround time on requests for aide.

In addition to traditional medical or dental care, the fund is designated to cover expenses related to hearing aides, eyeglasses, speech therapy, or personal hygiene. Needs are identified by school personnel and requests made through the area schools.

If approved by the community foundation, money is made available immediately.

The Chicago Club's Quick Action for Kids Fund is one of 142 funds held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation — each one designated to support a specific cause or address general needs in education, the environment, arts and culture, health, civic projects, youth or recreation.

More information about the Chicago Club fund, or other programs of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, is available by calling the foundation at (231) 536-2440 or writing c/o PO Box 718, East Jordan, Michigan, 49727.

Boy injured after hitting car with his bicycle

A 14-year-old Charlevoix boy was injured when his bike struck a vehicle around 6 p.m., Aug. 20 on M-66 highway in front of Ace Hardware in Charlevoix Township.

A 2002 Buick driven by an 85-year-old Charlevoix man was traveling south on M-66 when the boy rode into the vehicle.

The driver of the Buick sustained minor cuts from broken glass. The 14 year old was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital for a head injury with concussion, an injury to his right shoulder and multiple scrapes and bruises.

The Buick had damage to the right fender, door, door glass, door mirror and right front tire.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City EMS and the Charlevoix City Police.

Sheriff George T. Lasater urges all bicyclists to wear their safety helmet in order to prevent or reduce injury to their head.

Church to start expansion

Many years of labor and dreams will soon be coming to fruition for Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix.

It has long been felt that additional facilities have been needed in order to fully live out the ministry to which Christ Church feels called, therefore the church will be starting construction of an addition.

The planned addition, which will be joined to the existing church building, will contain a new kitchen and a much larger parish hall. There will also be two bathrooms and three offices on the same level as the church.

Downstairs will house a half bath, several classrooms and room for future expansion. An elevator will go from the street level entrance both up to the parish hall and down to the classrooms.

Two injured in motorcycle accident

Two people were injured in a motorcycle/car accident around 6:30 p.m., Aug. 19 near the intersection of Ferry Avenue and M-66 North.

William Foster Jr., 43 years old from Charlevoix, was driving a 2000 Harley Davidson Motorcycle north on M-66 when a vehicle pulled out in front of him off Ferry Avenue, onto M-66.

Foster attempted to avoid the crash, but was unable to and collided with the 1998 Mercury driven by Joanne Carlson, 61 years old from Charlevoix.

Carlson was uninjured in the crash. Foster and his passenger, Jennifer Webb, 25 years old from Boyne City, were transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix EMS with multiple injuries.

The crash is under investigation at this time.

Petunias cut down due to weed problem

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "They were starting to strangle the petunias."
> Bob Hoffman, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president

Most of Charlevoix's petunias will disappear from Bridge Street soon thanks to uncontrollable weeds and other problems in the flower beds.

Robert Hoffman, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, said the decision was made last week to "weed whack" around 75 percent of the flowers along Bridge Street. The petunias will return in May 2004 though.

He said there were several problems in the petunia beds that made this necessary.

The biggest problem was a high amount of weeds in the flower beds. Hoffman said there were problems this year with getting the petunia beds properly weeded, thus the weeds began to take over in many locations.

In many locations the weeds had such a foothold on the flowerbeds, Hoffman said petunia plants would have been pulled up if crews attempted to eradicate the nuisance plants by hand.

"They were starting to strangle the petunias," Hoffman said.

Also contributing to the petunia problems was unseasonably cold weather earlier this summer, poor soil in the flower beds that needs to be replaced and road construction on the north side of Bridge Street.

Due to all of these problems, Hoffman said the city and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful decided to "weed whack" the flower beds.

Normally, the crews just stop watering the plants in the fall and the flowers die, until they are replaced each May during the community planting event "Operation Petunia." But this would have given the weeds time to produce seeds that could hurt the beds next summer, so "weed whacking" the beds became the only option.

The downside to this plan is the flowers, which have become a symbol for Charlevoix, would be cut down along with the weeds.

The petunias along this stretch of road were cut down recently due to weeds. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

U of M helicopter to visit Charlevoix hospital

It's a service all of us hope we'll never need — but in a serious emergency, a University of Michigan Health System Survival Flight can make the difference between life and death.

This Friday, Aug. 29, the high-tech transport program will make a special non-urgent journey to Charlevoix Area Hospital to show off its lifesaving capabilities and get aquainted with the hospital's new heliport and emergency department.

One of UM Survival Flight's three sophisticated, twin-engine Bell 430 helicopters is expected to land on the hospital's rooftop landing pad around 11 a.m., where it will remain until mid-afternoon. Local physicians, hospital board members, area EMS personnel and the United States Coast Guard commander will welcome the Survival Flight Crew and the general public is invited to view the landing to get a close look at the state-of-the-art chopper and learn more about triage skills used to care for and transport critically ill patients.

Peter Forster, Administrator for the UM Health System Emergency Medicine, says the visit is part of the University's mission to educate the public and extend its tertiary services to people throughout the state.

"When we learned of Charlevoix Area Hospital's extensive emergency department upgrade and the new helipad, we were eager to become better acquainted with the facility and build on our referral relationship." Forster said. "It's important for us to know about the skills and new medical technology at Charlevoix's hospital in the event we're called upon to transport patients."

Forster will be accompanied on the visit by John Campos, lead pilot, and Denise Landis, manager of the program's critical care transport services. In addition to conducting tours of the helicopter, the three will meet with hospital staff and area emergency medical professionals to discuss all aspects of Survival Flight — administrative, clinical and mechanical.

This is the twentieth year of the University of Michigan Health System's Survival Flight. The program's 50-member crew operates three helicopters, a Cessna jet and specially equipped ground transportation used to evacuate and transport seriously ill or injured patients, newborns in need of specialized intensive care and organs destined for transplant to regional hospitals across continental North America and parts of Canada.

One Charlevoix resident who knows first-hand the importance of Survival Flight's rapid response is 15-year-old Nathaniel Sotuyo. Four years ago, when Nathaniel became seriously ill from an encephalitis-like infection, his pediatrician, Roderick Tinney, M.D., arranged for one of the program's helicopters to transport the young patient to Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Today, Sotuyo is a healthy, happy teenager and, on Friday, he'll be on hand to see the life-saving equipment up close and personal.

"When a high level of care is called for, Survival Flight can help ensure patients like Nathaniel receive all the medical attention they need," Bill Jackson, Charlevoix Area Hospital CEO, said. "We're privileged to have this world-class transport team close by and expand our local capabilities in this way. Survival Flight's visit offers an excellent opportunity to strengthen our connection to one of the nation's top air ambulance programs, as well as the University of Michigan hospitals and health centers."

More information about the UMHS Survival Flight visit to Charlevoix Area Hospital is available by calling Roger Sievertson, vice president for Hospital Support Services, at (231)547-4024.

Harbor Industries expects pickup

By STEFANIE CARANO
Staff writer

A slow economy is not a concern to one of the biggest employers in Charlevoix — Harbor Industries.

In recent months, the company has reported lighter volumes in its workload, forcing it to make some temporary layoffs. But, executives are confident that production will pick up soon.

"We're optimistic that in a few months we'll see some positive signs. It's hard to tell exactly when, all indications are that it will pick up in the near future," said Tim Parker, vice-president of Northern Operations.

Parker believes there's quite a bit of demand in the industry being pent up until consumer confidence returns.

As recently as the year 2000, the company expanded their Charlevoix facility at the intersection of M-31 and M-66 to meet the rising supply and demand, hiring new employees and increasing production.

However, as the workload now fluctuates, so do the number of employees at Harbor Industries. Each person faced with a temporary layoff still works periodically at the plant, though only working a few weeks at a time.

When things pick up, according to Parker, the layoffs will be terminated and all employees will be allowed to return on a full-time basis.

At full capacity, there are 275 employees at the plant, in addition to several temporary workers (placed by staffing agencies).

Harbor Industries manufactures store fixtures for businesses across northern Michigan, one of its latest projects involves work for a new Wal-Mart opening in Gaylord.

The company has been in Charlevoix since 1981, after purchasing the previous facility from Freedman Aircraft at their current location.

Corporate headquarters are in Grand Haven.

Boat names in Round Lake

Charlevoix attracts boaters of all types to its marina during the summers, thanks to its beautiful scenery and plenty of water to play on. Along with the boaters, come the strange names they give their boats. Here are some of the boat names that have been spotted in the Charlevoix Municipal Marina this summer. (Photos by Jeremy McBain)

Charlevoix Rotary Club Golf Tourney

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host its annual golf tournament Thursday, Sept. 4 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

Billed as "The Affordable Golf Tournament," the entry fee is only $35 per person, the same as last year.

"Once again, despite increasing pressure, we are holding the line on the entry fee," said tournament chairman Tim Petrosky. "We want this to be a tournament that everyone can afford to play."

The event is a four-person scramble. The entry fee includes golf, a dinner buffet at Giuseppe's, and a tournament trademark — oodles of prizes. Prizes will be awarded based on skill, luck and random draw, and to teams that finish first, last and right in the middle.

"It is due to the generosity of area businesses and residents, who donate prizes for the event, that makes the tournament so much fun for everyone," Petrosky said.

Registration forms are available at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course pro shop. The event is limited to the first 20 teams that register.

An optional skins game and "mulligans" will also be available to teams.

The shotgun start is at 4:30 p.m. Dinner follows at 6:30 p.m.

Rotary uses proceeds from the event to benefit the community with an emphasis on area youth.

Committee studying how to protect Charlevoix history

By AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

> "Of course this has to be a cooperative effort. There's many different ways this could evolve. I think it's going to be a challenge and it will take some time."
> Bob Heath,
> former historical society president

The Charlevoix City Council took a step forward at their last meeting, Aug. 18, to protect the history of the city and its historical buildings.

They approved a motion to create an ad hoc committee that will study the possibility of creating a historical district in Charlevoix. Bob Heath, former historical society president, requested the committee be created at the recommendation of the historical society.

"If you approve this, the assumption is the ad hoc committee will make and study and report back to council," he said.

Third Ward Shirley Gibson made the motion and it was seconded by First Ward Bill Haggard.

Heath suggested that the committee be composed of representatives from several key interests downtown such as the historical society, city council, chamber of commerce, downtown development authority, planning commission, City Planner Gerry Harsch, City Manager Mike Weisner and citizens at large.

City officials are working on scheduling the first meeting date.

While Heath is hoping for as much input as possible, he realizes getting the various groups to agree on a single plan may be a challenging task.

"Of course this has to be a cooperative effort," he said. "There's many different ways this could evolve. I think it's going to be a challenge and it will take some time."

This is the first time the historical society, whose mission is to preserve artifacts and history locally, has tackled a project of this size.

They have gained state historical status for the Harsha House and are actively preserving the Depot, which is recognized nationally as a historic site. They also are currently working on preserving the lighthouse which will be decommissioned by the Coast Guard.

But, they have not done any work in the past on a historical district.

While the society may have entertained the idea of creating a historical district, it was brought to the forefront of community members' minds after citizens began showing concern about Earl Young's old office building being demolished.

"The Appletree really brought this whole thing into focus," Heath said. "At the time the Appletree incident occurred, people became interested in the fact that we really do not have anything in place to preserve buildings downtown."

Heath would like a code, procedure and policy in place at the time when historical buildings are sold so their protection would be guaranteed.

"I'm more interested in trying to prevent the forest fires rather than putting them out," he said.

Heath said the building located next to the Appletree, which houses the store Maison and Jardin, currently has a for sale sign in its window. That building dates back to 1865.

In the ad hoc committee's research Heath also would like to see the group form a commission to preserve historical homes.

There has been talk of trying to preserve all the Earl Young designed homes in Charlevoix, but Heath said there are several others that date back much farther than the famous architect's work.

"We would be just as concerned with preserving those," he said.

Generally the Young homes date back to the 1940s or 50s, but Heath said his home on West Hurlbut Street was built prior to 1887 and there are others that date back to the 1840s.

"I know there are homes that are certainly older than mine," he said.

Heath hopes the ad hoc committee would do research and come up with a plan, which they would then present the plan to city council for approval.

Center, parking facility may be added to city master plan

BY AMY SAYRE
Staff writer

Charlevoix city officials have expressed the need to revise the city's master plans which help guide and direct the future growth of Charlevoix.

The Downtown Development Authority and city are working on two separate agendas with the city focusing on the entire city of Charlevoix and the DDA restricted to just its small district of the city.

"There are two separate plans in the works. They do have to coordinate with each other," Charlevoix City Planner Gerry Harsch said.

The city's master plan is a document developed and adopted by the planning commission to address future land use in the community, not public building needs. It assesses schools, land use and major thoroughfares to give insight to future plans.

As a rule of thumb, the master plan is supposed to be updated every five years. But, Charlevoix's master plan was last revised in 1982. Harsch has been trying to update the plan for some time but other projects, such as the Appletree and senior housing zoning requirements, have kept him busy.

"We have a plan for getting it redone. It's a matter of getting it drafted together," Harsch said.

"It's not going to be a new master plan. It's going to be a revision of the existing master plan."

He has worked on the project sporadically, but said updating the plan is only discussed when issues arise. He said there has not been a highly pressing need to redo it.

"There is very little land within the city that's not already developed, so it's only (discussed) when those few parcels that are vacant come into question," Harsch said.

Planning Commission president Dennis Kusina said any revision the planning commission makes

Cross country team has good start to season

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix High School girls' and boys' cross country teams opened their season Aug. 23 at the Benzie Invitational.

The girls' team finished eighth out of 13 schools in the A-B Division. The boys' team finished tenth out of 14 teams in the division.

Girls' coach Mary Plude said, "I have to applaud the efforts of all the girls. I was real proud of them."

Mary added the race gave her junior varsity runners some great experience.

Boys' coach Ken Plude said, "My top guys ran a great team race to help the young freshmen learn how to race at the 5 kilometer distance. They ran well enough to place second in the C-D division, but it's more important to run against better competition at this stage of the season."

Ken added, by comparing their times to the varsity race, his junior varsity runners beat seven varsity teams in the C-D Division and two A-B schools.

Individual results for the girls' varsity team were: Brenna Bergmann in twenty-eighth with a time of 22 minutes, 2 seconds; Theresa Martin in thirty-seventh with a time of 22 minutes, 33 seconds; Sonya Plude in fiftieth, with a time of 22 minutes, 59 seconds; Liz Madison in sixty-ninth, with a time of 24 minutes, 12 seconds; Michelle Rowe in eighty-first, with a time of 24 minutes, 59 seconds and Sammy Jo Keie in ninety-second, with a time of 27 minutes, 21 seconds.

Individual results for the boys' varsity team were: Jared Hunt in forty-ninth, with a time of 18 minutes, 21 seconds; Brandon Stevens in fiftieth, with a time of 18 minutes, 22 seconds; Scott Plude in fifty-second, with a time of 18 minutes, 26 seconds; Tom Aepelbacher in fifty-eighth, with a time of 18 minutes, 40 seconds; Zach Scharenbrach in fifty-ninth, with a time of 18 minutes, 45 seconds and Brian Christiansen in sixty-seventh, with a time of 18 minutes, 53 seconds.

Soccer team starts season with a win

The Charlevoix High School varsity soccer team opened its season with a home win over Gaylord. 2-1, Friday in overtime.

Mike DuPuis scored the first goal of the game on a penalty kick and 10 minutes into the overtime Andrew Mailloux scored the win with an assist from Nurken Ashenov.

Coach Josh Block said Jake Pace made some big saves in the goal and did a really great job for the team.

"Our defense really played well. They are: Jake Teuscher, Ezra Bakker, Andrew Tillotson and Evan Keller. Plus three of those four are new to the varsity team," Block said. Bakker is a returning player.

Block added, "It was exciting to get a win, but we need to work on a few areas. We are not in our groove yet."

Summer residents want to buy Appletree

APPLETREE

it to anyone who had the money to move it," Roby said. "We're saving the builder the cost of tearing it down."

Barron said all parties involved, including the Robys, Amick Lakeside Realtors, Rutter and the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals, still need to work out the details before anything is finalized.

"We have some pretty significant hoops to jump through, but are hopeful of a very cooperative response given the greater good to be served through the preservation of this structure," Barron said.

Carol Amick, current owner of the building, said the power now rests in Rutter's hands and would not comment on the situation. However, Barron said the Robys are looking to reach an agreement with the current building owners, the Amicks.

The Appletree's fate first came into question when Rutter, an Elk Rapids developer, and his partner, Scott Zager, purchased the building from Amick Lakeside Realtors earlier this summer. They proposed plans to construct a three story building in the Appletree's place with a French inspired design, housing both commercial and residential units.

Roby said the timing for he and his wife's possible purchase could not have been better. The couple was in the process of getting a variance to build an upstairs art studio on their property, which is divided by an alley on Auld Road.

Barron appeared before the zoning board of appeals Aug. 20 and asked the board to put the original request on hold which was contingent upon the possible Appletree purchase.

Even though the building may be sold for one dollar, the Robys would be spending a considerable amount of money to relocate the structure onto their property.

"They will also expend a very large amount of money restoring it to its prior grandeur," Barron said.

The Robys are admirers of Earl Young's architectural work and tried to purchase one of his homes a few years ago, but were outbid. When they heard the Appletree was going to be torn down, the Robys jumped at the opportunity to save it.

"I said to my wife, 'What do you want more, a garage or a beautiful building we can use as an art studio?'" Steven said. "We have the perfect lot for it."

While the time so far has played in the Robys' favor, they need to move quickly on closing the deal. The decaying building is movable, but not without some significant preparation work which could take upwards of a month to complete.

"It is movable, but it can't be moved as is," Steven said.

"It will take approximately 30 days to stabilize the structural integrity at which point we will move it to the northside location," Barron said.

The Robys contacted licensed contractor Sally Koerber and a masonry expert who offered suggestions to prepare the building for the less than a mile move.

"They need to shore it up on the inside, cut it away from the surrounding cement, take down the outside chimney, put it on beams, get it out to the street with rollers and take it down the street," Koerber said.

The Charlevoix City Council stalled plans on the building designed to replace the Appletree at the Aug. 4 council meeting, where several Charlevoix residents expressed their concern over losing the historic structure. Council members voted to send the plans back to the zoning board of appeals to determine if a Bridge Street entrance was allowed for the residential portion of the proposed structure.

The zoning board unanimously agreed at their meeting, Aug. 20, that the first floor entry is permissible under other uses sharing the building as referenced in ordinance 5.96.

However the fate of the Appletree still rests in the zoning board's hands. They will now have to determine if the Robys can place the structure on their property.

"Our acquisition would be contingent upon the grant of variance by the zoning board of appeals," Barron said.

The building is not an Earl Young original. It is over 100-years-old but still has the Earl Young design stamp. Steven said Young architecturally changed it to fit his style by altering the external facade and added the fireplace.

Steven said while he is excited about the possible addition to his home, he realizes its significance to the Charlevoix residents.

"Not only is it an important Earl Young building, but it's a historical building for the city of Charlevoix," Roby said.

Group sending out brochure to waterfront owners

In an effort to encourage environmentally sound stewardship of the Great Lakes shorelines during low water periods, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has recently developed a brochure titled "Be a Great Lakes Steward!"

The brochure, produced in cooperation with over a dozen other organizations and agencies, is being mailed to more than 8,000 shoreline property owners in Saginaw and Grand Traverse Bays.

Recently, Michigan adopted a law to streamline the permitting process and relax protections on some coastal manipulation activities.

"During the legislative process, there were many myths and much confusion about the values of these areas, why they occur, what activities are allowed and why they need to be protected," said Wil Cwikiel, who coordinated the project. "The purpose of this brochure is to get technically-sound information regarding coastal wetlands and exposed bottomlands in the hands of shoreline property owners."

According to Cwikiel, who is a Lake Michigan shoreline property owner and author of "Living with Michigan's Wetlands: A Landowner's Guide," exposed and vegetated Great Lakes bottomlands — also known as coastal wetlands — are some of the most ecologically valuable areas in the Great Lakes.

"Great Lakes water levels are cyclical. Low water periods provide the opportunity for vegetation to become established along the shore. This is a time of regeneration. That vegetation provides essential fish and wildlife habitat, helps protect water quality and reduces erosion and sediment suspension when the water levels come back up," Cwikiel said.

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council worked in cooperation with 15 other organizations and agencies to produce the brochure, the funding for which was provided by the Great Lakes Fisheries Trust.

"More than 40 million people live in the Great Lakes Basin and rely on the lakes for drinking water, their livelihoods or their recreation. It's no surprise that all the major agencies and organizations involved in Great Lakes conservation in Michigan want to encourage private property owners to learn more about these areas," Cwikiel said.

Because he's a shoreline property owner himself, this project was more than just a job for Cwikiel.

"I am very fortunate to own a piece of the Great Lakes. I want to make sure that my actions don't impact the health of the lakes and I want to help my fellow property owners do the same. Sure, the vegetation on the beach can be inconvenient, but if you look at the big picture you see how important it is. As owners of this land along the lake, we have a responsibility to take care of it. And besides, my kids and their friends love chasing butterflies and frogs in these areas," he said.

If you would like to receive a copy of the "Be a Great Lakes Steward!" brochure, please contact Tip of the Mitt Watershed at (231)347-1181 or download a copy at www.watershedcouncil.org.

DDA may make changes to its master plan to the city's master plan would have to be sent to the city council for approval. He does not foresee the master plan being an agenda item anytime soon.

PLAN

However, Charlevoix for the most part is fully expanded and city officials are not contemplating much more development. Harsch does not think the updated plan will have a lot of impact.

"There may not be any real significant change from what exists in it right now. The areas of the city that are available for development are minimal," he said.

But, the DDA said it does have plans that will impact the downtown Charlevoix area.

"The DDA planed district has a very specific plan of activities and projects which they can undertake. It's different from the city's comprehensive use plan," Harsch said.

The plans differ in respect to their coverage areas. The DDA plan, which includes only the downtown areas, leaves out city property beyond the central business district area such as recreational beaches and the airport.

At the last DDA meeting, July 28, board members thought it was time to revisit their master plan.

"It's been a while since we looked at the last master plan. It's probably time to look at it again," DDA Chairman Hugh Mason said in an interview with the Courier.

They talked of incorporating future plans for a downtown parking structure and convention center. Both ideas have been tossed around at their meetings, but nothing has been finalized on either project.

The DDA's district has recently expanded to include the sections of the old middle school property that were purchased to create a new Charlevoix public library. Mason said the DDA is contemplating future involvement with the library project and city marina as well.

The DDA also is expected to propose a project within the next two to three years that would further develop East Park.

Senior center to have raffle

The Charlevoix Senior Center is holding a raffle with proceeds to assist with the new expansion of its kitchen.

A hand-made quilt shown is one of the four prizes to be awarded. The quilt is hand-sewn and hand-quilted by Jessie Cunningham, assisted by Darleen Dhaseleer, Marge Warner and several others of the Barnard Grange.

Other prizes to be awarded are a hand knit baby sweater set with hood and booties, a hand crocheted baby afghan or lap robe and a three piece luggage set. Prizes are on display at the Senior Center.

Tickets are $1 each or six for $5 and may be obtained at the senior center or from a member of the group.

The drawings for these gifts will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 23 at the roast beef dinner given at the center. Winners need not be present to win.

Library invites public to second design workshop

The Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees invites the public to participate in the Pre-funding Design Workshop Two for converting the old middle school site to the new library.

Workshop Two will be at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 3, in the library basement.

The team of professionals, Bill Williams, architect from Engberg-Anderson Design Partnership; Alyce Riemenschneider, of Riemenschneider Design Associates; and Joe Mendyk, construction estimator from Clark Construction will present the refined drawings designed from the previous public input sessions.

Further input will be requested on which direction the library board should take in designing the library.

For further information contact the library at 547-2651.

Ace to combine area stores

ACE

Courier story last spring — of the Wal-Mart corporation wanting to build a store on the south side of town, Greyerbiehl said he did not like the prospect of going up against the retail giant.

After a few months of thinking, Greyerbiehl said he had to make the tough decision to close the downtown location.

"I just can't keep the store. Sometimes you just can't do things," he said. "It is just a natural thing. Our larger store has the stock."

Greyerbiehl stressed the decision to close the downtown Ace Hardware was a business decision; it does not reflect on his downtown employees or the owners of the building he rents, the Masons.

"I guess it is the fault of the new store being as successful as it is," Greyerbiehl said.

In fact, Greyerbiehl said he will be slowly closing down the downtown store over the next few months to give the Masons time to find a new renter. The downtown Ace Hardware will have limited hours starting sometime this fall until it closes its doors for good.

Greyerbiehl said he does not anticipate any of his employees at the downtown Ace Hardware will lose their jobs when he combines the two stores.

Greyerbiehl added he will be looking at ways to serve the downtown businesses and boaters who have relied on his downtown store for years. One such way is to provide delivery to downtown businesses and boaters.

"I have been having very serious thoughts of doing that," he said. "I think we can work out something."
